Forts Hit 3 Jap Cities

GUAM, June 9 [Saturday] (AP)—Between 100 and 150 Super Fortresses attacked aircraft factories at Nagoya, Naruo, and Akashi today with high explosives in a three way raid on the enemy main island of Honshu. It was the first all high explosive raid since May 19 when the B-29s struck Hamamatsu. The raiders flew today without fighter escort in daylight. It was the third strike of the Marianas based bombers this week against the enemy homeland.

GUAM, June 9 [Saturday] (AP)—Advancing swiftly on a broad front, American forces squeezed one of the two split Japanese garrisons on southern Okinawa into a three square mile pocket Friday and brought the other in the fortified Yaeju-Dake escarpment under intense plane, warship, and artillery bombardment.

Seizing a substantial segment of the southwest coast and drawing up before the 450 foot'high escarpment in preparation for a strong push, the United States 10th army compressed the divided Nipponese holdouts in less than 19 of Okinawa's 485 square miles.

Adm. Nimitz announced Friday's ground advances in a bulletin today which also reported substantial enemy air assaults on Okinawa Wednesday and Thursday during which 67 raiders were destroyed. The raiders damaged two small American vessels.

Hit Take-Off Points

Thursday, Okinawa based Thunderbolts hit the take-off points for the enemy air force on Kyushu. They shot down eight interceptors but had a difficult time finding ground planes along the south end of the enemy homeland. Apparently the Japanese are holding their air forces in north Kyushu and organizing attack groups there for staging thru the southern fields. A Tokyo broadcast said the Kanoya naval air station was bombed.

Aground, the 1st marine division smashed yesterday to the west coast of Okinawa and captured substantial ground north of Itoman town. The 6th marine division drove southeastward down Oroku peninsula despite strong resistance. Advance elements of these two leatherneck outfits were near a junction.

In south central Okinawa clearing weather permitted a coördinated aerial, artillery, and naval bombardment attack on strongly fortified Japanese positions along the Yaeju-Dake escarpment, the enemy's final defense fortifications.

The 7th infantry division advanced several hundred yards altho it had to fight thru heavy machine gun fire in the vicinity of Hanagusuku town, end of the Yaeju-Dake escarpment on the southeast coast.

SHINSHU FORTRESS, Luzon, June 8—In this fortress set in cliffs and with caves deep in the Luzon hills, 4,000 Japs planned to make a stand. Safe in their tunnels, dugouts, and natural caves, they could have made any American attack a bloody one.

But the fortress today is free of Japs—and brains, not blood, brought their downfall.

Only now, with patrols checking the underground storages, do we realize how well the Japs were prepared. They could have fought for a year. One dugout contains 5,000 automobile tires still in their paper wrappings. Cave after cave, both natural and Jap-dug, is piled high with ammunition.

Covers 10 Square Miles

This fortified area, which the Japs themselves named Shinshu fortress, covers about 10 square miles. It sits athwart the only road leading from Manila to the Ipo dam in the mountain watershed 30 miles east of Manila.

It was in these badlands, of boulders, cliffs, and ravines, that the Japs planned to fight. The mountains that rise behind them were to be their storehouse. For years the Japs dug hundreds of storages, some deep tunnels leading a mile into the ground, some small enough for only one truck.

Within two months after the landing at Lingayen, American troops came up against the fortress. As the Japs planned, the Americans came eastward from Manila.

Move Around Japs

A bloody campaign seemed inevitable, but the 6th army chose to use brains. For two months two regiments sat before the fortress, out of range of all except the heaviest artillery.

Then, under cover of night, the whole 43d division was moved from the Luzon plain around the south end of the badlands into the mountains. In a night attack, they began advancing—not against the badlands but north thru the mountains, striking against the rear. Guerrillas started down thru the mountains from the north.

In a natural cavern headquarters—the main room was big enough for 1,500 troops to gather before a speaker's platform—the Jap commander sat bewildered. The Americans were unfair. They were attacking his rear.

Moves Too Slowly

There was only one thing to do: Pull his troops out of the badlands and try to meet the Americans coming up from the south and down from the north, closing in on Ipo dam. That's what he tried to do, but Japs move slowly. Before he could set up new lines, the Americans and guerrillas met at the dam and not only captured most of the Japs' supplies but cut off their escape route to the mountains and obtained heights from which they could now look down on the Japs.

In two weeks the Japs collapsed. Already we have found 2,790 Jap bodies and scores lie rotting in the caves. We lost fewer than a hundred men.

Lower GI Point Plan on Way

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, June 8 (AP)—About 250,000 American soldiers in the European theater have adjusted service scores of 85 or more and are eligible for discharge under the interim rating, Brig. Gen. Ralph B. Lovett, adjutant general, said today.

The number will be increased substantially when new campaign stars for the Ardennes and the Central Europe campaigns are awarded, he said.

Analysis of the scores, completed six days ahead of schedule, showed 218,178 ground and service force men and 36,361 air force men eligible under the 85 score.

As a result of the survey here and in other theaters, the war department soon will be able to select a final score low enough to release slightly under 2,000,000 men and retain approximately 7,000,000.

Some 2,135,000 men in the European theater have scores below 75. About 175,000 have scores between 75 and 85. About 669,000 have scores of 40 or below. There were 2,416,205 ground service men in the theater when the survey started, and 281,267 air force troops. All except 137,199 have reported their scores.

Lovett said 2,250 WACs have scores equal to or above the interim score of 44. There were 7,705 in the theater when the survey started.

Gas Workers Vote to Strike if Parleys Fail

Nearly 1,300 production and maintenance employes of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company voted overwhelmingly yesterday to strike in their effort to obtain a wage increase, union shop, liberalized pensions, insurance, and sick benefits.

The strike vote was 797 for and 405 against. The vote was announced by George Bott, regional director of the national labor relations board, after federal, company, and union officials had canvassed the vote last night in the NLRB regional offices at 176 W. Adams st.

With the Chicago area having scarcely more than 48 hours of reserve gas supplies, a walkout would affect scores of war plants, more than a million domestic and commercial customers in Chicago. More than 150,000 in 99 of the 111 suburban districts served by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois also would be affected.

Allow Time for Settlement

The 30 day "cooling off" period required under the Smith-Connally act ends at midnight tonight. James E. Fitzpatrick, business manager of local 18007, Gas Workers' union [AFL], said, however, no strike would be called by union officials before late next week to give federal officials time to attempt a settlement.

Fitzpatrick said a joint conference will be held with war labor board officials at 10 a. m. Monday in the WLB offices.

While the strike vote was being taken in 12 plant locations, a two hour conference of company officials and union representatives called by Leo Kotin, assistant disputes director of the WLB, brought no progress toward agreement.

Seek Raise of 25 Cents an Hour

The union is seeking 25 cents an hour wage increase, a union shop, a revised pension plan to be included in the union contract and sick benefits of full pay the first four months and half pay the next four months for all employes of 15 years' or more seniority.

Most of the 1,300 production and maintenance employes receive base pay of 86 cents an hour, and some earn as much as $1.09 an hour. Until three months ago, Fitzpatrick said, employes worked a 40 hour week, but now they work 48 hours and receive overtime pay for the extra eight hours.

CANNING SUGAR RATION SLASHED 50 PCT. BY OPA

Canning sugar allotments for the Chicago metropolitan area were slashed to 7½ pounds per capita in an order issued yesterday by James F. Riley, acting area director of the office of price administration. This is a 50 per cent reduction in the per capita quotas announced last week.

The 7½ pound allotment, Riley said, will have to last home canners thru June, July, and August.

It was indicated that the cut was made to save sugar for the heavier canning months in the fall.

There is a total of 10,286,838 pounds of canning sugar available for distribution by the 167 boards in the metropolitan OPA area.

Ration boards were instructed to begin issuing canning sugar certificates Monday. The certificates will be issued on the basis of the total canning done last year by each individual and the amount of fruit available on the Chicago market.

2 Gay Mexican Caballeros Put Hex on Texas

Houston, Tex., June 8 [Special]—The legendary loss of a kingdom for want of a nail for a horse's shoe was not much more fantastic than the consequences of two Mexican bootleggers' lighthearted trip into Texas with three ponies loaded with liquor and an unsuspected super-cargo.

Here's what resulted from the two peons' trip across the Mexican border the night of April 28:

A total of 765,810 acres in four Texas counties today are under rigid quarantine. Nearly 25,000 head of livestock must be completely dipped in an antiseptic solution every two weeks for a period of five to nine months. None of the livestock—including thousands of head of beef cattle—can be moved or sold during the quarantine. Ranchmen, the four counties, and the state have been put to a cost restrainedly described as "extremely high and most regrettable."

Ponies Carry Stowaways

Among authorities concerned with the incident are the United States marshal, federal immigration officers, inspectors of the bureau of animal husbandry, the state sanitary livestock commission, and brand inspectors of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' association.

All this trouble stemmed, not from the bootleg liquor, but from the little stowaways on the ponies—the dread fever ticks which spread disease and are a menace to the health of livestock where they are found.

The three infested ponies dropped mature ticks wherever they went during their 10 day jaunt thru the counties of Webb, Zapata, Duval, and Jim Hogg, thus exposing to infection all the livestock in that area.

The Mexicans were captured en route home by immigration men. Discovering that the ponies were infested with ticks, the immigration inspectors called in federal and state livestock sanitary officials. The Mexicans then led the officers over the route they had followed on their "little business trip" into Texas.

Ponies Get a Dipping Too

Under the policy of the Texas livestock sanitary commission, a tick quarantine is imposed not only on all pastures traversed by tick infected animals, but on all adjacent pasture lands.

Now the Mexicans are in custody of the United States marshal at Laredo awaiting federal court action. The ponies are in pens there, undergoing the same periodic dipping they caused to be imposed on 25,000 other animals.

PARLEY FACES NEW FIGHT ON TRUSTEE ISSUE

Romulo Pleads for Subject Peoples

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 8—With the battle of the veto ended, temporarily at least, by the surrender of Russia to the other four powers, the world security conference ran head on tonight into another controversy.

When the committee framing the trusteeship system for colonial and conquered territories met tonight, Brig. Gen. Romulo, resident Philippines commissioner to the United States, demanded that independence be included as one of the objectives of the trusteeship system for all peoples committed to its jurisdiction.

Oratorical Ball of Fire

The little general, who is an oratorical ball of fire, cut loose with a speech in which he glorified the example of the United States conferring independence upon the Filipinos after 40 years of tutelage and adjured the other powers in the conference to do likewise with backward peoples placed in their charge.

He was supported by China, which had moved an independence amendment several weeks ago, and by Russia espousing self-determination for all dependent peoples. Reports percolating from the meeting were that British Colonial Secretary Cranborne agreed to independence for territories placed in trust but opposed any such guarantees to India or other British dependencies. Self-government in a dominion status within the empire was the utmost hope he was willing to hold out to British colonies.

The debate behind closed doors was still raging at a late hour around the little Filipino general who started it.

Pledges Finish Fight

Comdr. Stassen of the American delegation, who is in charge of the trusteeship section of the prospective peace league's charter, thought he had got this dispute settled with a compromise whereby colonies would get self-government and trust territories not only self-government but independence. Then Romulo upset the apple cart with a demand for independence for everybody and asserted he would carry his fight into the last plenary session of the conference, if necessary.

Another subject of contention is the effort of the Russians and the Arab delegations to get the old league of nations mandates transmuted into trusteeships chiefly with the purpose of loosening Britain's hold on Palestine, which is a British mandate. The British are taking care not to permit any of their mandates being changed into trusteeships without their consent.

With the breaking of the logjam by removal of the veto controversy

House Slashes Fund for OWI by 17 Million

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 8—A 17 million dollar slash in funds for the office of war information was voted by the house today as Republican members charged the agency with colossal "waste" of taxpayers' money.

The cut, approved 138-128, was included in a 752 million dollar appropriation bill for 19 war agencies for the fiscal year starting July 1. The house passed the bill, 251-2, and sent it to the senate.

The OWI reduction, if concurred in by the senate, will reduce the agency's allotment to 18 million dollars, or to one-third the amount spent this year and one-half that proposed for next year. OWI's appropriation for the current year is 53¾ million dollars. It sought 42 millions for the coming year and the house appropriations committee recommended 35 millions.

The house approved the slash on a motion by Rep. Taber [R., N. Y.] just before final passage of the bill, after a previous attempt by Taber to halve the OWI appropriation was defeated on a tie vote, 106-106.

Cuts Activity Abroad

Taber's amendment, as approved, directs that the reduction be applied to OWI operations in the European theater and in this country. This, Taber said, will leave ample funds for OWI operations in the war theater—the Pacific.

The action, members said, will virtually abolish OWI operations in Europe, since 12 millions of 18 millions remaining to OWI if the house action becomes law is allocated for the Pacific.

Taber told the house OWI, headed by Elmer Davis, has more than 10,000 employes and could get along with less than half that number.

Terming his proposed reduction a "very conservative cut," he noted that the Associated Press operates a domestic and world-gathering news agency on an annual budget of only 12 million dollars, and the United Press, 10 millions.

"It is perfectly ridiculous for OWI to have 2,000 employes in New York," Taber said. "It is ridiculous to have 895 in San Francisco preparing radio broadcasts that are not very effective.

Harmful to War

"It is harmful to the war program to vote to waste money like that."

Rep. Luce [R., Conn.], supporting Taber's proposal, said OWI "could do twice as good a job with half as much," if it had efficient personnel. She asserted 100 efficient workers could do a better job of preparing broadcasts than is now done by the 895 workers in San Francisco.

Chairman Cannon [D., Mo.] of the appropriations committee, opposing the cut in funds, said OWI, thru overseas propaganda, has been a "life-saving agency."

Also pleading for OWI was Rep. Woodrum [D., Va.], who said the agency still needs a substantial staff in Europe to spread American doctrines. Republicans retorted this work in Germany is largely in the hands of the army.

The Republican membership voted solidly for the Taber motion and

JUDGE SULLIVAN DECISION UPSET BY 2 TO 1 VOTE

Company Will Fight On, Says Avery

SUMMARY OF OPINION.

A summary of the Circuit Court of Appeals majority opinion in the Ward case is on page 7.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals in a two to one decision late yesterday upheld the legality of the army's seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co. mail order properties under a Presidential order last December.

The court reversed the Jan. 27 ruling by Judge Philip L. Sullivan of the federal District court, holding the seizure unconstitutional. The case was sent back to Judge Sullivan with instructions to rule in favor of the government.

The principal point made by the Appeals court was that Ward's is engaged in war production. Even children gathering waste paper are doing a war production job, the two judges held.

Sparks Holds with Sullivan

The opinion was written by Senior Judge Evan A. Evans. Judge Otto Kerner concurred. Judge Will M. Sparks dissented in a four line opinion in which he agreed with Judge Sullivan.

No immediate change is expected in the Ward situation as a result of the reversal. The army has been in control under a stay order pending the government's appeal from Sullivan's decision. Now the company will appeal from the Circuit Court of Appeals' ruling.

Notice of intent to appeal was given by Sewell L. Avery, chairman of Ward's, who assailed the opinion.

"The decision means the closed shop," Avery said. "Certainly congress has passed no law intended to impose the closed shop. The American people may be depended upon to preserve for every citizen his individual liberty."

Avery's comment referred to the maintenance of union membership issue in the company's long and bitter fight with the CIO United Retail, Wholesale & Department Store Employes' union, which led to the seizure and the court action.

WLB Authority Challenged

The union won wage increases, check-off of dues, and other benefits from the war labor board, but Ward's refused to comply with the WLB's award on the ground that courts had held the WLB's directives to be only advisory.

The union struck. The late President Roosevelt ordered the army to take over Ward plants under terms of the war labor disputes act. The government then sought to justify its action by suing before Judge Sullivan for a declaratory judgment legalizing the seizure.

The company argued that the President exceeded his authority, and that the company as a merchandising retailer did not come under the war labor disputes act which permits the seizure of producers of war materials.

Judge Sullivan ruled for Ward's, holding that the President exceeded his authority, and that the company was a distributor exempt from seizure. He analyzed the word "production" and said he could not apply it to Ward's business.

Priority Applications Cited

The Appeals court decided "production" was akin to "produced." Under the fair labor standards act, the opinion said, "produced" means anything "produced, manufactured, mined, handled or in any other manner worked upon."

Under that definition, the court declared, Ward's was a producer, and amenable to the war labor disputes act. Moreover, said the court, Ward's itself in thousands of applications for priorities cited its importance to the war production front.

Leonard Levy, international executive vice president of the union at Ward's, and other labor leaders said the opinion vindicated the union's stand.

Urge Russia Get Part of Turkey

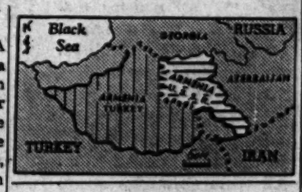
BY EUGENE GRIFFIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 8.—A plan for the annexation by Russia of 25,000 square miles of Turkish territory as a soviet homeland for Armenians has been laid before the international security conference here, Charles Aznakian Vertanes, executive director of the Armenian National Council of America, disclosed today.

"Approval of the plan must wait until the peace conference, but the delegations at the San Francisco conference have been asked to give it their favorable consideration," he said. The territory proposed to be taken from Turkey would be attached to the Armenian soviet republic.

Vertanes, who said he is an American citizen from New York, praised the soviet union at a press conference held in a Y. M. C. A. lounge and attacked Turkey as being "secretly on the side of Germany in this war." Turkey is represented by a delegation at the security conference. Soviet Armenia is represented by the Russian delegates.



There are 1,280,000 persons in soviet Armenia, and about 100,000 Armenians in the Turkish provinces outside of Constantinople, Vertanes said. His council, which he said speaks for 40 Armenian organizations, wants the allied nations to obtain permission for the repatriation of 1,500,000 Armenians back to Turkey from other near east countries, and the annexation of Turkish Armenia to soviet Armenia.

The territory referred to by Vertanes as Turkish Armenia is twice the area of soviet Armenia, which is about the size of Belgium.

ward past Zawa town to the north bank of the Mukue river, 1,000 yards inland directly east of Itoman town, western anchor of the Yaeju-Dake line. The advance moved the marines 1,600 yards south of their Thursday position, south of Dakiton town.

Other elements of Del Valle's division expanded northwestward toward the 6th marine division sector on Oroku peninsula.

Del Valle's leathernecks seized Zawa in their push to the river.

Advances of 1st marine elements, the 96th, and 7th infantry divisions established a fairly straight line before the well organized positions of the enemy on the escarpment.

The 1st marines were using some of the captured stretch of the southwestern beach to bring in supplies between the two surviving enemy forces.

Clearing weather offered the enemy air force the opportunity to renew attacks against shipping off Okinawa.

HOW 2 DESTROYERS SANK

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—The skippers of two American destroyers, the Morrison and the Luce, described today how their ships were sunk within a few minutes of each other by Japanese suicide planes off Okinawa.

Comdr. James R. Hansen of the Morrison and Capt. J. W. Waterhouse of the Luce appeared together at a news conference.

Comdr. Hansen said his ship went down in a very few minutes after it was struck by four kamikazes. The Morrison, he said, lost 163 dead and missing with 108 wounded. Only 71 members of the crew survived unscratched. The Luce, Capt. Waterhouse said, went down in about four minutes, with 149 killed and missing and 40 wounded.

Battle in Sky

Hansen said the fatal raid began at about 7:15 a. m. and the Morrison asked for more plane protection. At the peak of the fight, he said, 45 American planes were carrying on a dogfight with the attacking Japanese over a 15 mile area.

About 8:30 a. m. he said, two Japanese fighters, flying directly overhead, "peeled off and came in astern of the ship. One hit at the base of the forward stack and opened the forward fire room. The second hit amidships and opened up the after fire room and the after engine room.

Two More Strike

"Three minutes later the third and fourth suicide attackers hit and within minutes the Morrison went under."

The Luce, which like the Morrison was on picket duty, was about 50 miles away. Capt. Waterhouse said the action in which his vessel was lost was even "shorter and quicker."

He said it was possible to see from his ship the dogfight in progress over the Morrison and shortly before 8 o'clock attackers moved in on the Luce.

Two Japanese suicide flyers broke off from the group, he related, and started their run together. They split apart and one attacked at the bow and the other from astern. One crashed about 50 feet from the ship and the second scored a hit amidships.

SHIPS, PLANES, TORPEDO BOATS ATTACK BORNEO

MANILA, June 9 [Saturday] (AP)—Heavy aerial pounding of Japanese bases on Borneo is continuing, with daring torpedo boat sweeps off that big island's north coast, Gen. MacArthur announced today as the ground forces in the Philippines recorded gains of one to seven miles in the cleanup drives on Luzon and Mindanao.

Heavy, medium, and fighter bombers hit Borneo with 170 tons of bombs, cratering airdrome runways, destroying two grounded planes and setting many fires, MacArthur's announcement said.

Light coastal forces shelled Borneo's north coastal defenses, it added, and air patrols sank a schooner near Kendari, attacked air fields in the Celebes, east of Borneo, and harassed Japanese facilities in the Lesser Sundas to the south and in the Moluccas again.

Gain in Philippine Drives

While this softening process was in progress against the East Indies the land drives in the Philippines continued steadily.

The 37th infantry division thrust northeastward beyond captured Bayombong today down the narrow Magat river valley 27 miles from the hundred mile long Cagayan valley where the Japanese are expected to make their last stand on northern Luzon.

Bayombong, normally a town of 12,000 population, fell Thursday with little resistance after the Buckeyes of Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler killed 119 Japanese in a seven mile march from Bambang and knocked out two flame throwing tanks, the first the enemy has employed in this theater.

The town is on the Magat river, at the head of a valley 15 miles long and no more than three miles wide. Highway No. 5 winds northward thru the valley, then snakes its way 12 miles eastward over a series of low, rugged hills to the floor of the big Cagayan valley which extends to the north coast of Luzon.

Press Along Highway

Troops of the 37th division already were pressing along the highway toward Solano, three miles north of Bayombong. The whole area is a maze of hills and streams, cut by wandering footpaths and touted to pre-war tourists as "the wonderland of the orient."

The 38th division in central Luzon, east of Manila, also advanced in the troublesome Marikina hills mass, bypassing Mount Ayras and reaching the base of Mount Payacin. The crests of Mounts Compananan and Purra finally were cleared of Japanese.

Both the 37th and 38th had strong 5th air force support, 400 fighter bomber sorties being flown in a day.

Gain in Mindanao

The other Philippines cleanup campaign, on the southern island of Mindanao, witnessed a one mile advance up the Taloma river valley by the 24th division, which smashed a pocket of Japanese resistance near Tagakpan, off Davao gulf.

Another element of the 24th division pushed up a trail northwest of the village of Ula as the Japanese were slowly being driven back into the mountains in a trap between the 24th and 31st divisions.

Yanks Land in Norway to Help Disarm Germans

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—Thirteen United States navy tank landing ships which have been reenforcing allied troops on the continent since D-day have just completed their last mission in Europe—carrying 2,000 American soldiers to Norway, United States navy headquarters announced tonight. The Americans landed in Oslo June 4 to help in the disarming of German forces there. The troops are of the 447th regiment which fought in Italy, southern France, and Germany. Many are of Norwegian birth or descent and were hand picked for the assignment.

BONOMI OFFERS RESIGNATION IN CABINET CRISIS

ROME, June 8 (AP) — Premier Ivanoe Bonomi offered his resignation today, insisting it was impossible to govern because of a six party stalemate on choice of a new government, but he remained in office at his ministers' request.

Bonomi, who had pledged himself to resign as soon as northern Italy was liberated, said the party deadlock "has prolonged itself for many weeks without a rapid solution yet in sight," and said the situation was harmful to the nation. His ministers suggested a solution might be reached in a few days, but this appeared to be optimistic.

Communists, socialists, and Actionists oppose Bonomi's retention. But the committee of national liberation also is split on two suggested as successors—Foreign Minister Alcide de Gasperi, a Christian Democrat, and Pietro Nenni, Socialist party secretary.

U. S. ARMY TRAINING FOR PEACE DRAFTEES URGED BY VETS' CHIEF

PARIS, June 8 (AP)—Jean A. Brunner, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said tonight that peace time conscription and troop training should be supervised by the United States army rather than by the old state national guards.

His statement, made after a three week survey in Europe, was a reversal of the previous Veterans of Foreign Wars stand which had advocated training by the national guards.

"I am convinced now that the army would do a better job," Brunner explained. "Peace time conscription under national guard supervision would divide our forces by states."

WIDOW OF SLAIN LANGFORD POSTS $10,000 REWARD

Changes Mind and Goes to Husband's Funeral

New York, June 8 [Special]—Returning to her Park av. hotel home from the funeral of her murdered husband, Mrs. Marion Grimes Langford, utility heiress, today offered a $10,000 reward for information of his killers and indignantly denied the story of her former protege that her marriage 2½ years ago was arranged by matchmakers who expected to be paid $25,000 for getting Langford a rich wife.

Episcopal services for Albert Langford, 63, textile executive shot to death Monday night, were held without eulogy at a funeral home, after which he was buried in Woodlawn cemetery.

Changes Mind Over Funeral

His elderly, red haired widow had changed her mind about attending the funeral since yesterday when, during a brief exchange with reporters, she was asked if she would go to the services and she replied, "O, good God, no."

She announced the reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayers despite the urging of her brother-in-law, Howard M. Langford, that she first consult her lawyer.

"No, I want to do it my way—it's my money," she insisted. "I say, $10,000 to the person who will solve this horrible murder. I loved my husband. I'd give everything I have in the world to bring him back.

"When you lose the thing you love best in the world you ought to commit suicide. But I won't. I'll carry on, somehow, I don't know how. . . ." She burst into sobs and momentarily left her richly furnished living room to compose herself.

Angry at Singer

She expressed the greatest contempt for Reed Lawton, dapper night club and operetta singer, to whom she was a musical patron for many years until they broke off their relationship 3½ years ago.

Lawton yesterday said the Langfords' marriage in September, 1942, was promoted by an Austrian baroness, since deported at Mrs. Langford's behest, and a self-styled Indian chief. Langford, a former shirt salesman, had promised to pay $25,000 for their matchmaking, but reneged on the payment, Lawton averred. District attorney's officers said they would like to talk to the baroness and an Indian called Chief Redwing.

Mrs. Langford spiritedly declared today that she had first met Langford 18 years ago, when both were married to others, and that after their mates died they met again, renewed their acquaintance, and "decided we were meant for each other."

Tells of Help to Lawton

"I spent $120,000 on Reed Lawton, whose real name is Antonio Netto," Mrs. Langford said. "I met him in an obscure club and two weeks later he was singing in the Rainbow room.

"For nearly all these years he practiced a deception on me. He represented his wife as his sister and his daughter as his niece. After it came out that he was married, his wife came here and on her knees asked me not to be angry with him for having lied to me. Not that it really mattered, of course. But why didn't he tell me the truth?

"I have given orders for all my telephones here in the apartment that if that snake in the grass calls I am not at home any more to him—ever."

She declared that despite Lawton's assertions that he was paying back the money she advanced him, he has paid back nothing except for two checks for $1,000 each which he sent her last winter.

Insists She's 55, Not 70

Mrs. Langford, who is reported to be 70 years old, was incensed over accounts giving her age as "anywhere from 65 to 95." She insisted she was born May 27, 1890. Repeating that she is "55 years old," she demanded: "Do I look any older?" On the other hand she declared that Lawton "is 44 and not 30 as has been reported."

Meantime, police and district attorney's investigators eliminated robbery as a motive in the slaying and questioned more of the widow's acquaintances and proteges. They admitted, however, that they were without a clew to the identity of the two "dark strange men" who shot him, according to Mrs. Langford, after he had refused them admittance to the apartment to see her about a former protege.

13 SENTENCED FOR 'ABUSING' ILL VETERANS

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—Gen. Bradley, newly appointed veterans' administrator, appeared today at a closed meeting of the house veterans' committee, investigating charges of neglect and brutality in government hospitals.

The general, who will succeed Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines as head of the veterans' administration, met with the committee soon after the investigation produced evidence that several soldiers had been court-martialed on charges of abusing patients in the veterans' mental hospital at Northport, N. Y.

Committee members said the investigation was not mentioned during the 20 minute conference with Bradley.

Civilians Involved, Too

Testimony that several soldiers—probably 15—and seven civilian employes at Northport were involved in an investigation of alleged brutality was developed from veterans' administration officials this morning under questioning of Rep. Kearney [R., N. Y.], a member of the committee.

Edward Odum, solicitor for the veterans' administration, said he believed 15 soldiers were court-martialed and 13 of them convicted on charges of abusing patients. In a letter he wrote to the United States district attorney at Brooklyn, N. Y., he said there was evidence of "rather serious abuse of patients by soldiers."

The letter said seven civilian employes of the hospital quit or were fired after they became involved in the investigation. Neither Odum nor Col. John H. Baird, an assistant medical director of the veterans' administration, gave the committee any indication of the type or scope of the abuses uncovered at the hospital.

Forfeit Part of Pay

Baird said so far as he knows none of the staff doctors was involved or has been disciplined.

In New York, a spokesman for the 2d service command said "an investigation revealed that some of the soldiers on duty at the Northport veterans' facility were implicated with civilian attendants in the mistreatment of patients at that facility.

"For their part, the soldiers were tried by court martial and received sentences ranging from two months' confinement at hard labor and forfeiture of $10 per month for two months to three months' confinement at hard labor and forfeiture of $10 per month for three months."

Col. Roy A. Wolford, assistant medical director in charge of tuberculosis treatment in the veterans' administration, filed a report with the veterans' committee in which he denied published charges that veterans receive "third rate" medical treatment in government hospitals.

Favor Draft Measure

Other witnesses heard as the committee neared the end of its first full week of hearings included:

Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who urged immediate action on military training legislation. He said it would "let the world know that we mean business when we talk of preserving peace, and that we are ready to adopt strong measures to insure our safety against attack."

Ernest Angell, New York, member of the board of directors of the American civil liberties union, who urged delay until members of the military forces "can participate in this debate."

IKE TO REVIEW SECRET FILM ON WAR IN EUROPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 8—On his forthcoming visit to London to receive the freedom of the city, Gen. Eisenhower, it was reported today will pass judgment on an official movie telling the story of the war in Europe from D-day to V-E day. Fourteen hundred camera men, 38 of whom died and 101 of whom were injured, were said to have contributed to the movie which is titled, "The True Glory."

It cost more than $112,000,000 to produce, according to the London Daily Mirror, and ran into 6,500,000 feet of film. Two leading American and British movie directors, working secretly at a British studio, cut the length to 8,000 feet. It was explained the movie contains shots of weapons which still are a secret.

The ministry of information has the only print of the film. After Eisenhower sees the movie it may be released simultaneously in America and Britain in July.

M'ARTHUR STEPS ASHORE ON CEBU ON ISLAND TOUR

BY DON STARR

[Chicago Tribune Correspondent]
[For the Combined American Press]

WITH GEN. MacARTHUR IN THE FIELD [Delayed]—Making his third stop in his tour of Philippine bases and fighting fronts, Gen. MacArthur went ashore on Cebu, where more than 400 years ago Ferdinand Magellan planted the Spanish flag and remained to meet his death at the hands of natives on his historic world girdling voyage.

The tour of the island was conducted by Maj. Gen. William Arnold of the Americal division which made an unopposed landing at Cebu City last March. Infantrymen charging up the beach were halted momentarily by a mine field. But the Japs had pulled out to hills on which they put up a tenacious defense from well hidden and elaborately constructed caves. The Japs used aerial bombs in constructing their mines. The whole crest of one hill was blown off by one such explosion, which cost the greater part of one platoon.

The Americal division was formed on New Caledonia, and included the 132d infantry, formerly the Illinois national guard. The first contingent of troops released under the point system has already left the division for home. These include a number of boys from Chicago and Illinois.

Say 200,000 Trapped

CHUNGKING, June 8 (AP)—A Chinese army spokesman said today that approximately 200,000 Japanese troops have been isolated in southeast Asia as the Chinese offensive rolled into the northern suburbs of the vital Kwangsi province air base city of Liuchow.

The spokesman said it was quite possible that Liuchow and Kweilin, 90 miles to the northeast, would fall to the Chinese. Both cities were base sites for the United States 14th air force, and their recapture would aid American air power in southern China.

A battle for Liuchow apparently was taking shape. The Chinese said the enemy, which has occupied the city for seven months, had strongly fortified the area and concentrated a large number of troops there.

KIDNAPER TRIES ELECTRIC CHAIR HE WON'T SIT IN

Eddyville, Ky., June 8 (AP)—Dewey Ward, warden at the Kentucky penitentiary, today revealed kidnaper Thomas H. Robinson Jr., was granted a request to "try out" the electric chair shortly before his departure on the first lap of his trip to Alcatraz to serve a life term.

It was the same chair Robinson was scheduled to die in when President Truman granted his reprieve Tuesday.

As preparations were being completed for transporting him to Leavenworth, Kans., Ward said Robinson asked to see the electric chair.

"It isn't so bad looking, after all," the warden quoted Robinson as saying. The kidnaper placed his arms on top of the chair arms and smiled.

"I just wanted to see how it felt," he said.

TRUMAN NAMES GENERAL HEAD OF GI'S SCHOOLS

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—President Truman today nominated Col. Paul W. Thompson for promotion to brigadier general and the war department disclosed Thompson will head the education program for troops in Europe.

Thompson succeeds Maj. Gen. Frederick H. Osborne, who has been recalled to duty in Washington as supervisor of the schooling of approximately 1,250,000 men.

Thompson is the author of several articles and books on modern warfare and led a unit into Normandy on D-day, winning the distinguished service cross for heroism. He was seriously injured during the fighting on the beach.

Graduate of West Point

He is a graduate of West Point, the University of Iowa, and Tulane university, and was assistant chief of intelligence in the engineer corps prior to going overseas in July, 1943. He lives at Alexandria, Va.

The war department disclosed that the troops who will remain in Europe will revolve around university centers at Shrievenhan, England, and at Fontainebleau, France. A central technical school for 4,000 students also will be established at Titworth, England, in mid-August. The university centers will offer eight week courses.

There also will be schools for students of elementary and high school rank. There will be unit schools for battalions and other units stationed some distance from fixed centers.

Chicagoans to Aid

Most of the instructors will be obtained from army ranks, altho a few key positions in the university centers will be filled by prominent teachers from this country.

Among those who will assist Col. Thompson are Dr. E. T. Peterson of the University of Iowa; Kenneth Olsen, dean of the school of journalism at Northwestern university; J. L. Boatman of the department of agriculture; Dr. Stephen Freeman of Middlebury college, Vermont; and Dr. Merele Coulter of the University of Chicago.

JAP FLEET RUNS FROM VICTORY IN SAMAR BATTLE

U. S. Carrier Pilots Sink Cruiser, Destroyer

This is the last of four articles on the greatest naval engagement in history, the battle of Leyte gulf, in which almost half of the Japanese fleet was crushed.

BY CHARLES BALLENGER

The officer's ward room on the American escort carrier Sangamon was jammed with flyers, each trying to grab a cup of coffee and a sandwich. Circulating among them were intelligence officers asking questions and filling out combat reports. Everyone was tired, jittery, and hurried.

Some of the men were assigned to the Sangamon. Others were on the ship because they couldn't land on their own carriers. Just 50 miles to the north of the Sangamon, off the southern tip of Samar island, in the Philippines group, part of the greatest battle in naval history was being fought.

This part was an unequal contest between six American escort aircraft carriers, protected only by four destroyers and three escort destroyers, and a powerful Jap fleet originally composed of five battleships, eight cruisers, and about 15 destroyers. The date was Oct. 28, 1944.

Flyer's Buddy Shot Down.

Flyers from these six carriers, and from the Sangamon and nine other escort carriers, all lying within range of Leyte harbor to protect Gen. MacArthur's beachhead on Leyte island, had been harrying the attacking Jap force all morning. Lt. George E. Johnsen, 29, of Arlington Heights, a Hellcat pilot, returned to the Sangamon and shortly before noon went out again.

"When I started back," Lt. Johnsen said, "I was feeling about as low as a man can. I had heard that one of my roommates, a wonderful guy, was caught by anti-aircraft fire and was seen to fall. He is still listed as missing. There were others from my carrier who hadn't reported back.

"We were about 10 minutes away from the Sangamon when the flagship of Rear Adm. Thomas L. Sprague, commander of the escort carriers, radioed: 'The Japs are running away! They're turning north!' We were dumbfounded; we couldn't understand why the Japs should quit with victory in their grasp. [Navy strategists, however, believe our carrier planes' pounding was an important factor.]

Japs Stir Flyers to Fury

"My orders were to protect the carriers and to work on any Jap ships which might be around. After flying around the remaining ships in the American group—four carriers and a couple of escort destroyers—we got word that a crippled Jap cruiser was about 20 miles away off Samar Island.

"Off we went, and happy about it too. As we neared the cruiser, which was protected by a destroyer, we saw one of our leading planes get hit. The pilot landed in the water safely. Then something happened which made us determine to sink that ship or die.

"The cruiser and destroyer veered off their course, almost at a 90 degree angle. They were going to try to ram the pilot who was floating in the water, clearly marked by his parachute.

Two Jap Warships Sunk

"We went after those two ships with everything. If we had bombs, we dropped them, some scoring hits, and came right back on strafing runs. We made it so hot the Japs couldn't keep a straight course and the downed flyer climbed on a raft we dropped to him.

"I was about an average pilot, in that strike and I made 12 runs on the ships. After about the sixth my gun barrels had burned out completely and I was going in almost blindly, trying to see how close I could come to the ship's bridge.

"Finally the Jap destroyer went to see her ancestors. The cruiser was sunk by a torpedo-bomber that laid a fish right in her middle. The fact that we sank those ships rather surprised every one, I think. Fighter planes aided by only a few torpedo planes aren't supposed to be able to sink a major ship.

Dramatic Plea for Help

"Our joy was dimmed however by a pilot who broke into the interplane radio network. 'There is a cruiser off my port and a cruiser off my starboard,' the voice said. 'I need help badly.' There was a pause. 'But if you can't come right away, never mind.' That pilot was never heard from again."

It was then about 2:30 p. m., Lt. Johnsen recalled. The air group commander told him and four other pilots to return to fly cover for the four remaining escort carriers. On the way, the planes saw nearly 50 Japanese and American survivors clinging to life rafts and wreckage. Surface craft were radioed the position and picked up the survivors.

"After about an hour," Johnsen said, "I started back to my carrier. I came upon a lone flyer floating in a life belt in the choppy sea. I tried to attract a native outrigger canoe a few miles away, but it went inshore.

Refuels on Leyte Beach

"I used nearly all my gasoline trying to get help, but finally dropped a compass, dye markers, and a canteen of water, and set out for the Leyte beach where the army was supposed to have an air strip built.

"Over the strip I noticed a red alert, meaning that enemy planes were in the vicinity. I radioed the army field commander for permission to land. 'Stay clear,' he ordered. 'We're under attack.' We argued back and forth while my gas diminished. Finally I told him I was coming in anyway.

"The strip wasn't finished and my Hellcat nearly tipped on its nose in loose sand. I argued with several army officers who wanted to push my plane off the strip. As dusk fell I completed the gassing up, got directions, and took off.

Flyer Rejoins His Carrier

"Back on the Sangamon, I found the ship's population of flyers almost doubled by the men who had made forced landings on her decks."

Many flyers in the battle spent six to eight hours in the air. More than 105 of our planes were shot or forced down. This was nearly one-fourth of the number put in the air. Most of the flyers were rescued.

The Japs sank two escort carriers, the St. Lo and the Gambier Bay; two destroyers, the Johnston and the Hoel, and one destroyer escort. The enemy fled leaving two heavy cruisers and two destroyers at the bottom of the sea.

The outcome might have been different if Adm. Halsey had not sent his fast task force northward to deal with another Japanese fleet. He evidently felt safe in doing so, not knowing the enemy force that had retired thru San Bernardino strait would sneak back to attack the 16 escort carriers.

Capt. Joseph M. [Kit] Carson, who was chief of staff of the escort carrier groups and now is commanding officer of the Glenview Naval Air base, commented:

"Adm. Halsey had two alternatives: To stay and guard San Bernardino strait or to head north and meet the new Jap threat. Choosing the latter course, his force succeeded in sinking all four carriers in the enemy's northern group—since proved a crippling blow to Jap sea-air power."

Lt. Johnsen, back after 14 months at sea, is stationed at Glenview, and with his wife resides at 403 Euclid st., Arlington Heights.

U. S. SUB JOINS JAP CONVOY AND BLOWS IT APART

[This is another article in a series on submarine heroes of the United States navy.]

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., June 8 (AP)—The U. S. S. "Zebra" surfaced one night in 1943 and found herself in the center of a convoy. She sailed along with two ships on each side of her and another astern—Japanese ships.

Then the Zebra [that is a mythical name because her identity remains a navy secret] attacked in one of the epics of submarine warfare in the Pacific.

"It was black as hell," said Lt. Comdr. W. T. Griffith, New London, Conn., who commanded the Zebra on that patrol.

Torpedo Biggest Ship.

"We fired a torpedo at the largest ship to starboard, saw it hit, and saw the bridge, bow section, and high forward mast disintegrate.

"We turned on a ship to port. There was another great explosion—we were close, only about 300 yards away. Than we went back to post-midnight black. The convoy's largest ship went down in four minutes. Two hits were scored on another vessel.

"A third craft opened fire on us with 5 or 6 inch guns," Griffith said. "Its second shot appeared to hit in the engine room."

The Zebra turned on her and scored with torpedoes. The ship stopped shooting and began to sink. Griffith and his crew came back, damaged, but still able to fight.

Surprise Tactics Pay

In another episode, Lt. Comdr. Charles H. Andrews, New London, Conn., skipper of a submarine crew that included Jack Simpson, Marion, Ill., worked on the theory of "figuring out what the Japs expect you to do, and then do the opposite."

He played three days of hide and seek with enemy warships and a torpedo boat while preying on Japanese cargo vessels. Each night the crew bedded the sub in safe waters; each dawn they returned to hunt under the warships' noses.

Thru these tactics he blew up a destroyer, damaged another, exploded two cargo ships and a small warship, and blasted a large warship that the crew believes sank.

The submarine was finally damaged by anti-depth charges and only a desperate battle saved it.

200,000 IN SHAEF ZONE AWAITING REPATRIATION

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, June 8 (AP)—More than 2,000,000 recovered allied prisoners of war and displaced persons have been moved out of allied occupied areas in Germany and Austria and some 2,900,000 others remain in this zone, SHAEF announced today.

Fewer than 200,000 western Europeans in the SHAEF zone are awaiting repatriation and are expected to be returned to their homes in the next few weeks. It is uncertain how many western Europeans are in Russian occupied areas.

Transfer of soviet citizens from the SHAEF zone to the Red army has reached the rate of 50,000 daily. More than 630,000 of them have been sent into the Russian zone.

GERMAN SEEKS TO MAKE FOOD OF WOOD AGAIN

BAD GASTEIN, Austria, June 8 (AP)—Dr. Friedrich Bergius, German chemist, asked American authorities today for permission to resume production of a protein food which he said was derived from waste wood.

His goal is to get plants at Regensburg and Mannheim back into production. He said they could refine 800 tons of dry yeast monthly from "wood sugar," enough to provide a monthly diet substitute for meat, eggs, butter and milk for 1,700,000 persons.

The 61 year old scientist's synthetic oil process was one of the cornerstones in the Nazi war economy. He won the Nobel prize for chemistry in 1931. Bergius described his product as flaky and powdery with the color of brown sugar and a pleasing malty flavor. Any kind of wood—old lumber, discarded chairs, and shingles—can be used in manufacturing "wood sugar," Bergius said.

MOSCOW BLOCKS TRANSIT OF 18 JAPS IN SWEDEN

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 8—Eighteen members of the former Japanese embassy in Berlin are now stranded in Sweden because Moscow has not shown any disposition to grant them transit visas thru the soviet union. Out of this circumstance local observers read an indication of tension between Tokyo and Moscow.

The group of Japanese, however, are not too eager to return home.

PETAIN, IN JAIL, HINTS BRITAIN COULD SAVE HIM

Tells of Negotiations with Churchill in 1940

PARIS, June 8 (AP)—Marshal Petain declared in effect today that Prime Minister Churchill or the British government could say the word that would place his whole course as head of the Vichy state in its proper perspective and save him from the treason charge on which he is to be tried this month.

Speaking with the force and eloquence on which the high court commissioners already have commented, the marshal, who is 89, told them that at the very moment of his first meeting with Hitler he was negotiating with Churchill a secret treaty which guided his future actions.

Claim No Such Pact Concluded

Both Churchill and the British foreign office have said no such pact was concluded. Petain today avoided saying that it had been, but he told the court commissioners that he "gave instruction" for its negotiation and that it was "being negotiated" at the time he met Hitler at Montoire.

He told the commission, which is questioning him at Montrouge fortress, that he could not disclose the details of the pact even in his own defense unless Britain consented.

[Official British quarters in London admitted that Churchill was in communication with Petain at the time specified by the marshal, trying to learn anything he could about the Vichy government, but added that "any suggestion that any undertaking or treaty was signed is untrue."]

Contrary to Diplomacy

"I regard it to be contrary to diplomatic practice that it should be me who furnishes information concerning this treaty as long as the British government has not given its consent," Petain said.

The marshal's followers have said that he has documentary evidence of the negotiations which he said today "gives to the Montoire meeting its real character." He said he had been guided by the treaty "even when the British seemed to deviate from it."

He defended the sabotage destruction of the French fleet at Toulon as "an inevitable sacrifice and a national mourning," and contended that even if he had ordered the fleet to slip port and go to North Africa the order would have been impossible to execute.

Blames Laval

Petain blamed Pierre Laval, the Vichy chief of government, for the misdeeds of La Milice, the French police force organized to work with the Gestapo in France.

Two hours and 15 minutes of questioning in the anteroom of his single chamber at the fortress just outside Paris brought the marshal's pre-trial interrogation nearly to an end. He probably will have his last long session with the court commission on Monday and his treason trial is expected to start June 28.

HUGE WELCOME FOR DOOLITTLE, PATTON TODAY

Los Angeles, Cal., June 8 (AP)—"Welcome home" banners fluttered over Los Angeles streets tonight and a final dress rehearsal was staged in preparation for the arrival tomorrow of two of California's famous native son heroes, Gen. Patton and Gen. Doolittle.

Traveling from the east in a fleet of Skymaster transports, the generals, their staffs, and veteran enlisted men from the European battlefields are due at Municipal airport in early afternoon.

The crowd is expected to approach the million mark along the parade route downtown.

Asserts Japs Can Take It

Denver, Colo., June 8 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Doolittle, commander of the United States 8th air force, declared tonight the length of the war in the Pacific depends on "the Japs' ability to take it." And, he added grimly, "they've taken it very well to date."

Doolittle and Gen. Patton, commander of the United States 3d army, stopped in Denver over night on their way by air to Los Angeles. Thousands banked Denver's downtown streets as they rode from nearby Buckley field to their hotel.

SIX MEN SEIZED FOR QUESTIONING IN $100,000 FRAUD

Six men were held yesterday by police for questioning in connection with the operations of a ring accused of obtaining more than $100,000 in the last year by selling subscriptions and advertisments in magazines — many of which are nonexistent.

Capt. Kysan Phelan of the East Chicago avenue police station said five of the men had admitted police records, and the sixth admitted he was an ex-convict. Two other men implicated, but who deny knowledge of the confidence ring, also are held.

The five named by Capt. Phelan are Charles Day, 49, of 347 N. Clark st.; John Quinn, 58, of 537 N. Clark st.; Frank Page, 41, of 4363 Kenmore av.; James Ryan, 59, of 1112 N. Dearborn st., and William Kyle, 52, of 1244 N. Dearborn st.

The arrests were revealed yesterday after police raided a tavern at 501 N. State st., owned by Peter Mechipor, 53, and seized a list of "prospects," a box of rubber stamps, and many types of receipt books.

Investigation of the alleged racket was begun by the sheriff's office Tuesday and continued by the police yesterday.

BRITISH POLICE SEIZE LUBLIN PRESS CHIEF; HAND HIM TO POLES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 8—Dr. Jan Jago Dzinski, head of the London bureau of "Polpress," the Polish Lublin government news agency, was arrested by city of London police at his Fleet st. office today and handed over to the Polish military police on a charge of desertion from the Polish army. He faces court martial, with a possible one to 15 year prison sentence.

Besides being chief of Polpress in London, Jago Dzinski was one of the editors of the Slavonic Review, which printed articles favorable to the Lublin government. The Review reached Polish prisoners and slave workers in repatriation camps in Germany.

The belief that Jago Dzinski's connection with the Review was the real reason for his arrest was expressed by Julius Katz-Suchy, editor of Polpress. He pointed out that Jago Dzinski could have been charged with desertion any time in the last eight months and claimed that the Polish government in London had shown itself uneasy regarding the circulation of the Slavonic Review among Poles in Germany.

Jago Dzinski was arrested and handed over to the London Polish government without the knowledge of the British foreign office or the home office, it was stated by an authoritative source.

LIBERTY THRIVES ON FREE PRESS, SENATOR FINDS

CAIRO, Egypt, June 8 (AP)—United States Sen. Hawkes [R., N. J.], member of a congressional committee studying world communications, said today that "liberty is almost in direct proportion to freedom of the press, and freedom of the press is in almost direct proportion to communications."

The senator asserted the United States must negotiate for itself an equitable communications arrangement with other nations. There must be equalization of rates and the opportunity to transmit viewpoints around the world, Hawkes added.

The committee will return to the United States on June 18 and report to President Truman.

YANKS ARREST GRANDSON OF QUEEN VICTORIA

LONDON, June 8 [Reuters]—United States forces have arrested SS Obergruppenfuehrer Edward, duke of Saxe-Coburg, a grandson of Britain's late Queen Victoria, radio Luxemburg reported tonight.

[Karl Edward, duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, aged 61, was born in England, his father being the duke of Albany, Queen Victoria's youngest son. He was educated at Eton and went to Germany in 1900 succeeding his uncle as duke of Saxe-Coburg. He often visited London before the war. Edward is related by marriage to the royal families of Belgium, Romania, Sweden, and Spain. He represented the German Red Cross for many years.]

Walter Stepp, president of the Munich court of appeal and a close collaborator of "Hangman" Reinhardt Heydrich, who was slain by Czech patriots, has been arrested, radio Luxemburg said.

French Judge Gets Life

PARIS, June 8 [Reuters] — A French judge tonight was sentenced to life imprisonment on a charge of intelligence with the enemy.

One of five French judges tried today—the first purge trial in which judges have appeared in the dock, he is Michel Benon, 58 year old former president of the magistrates court.

Three other judges were also sentenced. Leon Guyenot, former prosecutor of the Supreme court was sentenced to 10 years, while Paul Larrice received a four years term and Maurice Cottin two years.

The fifth judge, Robert Baffos, was acquitted.

The specific accusation against them was of having agreed to serve in a special court set up by Pierre Pucheu, Vichy minister of the interior, to condemn to death on the orders of the Germans six persons brought to trial in reprisal for the murder of a German petty officer.

Putzi No War Criminal

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—Home Secretary Donald Somervell told commons today that Ernst [Putzi] Hanfstaengel, once Hitler's piano pounding press chief, was not listed as a war criminal. He said the Harvard educated Hanfstaengel would remain in custody on the Isle of Man until he could be repatriated to Germany.

HOPKINS VISITS BERLIN ON WAY HOME, REDS SAY

LONDON, June 9 [Saturday]—(AP)—A Tass dispatch from Berlin broadcast by the Moscow radio said today that Harry Hopkins and his wife spent several hours in the German capital Thursday. Hopkins, special representative of President Truman, has been in Moscow for conferences with Marshal Stalin.

The Hopkins plane landed at the Tempelhof airdrome, where the travelers were welcomed by soviet officials, the broadcast added. Hopkins visited the reichstag and the reichschancellery, where he went down into the subterranean refuge used by the Nazis during the battle of Berlin, the broadcast said.

Tass reported that Hopkins visited also the central part of Berlin, including the Tiergarten and the Brandenburg gate.

REPORT TITO AGREES TO QUIT TRIESTE AREA

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—Diplomatic sources close to the British foreign office said tonight that an agreement would be signed with Marshal Tito tomorrow bringing Trieste and all communications between Trieste and Austria "definitely under an Anglo-American military government."

This agreement, the source said, is expected to "terminate in a very satisfactory manner a dispute which at one time was very threatening and critical."

It was indicated the accord would result in Yugoslav troops leaving the Adriatic port.

Field Marsal Alexander, allied commander in chief in the Mediterranean, at the height of the controversy accused Tito of acting like Hitler in attempting to occupy the port. The British and Americans have contended that the area should be occupied by the western allies pending a peace settlement determining final disposition of the territory, which is claimed both by Italy and Yugoslavia.

Deny Yugoslav Queen Gives Birth to Son

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—The Yugoslav legation officially denied today a report that Queen Alexandra, wife of King Peter of Yugoslavia, gave birth to a son at their home in Sunningdale last night. The London Daily Sketch had reported the birth of a boy last night, but the British Press association said it had learned that "the birth of Queen Alexandra's baby is not expected in the immediate future."

60 U. S. DIVISIONS TO BRITAIN'S 19 ON WEST FRONT

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 8—War Secretary Stimson today officially disclosed that the United States supplied more than 75 per cent of the Anglo-American forces employed in the invasion of Europe.

He told his news conference America supplied 60 divisions—3 airborne, 15 armored, and 42 infantry. There were 19 British divisions—14 from the United Kingdom and five from Canada. Other empire components did not send troops to France.

The release of the official figures disclosed that the British did not live up to their pledge to supply 27 per cent of the invasion army, as disclosed Dec. 25, 1943 by Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.].

Sen. Johnson, a member of the senate military affairs committee, at that time said he had been informed the United States would supply 73 per cent of the invasion forces and Great Britain 27 per cent. The British share was to be five Canadian divisions and 22 from the United Kingdom.

Statement Was Ridiculed

Altho the senator's disclosure was widely ridiculed and assailed by interventionists, it was never denied officially. The only official comment on the senator's revelation was that of Gen. Marshall, who said Britain would provide every bit of help that she could.

Today the senator noted that while Canada kept its pledge, the United Kingdom fell eight divisions short of its promise of 22 divisions. He also said the United States gave a larger contribution to the invasion forces than the divisional strength would indicate, because America had vast numbers of replacement troops in France.

The 60 American divisions came from a population of about 135 millions and the five Canadian divisions from a population of 11½ millions. The United Kingdom's 14 divisions came from a population of 42 millions.

The United States provided one division for each 2¼ million of population, while Britain and Canada combined supplied one for each 2,815,789 population. On a percentage basis, the United States sent .00666 of her total citizens into the combat forces, while the British plus Canadian force equaled .00527 of population. A recent dispatch from Paris said the preponderance of American strength was even greater than these figures indicate. This dispatch said American divisions were at full strength of 16,000 men to each infantry division, while the European divisions were 10,000 each.

19 Divisions in All

The British empire, which has a total white population of 76 millions and some 500 million subject peoples, contributed the 19 divisions in France from the United Kingdom and Canada.

Neither Canada, Australia, nor South Africa conscripted for unlimited service. Canada, which experienced riots over conscription for European service, made a greater contribution than the United Kingdom. However, this contribution kept Canada from sending troops to the Pacific where her western provinces faced as much danger as the American west coast.

Australian troops did participate in the middle east in the early days of the war, but were recalled when Japan entered the conflict. Since that time they have been confined, except for volunteers, to a rigidly defined area. South African troops are limited to action in Africa.

At the time Sen. Johnson's disclosure of the 73-27 proportion, there was some senate agitation for 50-50 participation by the United States and the British empire in the then impending invasion.

The American and the British chiefs of staff quieted this by the announcement that the ratio of the invasion forces had been fixed. They refused to disclose the ratio on the ground that such information was "a military secret."

Stimson also disclosed there were 11 French and one Polish division in France to bring the total allied divisional strength to 91. He said there were seven divisions of American troops in Italy, but did not give the strength of British and Polish troops in that war theater.

OVERSEA DUTY TERM OF BRITISH SOLDIERS CUT; NEW FURLOUGHS

LONDON, June 8 [Reuters]—James Grigg, British minister of war, announced in the house of commons today a reduction in the period of overseas service required of British soldiers.

In the war on Japan the period is reduced from four years nine months to three years four months, and elsewhere from four years nine months to four years. The latter includes the British army on the European continent.

Griggs said that no man, regardless of length of service, who had fought in western Europe or the Mediterranean theater, would be sent for a further spell of duty in the Western Pacific unless he first had 28 days leave in the United Kingdom. Heavy bombers and road transport across France will bring the men back from Mediterranean theaters under the short leave scheme. By the end of July it is expected an average of 1,000 a week will be dispatched to the Pacific.

BRITISH AND U. S. ARMY TO RECEIVE DANISH FOOD

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 8 (AP)—Nearly 7,000 tons of foodstuffs, including 4,400 tons of butter, 1,000 tons of bacon and 1,500 tons of eggs, will be shipped from Danish ports next week to London and Antwerp. The British ministry of food and the American army will be the recipients of the 10 shiploads.

Denmark to Cut Ration

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 8—Denmark, producing sufficient food to feed at least 20 million persons, now is preparing to cut its own food rations. It was reliably learned that England aims to equalize rations in western Europe, basing them on the present rationing in England.

In spite of five years of occupation, Denmark has succeeded in maintaining higher rations than most countries, but is quite prepared to accept a cut in butter, bread, sugar and meat in order to help countries threatened with famine. Supplies now available, however, are negligible compared with what Denmark would be able to export if much-needed cattle fodder could be imported.

HOUSE DEBATE ON FEPC TURNS INTO NEAR FIGHT

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—Tempers waxed hot today as the house debated the future of the fair employment practices committee.

Once a house attendant had to step between Rep. Marcantonio [A. L., N. Y.] and Rep. Chelf [D., Ky.] as they moved threateningly toward one another during an argument over action of the rules committee in blocking consideration of temporary funds for FEPC.

An attempt today to provide temporary funds for the FEPC by writing them into the war agencies bill was defeated when Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.] made a point of order against the move and knocked it out on a parliamentary rule.

The FEPC was set up by President Roosevelt to prevent discrimination in employment because of race, creed, or color.

FRENCH OPPOSE TRUMAN ON 'BIG FIVE' MEETING

PARIS, June 8 (AP)—An official French source said today that France would stand firm for a "Big Five" conference to thresh out all post-war problems in the middle east, despite President Truman's statement to the American press yesterday that he did not favor such a meeting.

"Middle east affairs should be discussed by all interested parties," the French spokesman maintained, "and that means including Russia and China. The Syrian matter cannot be a matter for arbitration by America, Britain, and France."

The French spokesman said that Truman's statement hardly could be considered an official statement from one government to another.

Communications were reported passing rapidly between Paris, London, and Washington on the subject.

REPORT LEBANON NEAR OUTBREAK AGAINST FRENCH

BEIRUT, Lebanon, June 8 (AP)—Expressions against the French were mounting today in Lebanon as reports filtered thru to the Lebanese public of the loss of life and property in the sister state of Syria during last week's fighting.

The national Lebanese congress, an all-party, all-religious organization formed here when the French arrested the Lebanese president in 1943, has protested to the government against a French withdrawal from Syria to Lebanon.

A new strike was expected here momentarily.

"The situation here is definitely strained and trouble could start any time over very little," a report said.

Inherits Fortune

MRS. GEORGETTE MORAN

Mrs. Georgette Moran, 45, World War I. widow, who was left "in excess of $100,000" by her fiance, Henry W. Wehr, 72, steel magnate, will have no trouble collecting the inheritance, attorneys said yesterday.

The will, which stated that any one who contested it would be cut off with $1, was admitted to probate without objection and therefore under Wisconsin law cannot be contested, it was explained. The will was filed in Milwaukee where Wehr was chairman of the board of the Wehr Steel company.

Wehr's brothers, C. Frederick and Edward R., as well as his sister, Mrs. Louise W. Falk, all of Milwaukee, signed waivers of publication which permitted probate of the will without public notice.

Mrs. Moran, manager of a cosmetics shop in the loop, yesterday indicated that she might retire from business and travel abroad.

BRADLEY TELLS HOW 'BEST ARMY' BEAT GERMANY

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—Gen. Omar Bradley today said German officers were outsmarted and their men beaten by an American army that was "the best trained and equipped army any nation ever put in the field." He expects to return to Europe next week.

The commander of the million man 12th army corps gave his appraisal of the European operations at a news conference with Secretary of War Stimson.

On two major operations, the German general staff was fooled, he asserted.

They expected Patton to swing toward the British before he hit the Rhine and he swung in the opposite direction. The Ruhr was encircled, with a bag of 317,000 prisoners, when the Germans expected a dash straight to Berlin.

"We never intended to go to Berlin," Bradley said.

NAVY CASUALTY TOTAL UP 3,347 OVER LAST WEEK

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—Combat casualties for the armed forces rose today to 1,012,049, including 895,834 for the army in all theaters thru V-E day.

The aggregate, an increase of 9,162 over last week's report, included 230,173 killed, 613,611 wounded, 57,452 missing, and 110,813 taken prisoner.

The navy accounted for 116,215 of the total and for 3,347 of the week's increase, reflecting the heavier fighting in which the navy has been engaged in the Pacific.

Secretary of War Stimson told a news conference the army report represented a compilation of all names received in Washington thru May 30 and covered actual fighting thru the early part of May. An aid explained later that this took in the cessation of hostilities against Germany.

RESERVE OFFICER FORCE OF 400,000 SOUGHT BY ARMY

Fully Manned Units Included in Plan

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—A post-war reserve officer force of 400,000, capable of staffing an army of 4 million men, is part of the army's projected peace time setup.

This was disclosed tonight in an interview by Brig. Gen. E. A. Evans, who headed a war department committee which drafted a post-war program for reserve officers. Evans was released from the army three weeks ago to become secretary of the Reserve Officers' association, reactivated, to support the program.

The plan calls for about four times as many reserve officers as there were before the outbreak of hostilities. They would be obtained from the officer ranks of the existing army, from the reserve officer training corps, the national guard and officer candidate schools. Certain specialists, such as clergymen and physicians, also would be commissioned regardless of military training.

Fully Manned Units

Unlike the pre-war setup in which the reserve officers were assigned to skeleton units—those without enlisted personnel—the post-war plan provides for a number of reserve organizations fully manned by officers and enlisted men.

These organizations, kept in training with weekly drills and summer encampments, could be mobilized immediately, Evans said, in the event of an attack on this nation. Along with the regular army and the national guard, he explained, these organizations would form an effective "neutralizing" force until a larger army could be put into the field.

In addition to these fully staffed reserve organizations, the plan provides for two other types: [1] Units which have part of the regular strength of enlisted personnel and [2] units similar to the pre-war organizations in which there was a staff of officers but no enlisted personnel.

Train in Armories

Evans said the complete units would be trained in armories and the men paid—as the national guard is paid—for weekly drills.

Evans acknowledged that before the key parts of the plan can become effective, congress must provide for universal military training—the reservoir from which the enlisted reserve personnel would be drawn.

"Without the [universal training] law," he said, "we would have to depend upon a voluntary system and that would not be very satisfactory."

2 JUDGES DECIDE WARD'S IS DOING WAR PRODUCTION

Defining Word Requires One-Third of Opinion

More than one-third of the 23 page opinion in which Judges Evan A. Evans and Otto Kerner of the Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday upheld government seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co. properties was devoted to establishing that the word "production" as used in the war labor disputes act applies to the business of the mail order house.

The decision recited the background of the war labor disputes act and the history of Ward's strife with the war labor board. The case came to the Circuit Court of Appeals on the government's appeal from Federal District Judge Philip L. Sullivan's ruling in favor of Ward's.

Nature of Case Described

The case was described as a "declaratory judgment suit" in which "the United States seeks to establish the legality of the Presidential order of seizure of several of Ward's retail properties and to enjoin interference with its possession thereof."

The government's demand for an injunction, the opinion stated, was predicated on two grounds which the opinion described as:

"A. The seizure was a valid exercise of the President's constitutional power as commander in chief of the army and navy, a power implied from his obligation to prosecute the war to a successful end.

"B. The seizure is authorized by the war labor disputes act inasmuch as the labor disputes here involved threatened to interfere with the successful prosecution of the war as found in the President's executive order. The language of the war labor disputes act discloses an intent to cover businesses such as the one operated by Ward's."

Ward's Position Outlined

Ward's contentions were stated in the opinion as:

"A. The President has no power as commander in chief to seize Ward's property, his power as commander in chief being strictly military in character, and is governed by the decisions which require protection against unreasonable searches and seizures under the fourth and fifth amendments.

"B. Congress did not grant the power to seize such plants as Ward's by section 3 of the war labor disputes act, which amends section 9 of the selective service training and service act of 1940, even tho such power exists to seize certain plants, the operation of which is threatened by labor disputes and the employer of which refuses to obey the directives of the war labor board.

"Ward's argues properties equipped only for the distribution of general merchandise for sale at retail are not properties for the manufacture, production, or mining of articles or materials useful in the war effort within the meaning of section 3."

Court's Inquiry Confined

Only the second point raised by each side was ruled on by the Circuit court. On the question of the President's power as commander in chief, the majority opinion said: "The Supreme court has twice nearly answered" it. The opinion said the Circuit court decided to confine its inquiry and decision to the authority of the President in the light of the war disputes act "inasmuch as the government's position is vindicated on this ground" and "it would avail nothing if we should adopt an added reason for the same conclusion."

Introducing discussion of the meaning of "production," the opinion stated:

"The controling legal question on one phase of this case is a narrow one: Did congress intend to invest the President with the power to seize a general retail department and mail order business when it provided for the seizure of 'any plant, mine, or facility equipped for the manufacture, production, or mining of any articles or materials which may be required for the war effort or which may be useful in connection therewith?'

Narrows Down to Word

"Even more narrowly that issue might be put: does the word 'production' comprehend 'distribution'?

"The meaning of the word 'production' as used in this statute is the immediate subject of our inquiry. It is the focal point around which this legal battle revolves. Obviously, it is a term of rather broad and comprehensive meaning. As such words usually are, it is of elastic meaning. It and the associate word 'produce' take an entire page in the Oxford dictionary to define and illustrate their meaning.

"Counsel have earnestly and ably endeavored to enlighten and instruct as to the proper scope of this word, as used both in common speech and in legal documents. That we must define it, as it is used in this statute and with an existing war background and recognize the obvious purpose of the enactment, is hardly debatable."

The definition accepted by Judges Evans and Kerner is given in the fair labor standards act and was stated as follows: "'Produced' means produced, manufactured, mined, handled or in any other manner worked on. . . ."

Incidental Operations Included

The opinion quoted the Supreme court as holding, in Western Union vs. Lenroot: "We are clear that 'handled' or 'worked on' includes every kind of incidental operation preparatory to putting the goods into the stream of commerce."

Five authorities were cited by the two judges to support their acceptance of the definition in one act as proper to interpret another law. The opinion continued:

"We have, then, a congressional definition of the word which we are asked to define in another congressional act. Our acceptance of it necessarily follows unless a contrary intention may be found in a later statute. It is possible that congress might have given a different meaning to the same word in the same statute or in statutes which are pari materia [on the same subject], but a rather heavy load rests on him who would give different meanings to the same word or the same phrase when used a plurality of times in the same act or in acts which are in pari materia with each other.

"Courts permit parties to a contract to be their own lexicographers, but two different meanings to the same word will not be indulged in when the contract is before the court for construction."

The two judges also considered war time conditions, stating: "The construction of war time legislation has frequently been the subject of judicial decision." They quoted from Sutherland on Statutory Construction: ". . . and it has not been uncommon for the courts to recognize that a statute may have a different meaning in time of war than it does have in time of peace."

Ward's Denial "Inconsistent"

From the fair labor standards act, the judges also took the view that the meaning given "production" included "transportation" and they declared that "Ward's own action was a recognition of the applicability of this act. "In 'tens of thousands' of applications for priorities requiring transportation, the company 'recognized its close relationship to and its participation in the war effort,' the opinion stated.

"It is hardly consistent for Ward's to deny it was engaged in production after securing priorities on the basis of the fact its 'merchandise is to be shipped directly from the producer to men engaged in local defense plants'" said the opinion.

Summing up their findings, Judge Evans and Kerner said:

"Our conclusion is that the definition of the word 'production' in the fair labor standards act controls us in the definition of the same word in this [the war labor disputes] act.

"We are also persuaded that even tho the definition of the word 'production' in the fair labor standards act did not determine the question, we could not exempt Ward's business, its plants and facilities from the adjustment of its labor disputes by the board during this war. For without the aid of this statute or any court's decision elucidating it, the query naturally arises and must be answered: 'What definition of the word "production" could otherwise be given when it is used in addition to the word manufacture?'

Farmers' Status Discussed

"Who are engaged in production after excluding those engaged in manufacture?

"One answer might be farmers. But if the farmers were represented by counsel, could they not say, 'We farmers do not produce. Nature produces the crops. Farmers are mere instrumentalities who help, but they do not produce?'

"If their contention be overruled, as it promptly would be, may they not be heard to say that farming activities call for hauling of mineral fertilizer and limestone to the farm to strengthen the soil and remove acidity, and in so doing farmers are not engaged in production? Or if after the crops are harvested and the hogs are fattened and the cattle and sheep are made for market, the farmer takes his truck and hauls them to the packing plant, would he cease to be a producer when so engaged?

Production Given Broad Sense

"Or if instead of hauling the live stock to market himself or the fertilizers to the farm he hires a trucker, what is the trucker? And what of the tractors and trucks and other farm machinery used on the farm and what of those who make, sell, and deliver this machinery to the farmers? Are they not all engaged in production in the broad sense used in this statute?

"Billing and packing, selling and delivering tires, tractors, and trucks are quite as closely related to production as hauling the fertilizers to the farms. . . ."

The opinion cited affidavits by numerous government agencies that Ward's refusal to obey labor board directives was a serious threat to the war effort. The judges then declared that even without their legal definition of production, they would hold Ward's subject to the disputes act.

Applies Without Definition

"Considering the nature of the [disputes] act, its purposes and the background therefor, we conclude that without the aid of the definition found in the fair labor standards act, we must and do hold that the [disputes] act applies to Wards," the judges stated.

"We would go further and say that the thousands of boys and girls who gather waste paper are engaged in production within the meaning of this statute. Also the thousands of bond salesmen and women engaged in selling United States war bonds so that the proceeds may be used to pay workers and to buy materials for the army, are engaged in production work. Any other conclusion would ignore the entire congressional plan for the conduct of this war, which includes participation, sacrifices, and contributions by all citizens."

Beaten to Death

MRS. MILDRED VIAUD
[Acme Telephoto]

Union City, N. J., June 8 (AP)—Mildred S. Viaud, 17, bride of George Viaud, a navy man stationed in San Francisco, Cal., was found battered to death in her two room apartment here early today.

Dr. William Eckert, police surgeon, said death apparently was caused by strangulation and beating with some undetermined instrument, and probably had occurred 12 hours before her body was discovered.

Deputy Police Chief Edward Mescall said that no weapon was found and that there was a possibility the girl had been slain elsewhere and her body carried to her home. The body was discovered at 1 a. m. today after neighbors asked police to investigate the apartment. Mescall would not explain why their suspicions were aroused.

WIDOW OF SLAIN AMERICAN TELLS OF JUNGLE TREK

A tale of danger and privation for 27 months in the jungles of Panay, climaxed with the beheading of her husband by the Japanese, was told here yesterday by Mrs. Margit King of 2882 N. Clark st.

Lt. Albert W. King Jr.

A slender woman who withstood starvation, disease, and great grief after her husband, Lt. Albert W. King Jr., was beheaded with 16 American citizens, including 11 Baptist missionaries, Mrs. King was rescued from Panay with her 3½ year old son by an American submarine.

Decide to Flee to Jungles

"After the first bombing of Iloilo, which is the main city of Panay, on Dec. 18, 1941, my husband and I decided not to surrender to the Japanese but to make for the jungles," she explained yesterday. "My husband, a salesman for the Goodyear Rubber company, managed to get 25 sacks of rice, four sacks of salt, and two sacks of sugar. With these and our clothes and our few tools, we managed to barter with the natives for food and transportation.

"We got deeper and deeper into the jungle living on wild pig, fish, lizards, bamboo shoots, ferns, birds, and wildcats. We watched the monkeys to see what growing things were poisonous. We managed to get along with the natives, altho many of them were afraid to have anything to do with us for fear of being killed by the Japanese."

Husband Joins Guerrillas

After 18 months of this primitive life, King heard that the American army forces were still holding out in the hills under a famous guerrilla leader. He made his way over 40 miles to the headquarters and was commissioned a second lieutenant.

"We never starved while my husband was with us but when he went in the army, there were days when little Guy Gilbert and I didn't have any food," Mrs. King related. "A Spanish-Filipino doctor who had been friendly to us when my husband was with us, turned on us and prevented the natives from giving us any food. He even took my rifle away from me and I think that he was the one who betrayed my husband to the Japanese."

During this period of hazard and hardship, Mrs. King suffered from typhoid fever, tropical ulcers, and abscessed teeth. Her son developed rickets.

Tortured for 13 Days

While returning from a special mission and on his way to seek out his wife and son, Lt. King was ambushed and captured by the Japanese, his wife learned from natives. He was tortured for 13 days and finally brought to the mission settlement near the village of Topaz in Capiz province where he was beheaded with the others.

Two months later, Mrs. King was rescued by the army and taken to the coast where she boarded the American submarine with 58 other American citizens. She and her son were treated in a hospital in Brisbane, Australia, and landed at San Francisco. Thru the Red Cross she located her father-in-law, Albert W. King Sr., a chemical engineer, of 1345½ Touhy av., Chicago, and came here. She supports herself and her son with free lance art work and designing.

BRITISH SLASH WAR SPENDING $6,000,000 A DAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 8—Britain's expenditures on military services have declined $6,060,000 a day since January, the house of commons was informed today. Chancellor of the Exchequer John Anderson, who asked and received the house's approval of an appropriation of $7,070,000,000 for war expenses until the end of June, said that the country at present is spending an average of $50,000,000 daily, of which $44,000,000 goes for the fighting and supply services. Over-all spendings have declined about $8,080,000 a day.

COL. JAKE ARVEY HOME; BELIEVES VICTORY IS NEAR

Lt. Col. Jacob M. [Jake] Arvey, former alderman and political leader in the 24th ward, returned home yesterday after four years' service in the army, most of that time in the Pacific war areas. He expects a discharge from active service within a few weeks.

Col. Arvey said it was his opinion that the Japs will give up soon and are looking around for an excuse to "save face." He added, however, that his opinion was not held generally by army officers.

The former alderman, who has been serving as judge advocate with the 33d division, said that he was slated for a higher appointment in the Pacific theater, but did not accept it because it meant being severed from the 33d division.

"I left with my buddies in this division at the start of the war and I did not want to lose my association with them," he added. He said that the division went into action in the Philippines last February and has displayed untold heroism in all its battles with the Japs.

YALTA PROPOSAL TO GIVE KOREA TO REDS DENIED

Washington, June 8 [Special]—Reports of a secret understanding made at Yalta with the Russians whereby they would obtain Korea and other concessions for their entry in the Pacific war were denied today by Acting Secretary of State Grew.

Grew said no agreement was made at Yalta altering the policy on Korea announced in the Cairo declaration, and issued a statement reaffirming American sympathy with Korea's aspirations for independence and explaining why the Korean government had not been admitted to the security conference in San Francisco.

Recalling that the Cairo declaration said China, the United States, and Britain "are determined that in due course Korea shall become free and independent," Grew said there has been no change in this government's policy since that time.

With reference to the claims of the Korean provisional government at Chungking to recognition and admission to the San Francisco conference, Grew said the allied nations represented there all have legally constituted governing authorities, whereas the Korean provisional government lacks the qualifications requisite for recognition.

HINT HOPKINS HAS FACTS ON MISSING POLES

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—Acting Secretary of State Grew hinted today that Harry Hopkins, special emissary to Moscow, may bring back information on what happened to 16 arrested Polish leaders.

Asked at a news conference today if the state department had received any reply from Russia to its request for information on the 16 Poles, Grew answered that he would prefer to wait until Hopkins makes his report to President Truman before saying anything.

The case of the 16 missing Poles has been a thorn in the side of Russo-American diplomats working toward an agreement to broaden the Warsaw provisional government in line with the Yalta agreement by the Big Three.

After the Polish leaders, most of whom had served with the Polish underground against the Nazis, had gone to Moscow the soviet government announced they had been arrested and charged with "diversionary activities" behind Red army lines.

GUN CARRIER PUT ON PROBATION

Alfred D. Barksdale, 39, Negro, was placed on six months' probation yesterday by Judge Francis Borrelli on a charge of carrying a revolver in his car. Barksdale pleaded he needed the gun in his job as a night watchman but admitted he had no license to carry the gun.

Romulo Seeks Inclusion of Independence Goal

use conference spurted ahead today. A dozen committees were turning out sections of the peace league charter and a plenary session of the commission on social and economic coöperation was called for Monday.

Conference leaders are trying to wind up the 50 nation convention within two weeks. President Truman is to attend the final session, witness the signing of the charter, and in an address broadcast to the world formally launch the peace ship.

The veto issue is far from buried. The small countries are preparing to go into action tomorrow in an effort to knock out entirely the privilege of a great power to veto peaceful settlement of a dispute to which it is not a party. Their chances of success, however, are not good. The agreement with Russia whereby the veto shall not apply to free discussion of a dispute by the peace league's security council and full hearing of the parties to it has weakened the case of those who would abolish the veto entirely in peaceful settlements.

Yalta Compromise

The big five have decided to write the voting procedure with its veto provisions into the charter exactly as agreed to in the Roosevelt compromise at Yalta. The agreement reached with Russia yesterday exempting discussion and hearing of disputes from the right of veto will be incorporated in the official records instead of being written into the voting procedure as an amendment and thus giving the Russians reason to say the Yalta voting agreement had been changed by the very powers accusing the Russians of disregarding the Yalta agreement on Poland.

The text of the agreed interpretation disclosed that Moscow had gained the acceptance of a provision that may be used to apply the veto power in an indirect way to the peaceful settlement of international disputes. It is regarded by some delegates as a "joker" in the final agreement.

Yalta Compromise

Under the terms of the Big Five agreement, as under the Yalta compromise on voting procedure, the veto privilege of a major power does not apply to questions of procedure in the league's security council. But the Russians got a paragraph included in the agreement yesterday whereby the veto does apply in deciding whether a matter is procedural.

Thus, the parliamentary situation might be such that a motion to adjourn the security council would be affected with an importance far greater than procedural. Russia or any other of the Big Five could veto a decision that the motion was procedural. What would happen then has everybody guessing.

Concurring Votes

Admitting that the veto, while not applying to procedure, would apply to a decision of what is procedure, the Big Five agreement says that "It will be unlikely that there will arise in the future any matters of great importance on which a decision will have to be made as to whether a procedural vote would apply. Should, however, such a matter arise, the decision regarding the preliminary question as to whether or not such a matter is procedural must be taken by a vote of seven members of the security council, including the concurring votes of the permanent members."

The agreement enumerates procedural matters not subject to a single big power veto.

"The council," says the agreement, "will, by a vote of any seven of its members, adopt or alter its rules of procedure; determine the method of selecting its president; organize itself in such a way as to be able to function continuously; select the times and places of its regular and special meetings; establish such bodies or agencies as it may deem necessary for the performance of its functions; invite a member of the organization not represented on the council to participate in its discussions when that member's interests are specially affected; and, invite any state when it is a party to a dispute being considered by the council to participate in the discussion relating to that dispute."

Veto on Secretary

The election of the secretary general, the league's chief administration office, would, however, be subject to a major power veto.

The agreement states that "no individual member of the council can alone prevent consideration and discussion by the council of a dispute or situation brought to its attention" under the provisions for peaceful settlements. Nor can a veto prevent a hearing by the council of the parties to the dispute. Nor can a veto "prevent any member of the council from reminding the members of the organization of their general obligations assumed under the charter" to settle disputes peacefully.

The veto will apply, however, to decisions to invoke economic sanctions or use of force against a nation accused of aggression or other breach of the peace.

The agreement winds up by pointing out that it is not only one of the Big Five that will have the veto power. It will also be possible for five of the six small nations in the 11 member council to exercise a veto under the same circumstances as a major power.

"It is not to be assumed, however," concludes the agreement, "that the permanent members [the Big Five], any more than nonpermanent members [the little nations] would use their 'veto' power wilfully to obstruct the operation of the council."

The committee on the international court of justice approved a proposition by the Iranian delegation that the conference recommend that member nations sign a declaration submitting themselves to compulsory jurisdiction by the international court.

The committee also added a provision to the charter which obligates parties to a dispute to abide by the decisions of the court, and a further provision that if a nation refuses to carry out the decisions of the court, the security council may "consider" measures of enforcement.

THE QUESTION

What has been your most unforgettable radio performance?

WHERE ASKED

W-G-N studios.

THE ANSWERS

Holland Engle, 7655 Sheridan rd.—It was in a news broadcast. I was supposed to say: "Crack Jap shock troops established a beachhead." [Try and say it fast.] Instead I said: "Crap jack shop troops—'er shap track shop troops—I mean schick trap shot soups." I finally ended up by saying: "A bunch of Japs established a beachhead."

Bill Anson, 5000 Cornell av.—I had 15 minutes to get to W-G-N. Just as I approached the Michigan av. bridge from the south, it went up. I ducked under the guard rail and I ran. I arrived in time for the program but was so out of breath I had to lie on the floor while some one else took over.

Tom Cafferty, 6575 Lakewood av.—While in Salt Lake City I was handling announcing for the Camel Caravan show. I was working with a traveling microphone—that is, I could walk all over the stage. I walked toward the audience to lead the applause and stepped into the orchestra pit.

Julane Pelletier, Eastgate hotel—After rehearsal for a 15 minute piano program I left the studio. I returned two or three minutes before the show was to go on the air. The announcer introduced me and to my chagrin I discovered that a piano tuner had removed the keyboard from the piano that I was to play.

Lewis James, 105 E. Delaware pl.—It happened on my first show in the W-G-N theater. In throwing the first cue to start the operations of the show I was nearer than I thought to the star actor. I poked my finger in his eye, making it impossible for him to read the script. The announcer had to step up and take his place.

Two-Ton Baker, 10215 Vernon av.—I was to sing "He's My Uncle" at a big Christmas party broadcast from the Chicago Stadium. As I stepped up to the microphone the orchestra leader looked at me with a blank expression and asked "What are you going to do?" They hadn't rehearsed and didn't know the music for my number.

VETERAN FINDS FLAWS IN WORLD SECURITY PLANS

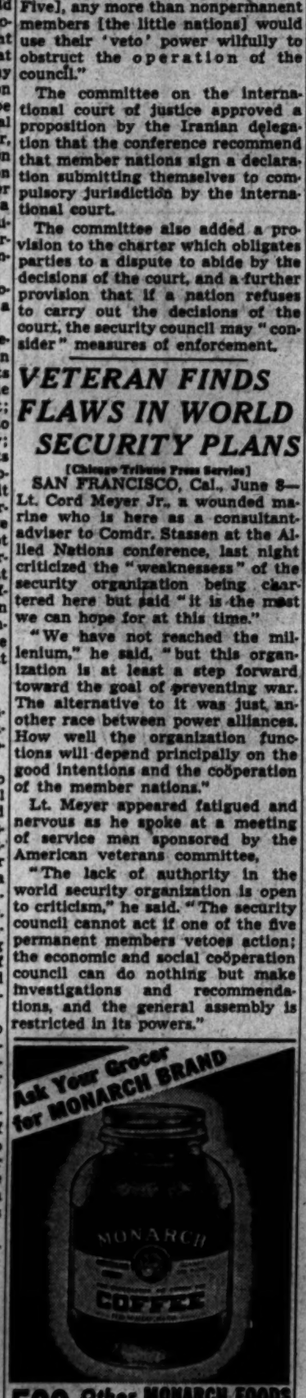
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 8—Lt. Cord Meyer Jr., a wounded marine who is here as a consultant-adviser to Comdr. Stassen at the Allied Nations conference, last night criticized the "weaknesses" of the security organization being chartered here but said "it is the most we can hope for at this time."

"We have not reached the millenium," he said, "but this organization is at least a step forward toward the goal of preventing war. The alternative to it was just another race between power alliances. How well the organization functions will depend principally on the good intentions and the coöperation of the member nations."

Lt. Meyer appeared fatigued and nervous as he spoke at a meeting of service men sponsored by the American veterans committee.

"The lack of authority in the world security organization is open to criticism," he said. "The security council cannot act if one of the five permanent members vetoes action; the economic and social coöperation council can do nothing but make investigations and recommendations, and the general assembly is restricted in its powers."



REVEAL CHETNIK CHIEF STILL HAS ARMY OF 160,000

BY FRANK HUGHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., June 8—Gen. Draja Mihailovich, former Yugoslav minister of war and commander of the Chetnik forces which fought the Germans from the beginning of the Yugoslav war, on April 6, 1941, and who opposes the communistic regime of Marshal Tito, has an army of 160,000 warriors, along with supporting forces, and holds the same areas of Yugoslavia he has held thruout the war, except for larger cities, it was disclosed here tonight.

Lazar L. Dropo, chairman of the United Serbian societies here, and representative of three American Serbian organizations, made the disclosure at a press conference where he read a communication from Gen. Mihailovich's headquarters in the Bosnian mountains received less than two weeks ago.

Recall Clark Remark

He also disclosed that Gen. Clark, American commander in Italy, declared in a recent interview in Chicago that Gen. Mihailovich "definitely helped the allies, the extent of which help will be correctly revealed later if he surrenders to the allies."

The communistic Partisan government of Marshal Tito, established in Yugoslavia by the Russian army, has branded Gen. Mihailovich a "war criminal" and charged that he helped the Germans instead of the allies. The Mihailovich radiogram, which reached San Francisco thru Dr. Topalovich, former Yugoslav minister of labor now in Italy, charges that Tito holds Yugoslavia only thru the occupation of that country by the Russian and Bulgarian armies, "particularly Bulgarian troops, which carried on a campaign of terror in Yugoslavia before Bulgaria's summary surrender."

"This unparalleled situation in which our country is turned over to six divisions of enemy Bulgarians to continue their campaign of terror over the Serbian peoples is unthinkable," the message said. "The united nations thus are committing one of their greatest errors and injustices which can ignite a new Balkan powder keg very soon.

No Formidable Force

"Tito has no formidable force in Yugoslavia once the Russian, Bulgarian, and other international terrorist non-citizens leave this country. Our people refuse to submit! Demonstrations are being organized with foreign masses under the threat of reprisals. Yugoslav war prisoners refuse to return to a country officially dominated by Tito."

The Serbians, who have made strong demonstrations against communist control of their country here, declare that Tito has suppressed all political liberty and has massacred and imprisoned his political opponents.

British Parliament Hit by 12 Bombs and 3 Shells

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 8—The houses of parliament were hit by 12 German bombs and three British anti-aircraft shells, it was disclosed tonight. Total casualties during the 1,224 alerts at the palace of Westminster were three killed and 15 injured. One of the anti-aircraft shells which landed on parliament damaged Big Ben, and another exploded in the royal court. The third plunged into the library of commons but did not explode.

Statement by

THE PEOPLES GAS LIGHT AND COKE COMPANY

The Company's labor contract with the Gas Workers' Union (A. F. of L.) for its current year has been under discussion for some weeks. During negotiations, the Union made the following demands, stating that if not accepted in full by the Company, the Union would call a strike vote. The Union has refused to submit its demands through the usual channels, namely, the National War Labor Board. The Union's demands are:

1—An all-union or closed shop.

2—A flat increase of 25¢ an hour.

This has already been denied by the War Labor Board as the general increases heretofore granted have been the maximum permitted under the Little Steel Formula.

3—Inclusion in the Union contract of the Company's Pension Plan and an increase therein; its Sickness Benefit Plan; and its Gift Life Insurance Plan.

These three plans have been in effect for many years, and their cost has always been borne entirely by the Company and without any financial contributions by the employes.

The Company has declined to accede to these demands as proposed by the Union, but has at all times been willing to submit labor disputes through the recognized channels. In this case the Union has refused to join the Company in submitting these matters to the National War Labor Board.

In negotiating for the contract beginning May 1, 1944, the Union declined to continue the "no-strike—no lock-out" clause. This was appealed by the Company, and the Union and the Company were directed by the National War Labor Board to insert this clause in their contract.

For more than 25 years the Company has had friendly relations with this Union, whose members are employed in the Production, Distribution and Meter Reading Departments of the Company. Voluntary membership in this Union has never been, and is not now being, opposed by the Company.

The Company furnishes gas for nearly 1,000,000 consumers in Chicago, including a large number of industries manufacturing war supplies and affecting nearly every person in the community.

The Company hopes there will be no interruption in gas service. However, if a strike should prevent the Company from supplying gas to the City of Chicago, the Company will use the newspapers and the radio to advise its customers.

ACT TO REQUIRE ALL GARBAGE TO BE PUT IN CANS

Officials Plan Penalties After Shortage Ends

Chicago taxpayers spend more than 4½ million dollars a year for refuse disposal, but many of the city's alleys are piled with garbage. Lloyd M. Johnson, commissioner of streets and electricity, said yesterday that the condition of the alleys is due partly to the fact that garbage cans cannot be bought. He added that many families owning cans refuse to put their garbage into them.

Johnson said members of his staff are preparing a set of ordinances providing penalties for failure to use suitable garbage containers. Ald. Bowler [25th], chairman of the city council's finance committee, and Ald. Sheridan [16th] said they also are preparing such ordinances. None of these measures is proposed to become effective, tho, until garbage cans are obtainable.

Predict Mayor Will Get Cans

Mayor Kelly now is in Washington, D. C., to urge the war production board to release materials for the making of 20,000 garbage cans, and city officials predicted yesterday that the cans soon will be available.

Johnson said that the 1½ million dollar bond issue voted last Monday for the purchase of garbage disposal equipment is adequate for the purpose, but the purchases are not expected to be started before next year. Johnson said also that the force of 1,200 men now employed in garbage disposal is sufficient.

Suspends 10 Drivers for Loafing

He announced, however, that he had suspended 10 drivers yesterday for leaving their routes before quitting time and that he may prefer charges against them before the city civil service commission.

Ald. Bowler yesterday explained the cleanliness of the alleys in his ward, as observed by Tribune reporters in a survey early this week, by saying that his ward organization recently had distributed 250 garbage cans made of worn out oil drums. He has ordered 500 more drums, he said, and they will be distributed as soon as they can be cut down, tarred, and painted. Bowler denied that favoritism is shown to his ward in garbage collection.

NEW DEAL STILL THE SAME OLD DEAL: KELLAND

Milwaukee, Wis., June 8 [Special]—Nothing could be farther from the truth than the hopeful belief of credulous persons that the New Deal died with the elevation of Mr. Truman to the Presidency, Clarence Budington Kelland, author and Republican national committeeman from Arizona, declared tonight in an address at the Pabst theater delivered auspices of the Milwaukee county Republican college.

Asserting that Mr. Truman inherited the New Deal, Kelland declared that Republicans must have the courage to publicly proclaim that they do not stand for most of the things the New Deal stands for, to specify those things and to tell specifically what the G. O. P. will do that is right.

Republicans must avoid the kind of candidate they had in 1940 and 1944 to win the congressional elections next year and the Presidential election in 1948, which they mean to do, Kelland said. They lost the last two national elections, he added, because both candidates promised "2 per cent knife work and 90 per cent spells, incantations and flavored rain water."

DODGE STRIKERS VOTE TO RETURN PENDING HEARING

A strike at the Dodge Chicago plant of the Chrysler corporation, which began May 28 and which has tied up production of steel drop forgings for B-29 Super Fortress engines, apparently will end at 11 p. m. tomorrow as a result of a vote of 92 to 31 yesterday by members of Local 495 of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths, Drop Forgers and Helpers [AFL].

The vote followed a talk by A. J. Eberhardy, international representative of the brotherhood, who assured the members that the regional war labor board's automotive panel at Detroit, Mich., had promised the union a hearing by next Friday. The members agreed that continuance of work after they return depends on fulfillment of this promise.

The meeting was held at 3323 W. 63d st. under the supervision of Eberhardy and local officials of the brotherhood. One hundred twenty-three of the 574 strikers attended.

Three Bandits Take $330 in Two Tavern Robberies

A pimply faced blond and his two companions were sought by police after they had robbed two taverns early yesterday of a total of $320. The first robbery, at 4510 S. Ashland av., netted them $230, according to the owner, Mrs. Pearl Zamiatala. A short time later, they robbed George Martenkus of $100 at his tavern at 4645 S. Honore st. The three men were between 17 and 20.

Jinx Falkenburg and Lt. Col. John R. McCrary.

Hollywood, Cal., June 8 (AP)—Movie starlet Jinx Falkenburg disclosed today that she plans to fly to New York tonight to marry Lt. Col. John R. [Tex] McCrary—probably tomorrow.

Bubbling with activity, Jinx, noted for her tennis as well as her photogenic charms, said her sweetheart of four years was awaiting her arrival and everything was set for the wedding tomorrow if her flying schedule pans out.

"I'm making her a blue dress for the wedding because that's Tex's favorite color and I'm going to the wedding, too, if I have to ride on the tail of an airplane to get there," said her mother. "This is Jinx' first marriage and it'll be her only marriage—and I've got to be there, too."

WIDOW'S DEATH SUSPECT HELD; SEIZED BY FBI

Bond Raised Tenfold on Police Request

A suspect in the murder of Mrs. Josephine Alice Ross, 43, widow found June 5 stabbed to death in her apartment, was in the county jail last night under a $35,000 bond.

The prisoner, Lawrence Gates, 32, of 4062 Kenmore av., was arrested by agents of the federal bureau of investigation on the day of the murder. Until yesterday he was being held on a federal fugitive warrant charging he had fled from California to avoid prosecution on a burglary charge. His bond was fixed at $3,500 on the federal charge.

Police Request Bond Increase

However, after the federal courts closed yesterday, Capt. Frank Reynolds of Town Hall police requested United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker to increase Gates' bond.

Reynolds testified that Gates' description tallied with that given by witnesses who saw a man leaving Mrs. Ross' apartment at 4108 Kenmore av., only a few doors away from Gates' home, shortly after the murder.

He also said that the blade of a bolo knife, which may have been the murder weapon, was found near Gates' home. Altho Gates' denies it, police say they believe that the knife blade belongs to him.

Several persons who saw the man leaving the scene of the murder were hidden in the back of Commissioner Walker's courtroom. Capt. Reynolds refused to comment on their reports, but it was noted that he demanded a tenfold increase in Gates' bond.

Prisoner Threatens Lawyer

Gates, a tall, slim, dark haired man, cursed and threatened Assistant United States Atty. Michael J. Boyle during the hearing, but denied all knowledge of the murder.

Boyles said Gates was accused of robbing a gas station in Mill Valley, near San Francisco, Cal., May 17, 1944. Gates, he said, is divorced and has two young daughters who live in Los Angeles, Cal.

Mrs. Ross' nude body was found by her daughter, Jacqueline Miller, 17, when the girl returned home for lunch. Her mother had been stabbed in the neck. A red dress was tied around her throat and bloody garments were found in the bath tub.

34 MORE BRITISH PLANTS TURN TO CIVILIAN GOODS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 8—Britain today allocated 34 government war factories to industries planning postwar civilian production. Including 19 plants so allocated in March, 15,624,000 square feet of factory space has been turned over to civilian production by the government.

Forty per cent of the space has been allocated for the manufacture of automobiles and auto equipment, and 27 per cent for prefabricated houses and equipment. Other large quotas have been given to textile, machinery and rubber manufacture and engineering industries.

The factories being allocated are not sold by the government but are leased to various firms.

ARGENTINA SAYS IT HAS LIFTED CURB ON PRESS

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—The Argentine embassy asserted today that curbs on the press in Argentina have been lifted and newspaper men who have not been indicted by law have been freed from "interdiction." It said the restrictions were applied for "security reasons." It added that the situation culminated "in exposure of a vast conspiracy aimed at turning the country from its normal course and the complete recovery of its values and international policy."

Arnaldo Cortesi, New York Times correspondent, reported from Buenos Aires a week ago that since the Farrel-Peron government declared war on Germany it had "deprived the Argentine people of what small remains of freedom they still possessed."

[Cortesi's despatch was published in the Chicago Tribune June 3.]

In a delayed follow up dispatch published today, Cortesi said he had been warned by Adm. Alberto Teisaire, Argentine minister of the interior, "not to be surprised at anything that may happen to you."

Fined $100, Loses License on Third Speeding Charge

On his third court appearance within a year for speeding, Ceasare D. Alexander, 45, of 3001 Jackson blvd., was fined $100 yesterday by Judge Charles S. Dougherty in Speeders court on a charge of driving 40 miles an hour in a 20 mile zone in the Outer dr. The court also ordered Alexander's driving license suspended for a year.

PLAN TO USE U. S. FLAG ON STAMP BRINGS PROTEST

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—A protest against picturing the American flag on a postage stamp brought no official reaction today but records showed that the flag already has been used on 10 stamps.

In New York it was announced that the National Flag Code committee had written President Truman to protest against the use of Associated Press Photographer Joe Rosenthal's famed Iwo Jima flag raising picture on a 3 cent postage stamp, which was announced earlier this week.

The committee's chairman, Gridley Adams, wrote that it did not like the prospect of the United States flag "being licked behind its back, pounded onto envelopes, smeared by and run thru canceling machines."

As early as 1869, however, Old Glory appeared on United States postage stamps. Four flags were displayed on the 30 cent denomination issued that year. Nine other stamps have displayed it since then.

Springfield, Ill., June 8 (AP)—Nurses and doctors breathlessly rushed down from the obstetrical department after some one telephoned that quintuplets had been born in the business office at Memorial hospital. They found a flustered stenographer who had discovered a cat with five new born kittens in the typewriter compartment of her desk.

BRETTON WOODS GOES TO THE SENATE

The house of representatives has approved the 18 billion dollar Bretton Woods proposals in the original form, modified only by some minor and badly drawn amendments. Rep. Spence, chairman of the house banking and currency committee, and Rep. Wolcott, the senior Republican member of that committee, were both active in rushing the measure thru the house. Both Spence and Wolcott were delegates to Bretton Woods.

Upon reaching the senate the measure will go to that body's banking and currency committee, where for the first time, it now seems, it will be subjected to a searching examination by experts qualified to go into every phase of it.

It has been clear for several years that the Democratic administration meant to drive thru congress an international banking and currency plan as proposed by Lord Keynes, the British inflationist, and indorsed by his followers in the United States. A number of them were in high places in the government. The burden of questioning this action and of bringing to light the dangers that were involved rested primarily upon the minority members of the committees to which the plans were referred.

The administration adopted a strategy which was designed to kill off all opposition. The first move was to get the ranking Republican members of the congressional committees to accept seats in a rather large delegation. These were Congressman Wolcott of Michigan and Sen. Tobey of New Hampshire. An effort was also made to get Sen. Robert Taft, the second ranking member of the banking and currency group, to be a delegate. Sen. Taft declined because he wanted to be free to do his duty when the plans came before congress.

The hearings in the house committee and the action of the house itself testify to the shrewdness of the political strategy that was employed. Delegate Spence, as chairman of the committee, delivered all the Democratic votes in the committee. Delegate Wolcott delivered all the Republican committee members, with three noteworthy exceptions. All that he asked was that some weak amendments be added, which were readily agreed to by the administration. Representatives Jessie Sumner of Illinois, Fred C. Smith of Ohio, and Howard H. Buffet of Nebraska were the only ones to question Lord Keynes' proposals in committee.

Another phase of the strategy was to make the plans so technical that no one except Dr. White, the principal Keynes protege in the treasury department, and a few of his associates would understand them. The rest of the delegates, and especially the congressional members of the delegation, didn't understand the Bretton Woods agreements, and don't to this day.

How little the Bretton Woods delegates knew about what was in the agreements was evident when one of them, Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson, appeared as a witness before the house committee. If any one should be able to comprehend and expound Bretton Woods in its entirety it is he. At one time he was under-secretary of the treasury. He has been continuously active in Washington in the 12 years since he retired from the treasury and he has been one of the architects of our international relations since early 1941. On March 8 Mr. Acheson testified as follows about the international monetary fund:

"The whole mechanics of the fund are complicated. I shall not attempt to go into these, because I can very easily become confused in talking about them. Dr. White will go into that matter with you."

If the Bretton Woods mechanics were too complicated for Mr. Acheson's understanding, we can be sure that they are over the heads of members of congress who have never dealt with finance and international matters as he has. The house currency and banking committee recommended a plan it didn't understand, and the house of representatives has approved an 18 billion dollar program about which its members were in the dark.

A third part of the strategy was to prevent qualified outsiders, who could enlighten the committee, the congress, and the country, from testifying before the committee. The committee indicated that it would divide the time between advocates and opponents of the plans. But with both the chairman and the senior minority representative seeking to put the plans across, an official opposition was recognized—the American Bankers' association. During the hearings it became clear that the president of the bankers' association didn't oppose Bretton Woods at all. All he wanted was that the functions be given to one institution instead of two. Mr. Burgess, the head of the official opposition, selected by Wolcott and Spence, said that if he had the choice of voting for or against the measure without change, he would vote yes. Later he issued several statements praising Bretton Woods.

When it was revealed that the official opposition was a phony one, the committee did not then call in the many qualified witnesses who were waiting to be heard. The proceedings were so outrageous that Dr. Edwin Kemmerer, a world renowned financial authority, was called and permitted to make a statement denouncing Bretton Woods in every particular. Several other critics were given a fast brush-off. None of them, however, had an opportunity to study the testimony the administration witnesses had offered. Chairman Spence saw to that. Moreover, statements were not obtained from Dr. Benjamin Anderson, former adviser to leading banks on international banking and monetary matters, who had written and spoken more about Bretton Woods agreements than any other man. Testimony was not obtained from others qualified, such as Winthrop Aldrich, head of the nation's largest bank, who had striven to inform business groups about the dangers involved. Many qualified economists were not called upon to consider the effects upon the United States of the sudden creation of billions of new monetary reserves, backed by American dollars.

Having completed its hearings, the committee proceeded to draft some clumsy amendments, and didn't even bother to hold any hearings on them. The amendments satisfied the treasury and the A. B. A., so they were all right with the bi-partisan committee leaders.

We can expect more from the senate. Even if Sen. Tobey and Sen. Wagner team up as Spence and Wolcott did, Sen. Taft will see that there is a real investigation. If the time is divided between witnesses on the two sides, he will see that Mr. Burgess and the A. B. A. are charged up to the pro-side. Dr. Anderson, Mr. Aldrich, and members of the economists' national committee can surely expect a full hearing by the senate committee. There are enough Republicans and independent Democrats in the senate to assure at least a careful effort to discover what the proposals mean and what they are likely to cost.

THE WRONGED HUSBAND AND THE VETO

On the same day that Comrade Stalin decided to permit the world peace organization to hear the bleat of the outraged, but not to grant him any constructive reparation, an aggrieved California husband and a private detective with the picturesque name of Peek-a-boo Pennington were knocking on the door of a room on the fourth floor of the posh Fairmont hotel in San Francisco.

According to an old ballad, "In room 202 the walls are talking to you," but the husband [J. g.] and Peek-a-boo Pennington were not intent upon attending that sort of audition. They were looking for a wife and they found her—in an "unkempt, disheveled, and disordered condition," according to the bill of complaint subsequently filed.

Nor was she alone. The gentleman who possessed the key to the room was Dr. Milorad Cerovic, a representative of the peace loving nation of Yugoslavia, a diplomatic adviser to the Yugoslav delegation engaged in helping to draft the world peace charter. He had put away the cares of state for the nonce and was engaged in sociable conversation with the lady, a Mrs. Ksania Kunich. Mrs. Kunich's husband, Sam, an accountant from Oakland, did not appreciate this sort of international accord and thus had come calling with Brother Pennington.

Mr. Kunich may expect simple justice with the filing of a bill for divorce, mentioning Dr. Cerovic and two other John Does, but it may turn out that the matter is rather more complicated. There is such a thing as diplomatic immunity, and the little Trieste of the Fairmont hotel's fourth floor may, in the natural course of events, wind up before the world security council. What redress may Mr. Kunich expect in that event?

Mr. Kunich, as a sovereign husband, would first be compelled to lodge a formal complaint against Dr. Cerovic as an aggressor. The Yugoslav diplomatist would be charged with violation of boundaries and illegal occupation. Mr. Kunich would be able to speak his piece before the security council, and the permanent members from Russia, Britain, China, France, and the United States would hear him out.

The question would then be transferred to the level of possible action. Should the council invoke a formal investigation, or should it recommend conciliation, arbitration, or other pacific means of settlement? So far Mr. Kunich would be protected by the provisions of paragraph 2, section A, chapter VIII., and his right to outline his grievance could not be subjected to the exercise of the veto power.

But it is something else again when he starts demanding sanctions against Dr. Cerovic. It's a simple thing to hire a detective like Peek-a-boo Pennington, but calling out the world police force is a different kettle of fish. Dr. Cerovic is a Yugoslav, as is Marshal Tito. Marshal Tito is the bosom companion of Marshal Stalin. Russian ideas of Pan-Slavism are involved. Stalin uses his veto. There won't be any divorce.

This denouement may not be exactly pleasing to the aggrieved husband, for about the only recourse left him is to put an advertisment in the paper reading, "From this date will not be responsible for any debts contracted by persons other than myself." But he may pride himself on having been sacrificed to a greater cause. Peace is still permanent. Hearts may break in Oakland, but in Belgrade and Moscow they are dancing in the streets. Stettinius can notify congress, "It looks like peace for our time."

As for Sam Kunich, he can write to the "Advice to the Lovelorn" editor. The answer will be that if he wanted to avoid distress he should never have poked his nose in the door of the room. Peace, it's wonderful!

"GOOD FEELINGS"

[Providence, R. I., Evening Bulletin]

The period of the two administrations of James Monroe was known as the "era of good feelings." That phrase hopped immediately to the mind as President Truman and former President Hoover talked for an hour yesterday on European relief needs upon the invitation of Mr. Truman.

It was the first time Mr. Hoover had visited the White House since he departed from it on March 4, 1933, when President Roosevelt was inaugurated.

Some may say that President Truman is playing "smart politics," but it is always "smart politics" when it is right politics—and this is right politics.

It has been the source of considerable unfavorable comment, even among members of his own party, that President Roosevelt never called upon the services of Mr. Hoover, who was always prepared, for advice concerning the problem of relief in Europe. This country can stand a lot of an "era of good feelings."

MR. PEPYS IN WAR TIME

9th June—Managed to get meat for dinner five nights running this week, but must have been lucky, for on all sides I hear groans over its scarcity. Discovered a cooking editor who was going home to cook and eat a woodchuck for experimental purposes, and remembered the time I ate a muskrat, to the horror of the chef whom I asked to cook it and the friend I had asked to share my exotic feast.

Went to dine the other night in a magnificent and exclusive marble hall, and the waiter served with the rolls a small dab of white fat which was called butterine when I was a child and only bought by the poverty stricken. Used it up, with the aid of pepper and salt, while waiting half an hour for my soup, and asked the waiter for more because I thought the stuff was plentiful. Oddly enough, he didn't answer, "Don't you know——?" but said politely, "Sorry, sir, I couldn't even steal any more."

Rode on a bus and enjoyed the monolog of the driver to the herd of front door standers who were breathing down the nape of his neck. He kept saying loudly but meekly, "Stay right where you are folks and pay no attention to the great open spaces in the back of the bus," and "There's room in the rear, but who cares?" and "Other people may want to get into this bus, but let's gang up on 'em and block the door."

The driver's audience said no word, cracked no smile, moved no muscle. He might just as well have talked to a can of sardines. The Yanks who are coming back from Germany will be surprised to discover that this country is now largely inhabited by zombies, most of them silently toting suitcases hither and thither.

REQUIEM FOR A SAILOR

(Lt. Comdr. Charles G. Steele, Task Force 59, killed in action.)

Roll gently, Pacific; weep low, misty moon;
Sigh softly, wild winds of the mystical deep;
Disturb not a lad who departed too soon
When gallant young Charlie was lowered to sleep.

His carrier rides on without him today,
The battle goes forward, the colors fly high,
The pilots take off in the wind and the spray,
For war must be won and our young men must die.

Sigh on, restless winds, and roll on, ocean deep,
Weep low, misty moon hanging over the lee
Where gallant young Charlie was lowered to sleep;
His first love, his true love, his one love, the sea.

Bobwhite Comes to Town

One of the pleasantest, most nostalgic memories of the prairies that were is the call of the bobwhite. Associated with the booming of the prairie chicken and the whistle of the snipe, this music meant a lush and rolling grassland, with untrimmed hedgerows, brushy thickets, and grassy lanes.

These things have practically gone and we are that much poorer, but even a city is sometimes blessed, with cardinals resident in our gardens and occasional visits from such birds as a whippoorwill, a wood thrush, an indigo bunting, or a woodcock. And so we happily report that on two successive mornings we have been visited by the bobwhite. His call was so close we might have flushed him in our alley. S'Amuser

New Twist to a Doggy Tale

A man and his dog entered a tavern and went to the bar. The dog hopped up on a stool, and when asked what he would have, said, "A dry Martini with two olives" Man and dog lapped up their drinks and departed.

A bystander said, "Isn't that the darndest thing you ever saw?" "That's nothing," the bartender answered. "A lot of our customers like two olives in their Martinis."

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

F. L. M. asks: "Can an emergency officer who is drawing retirement pay work for the federal government and draw a salary of $3,000 at the same time?"

Yes, if the disability for which retirement pay was granted was received in combat with the enemy or resulted from explosion of an instrumentality of war in line of duty in World War I.

F. Z. writes: "My son now is stationed in the United States after a tour of bombardment duty in the European theater. He desires to bring his fiancee, a nurse stationed in England, to the United States. Can this be done if his parents sponsor the nurse?"

If the nurse is a subject of Great Britain or any foreign country she will have to obtain a quota number from the United States consul at the place where she is stationed and await her turn for entry into the United States.

N. J. M. writes: "I have been a prisoner of war for two years and was overseas for three years. I have 85 points. What are my chances for discharge?"

With 85 points, the critical number set by the war department, you should stand a good chance for early discharge. However, men in certain categories are considered critical for service until the defeat of Japan and, also, you may be retained for 90 days until replacement for you is found.

TRENCH FOOT

THE dangers of warfare are not confined to the dodging of bullets and shrapnel. Enemy fire may be so heavy that the combatant is glued to his foxhole for days on end. The cramped position frequently plays havoc with the lower extremities and, when cold and wet are added, all too often trench foot develops.

Soldiers are not the only victims. In sailors rescued at sea, the complication is referred to as "immersion foot." Civilians congregated underground in England during the blitz and buzz bomb eras encountered the same trouble. Here it was termed "shelter foot."

The condition is not new to the military surgeon. During the Crimean campaign, and, in the last war, similar episodes were observed. The disturbance again cropped up in the early days of the present conflict but, with our increased knowledge of preventive methods, attempts to curb the disorder were instituted.

What are the causative factors? In general, there is impairment of the circulation associated with damage to the nerves and muscles. As a result, fluid seeps out of the blood vessels, with ensuing swelling. Extreme cold is not responsible as in frostbite but a chilly, damp environment is important. When the limbs are dependent, such as in standing or sitting with the legs hanging down the individual is more prone to suffer. Immobility encourages stagnation. The blood flow may also be slowed thru the wearing of improper or tight shoes. Malnutrition and lack of vitamins make the soldier more susceptible.

Within a few days or a week the lower legs and feet begin to puff up. In the beginning, the sensation of pain is dulled by numbness and the victim may not be aware of the difficulty until he tries to walk. During this interval, trivial injuries may take place but, because the parts are insensitive, they go unnoticed. Eventually, edema increases, discoloration appears, and blisters form. In severe cases, gangrene arise.

The patient may become totally incapacitated. When hospitalized he is placed in bed with the feet elevated. The application of moderate cold often gives relief. The blisters and open sores are kept scrupulously clean. Under treatment, swelling disappears, the color returns to normal, and the lesions heal. But the soles may remain tender and sensitive to pressure. At first walking is unbearable. In consequence, these individuals assume a typical gait. They hobble about on their heels as many of us do when we must wade thru a puddle. Nailing a second heel on the instep of the shoes will help to reduce this tendency. By the time the device becomes worn down thru shuffling about the wards, the situation has corrected itself.

In order to minimize the chances of encountering this malady, our service men were acquainted with ways and means of avoiding trouble. They were warned against staying in one position too long. Whenever possible, those who must sit were instructed to raise the legs at regular intervals. An effort was made to keep the feet warm and dry by waterproofing the boots and changing wet socks. The application of oil to the skin proved valuable. Snug footwear was loosened. Thru these measures many potential cases have been averted.

JERKY SLEEPER

N. B. writes: When I start to fall asleep every night I awaken with a sudden jump. What could be wrong?

REPLY

This is probably the sandman stepping on your chest. Seriously, it is due to a sudden nerve stimulation causing the muscles to contract. Overfatigue is usually the underlying origin.

MATHEMATICS

M. N. writes: If a person eats one pound of food, can he gain a pound from it?

REPLY

No, because some of it is used for energy. This is fortunate. Otherwise we might all reach hippopotamic proportions.

ACROBATIC INFECTION

S. L. writes: Is athlete's foot in the ear curable?

REPLY

Did you put your foot into it? Ringworm of the ear can be eradicated but it is a stubborn disorder and needs skilled and patient treatment.

A GENUS OF BACTERIA

A. C. writes: What do you mean by tubercle bacilli?

REPLY

These are the tiny, rod shaped germs which cause tuberculosis.

Charlemagne Comes Home

One of the more enchanting stories of the war is the manner in which a GI took Charlemagne for a ride. It was the last of many rides taken since 1939 by the crumbled remains of the great medieval monarch. Before that he had lain relatively undisturbed at Aachen, the seat of his once vast empire, for 11 centuries.

During all that period people had been waiting for him to arise in the hour of his country's greatest need. He, in common with many now legendary figures of the days of chivalry, was supposed to be only sleeping, waiting for that hour of need. That he did not arise probably was due to understandable dilemma on his part. Just what was his country? In the eighth century he had been king of the Franks and emperor of Rome. Now both the Germans and the French claimed him. Which side was his side?

Charlemagne, studied 11 centuries later, is a controversial gentleman. What the Arthurian legend was to England, he became to Europe, and especially to the French. The difference between the two seemed to be that he actually existed as Charles the Great. He was the great champion of Christianity against the Mohammedans, an eager patron of the arts and learning, a military strategist who made a practice of catching the enemy off balance and coming in with a surprise smash, and, according to one historian, "little more than a tyrannical dotard who was made to submit to gross insults."

Like King Arthur, Charlemagne was gifted in gathering around him fine knights who did all the bloody work. These were aided by many magic swords, an enchanter's buckler, and the Hippograf, a cross between a griffin and an airplane. This winged horse had an eagle's head and claws and wings covered with feathers.

The school of chivalry apparently started with Charlemagne. Roland's classic battle with Ferragus, a giant with impregnable skin, is a refined example of this. The two made futile passes at each other for 10 hours or so, until Ferragus was so tired he proposed a truce. He then lay down and slept, knowing himself secure, for it was against the laws of chivalry to take advantage of a sleeping man. Roland looked at the weary giant and tears of pity came to his manly eyes; no pillow lay under that sweet old head. So he slipped a smooth stone beneath the weight. When Ferragus awoke, refreshed, he was so touched that he told Roland they might as well call the whole thing off, for Roland's sword could never hurt him, as the only vulnerable portion of his body was in the center of his breast. Roland then popped his sword into that spot. Chivalry, see?

Charlemagne had some astonishing victories. There were the walls of Pampeluna that fell of themselves and the War of the Holy Facundus where the spears grew. [His men's spears, stuck in the ground before the castle at night, grew bark and branches before dawn. Thus, victory.] Nevertheless, Charlemagne in the year 814 went into his long sleep, arousing only to lead the Crusades several centuries later.

He actually did die and was buried in the chapel he built at Aachen. In 851 and again in 882 the Norsemen invaded the town, but left him undisturbed. Emperor Otto III. opened the white marble tomb in the year 1,000 and found him seated on a white marble chair in white coronation robes, a gold crown on his head, a scepter in his hand. In 1164 he was canonized and in 1165 was disinterred by Frederick Barbarossa and switched to a plain wooden coffin. Fifty years later Frederick III. transferred his body to a silver shrine.

Then this last war came along. In 1939 the Germans, leary of air raids, moved the tired emperor to interior Germany and, as things became no better, shifted him from place to place. Shortly after V-E day the coffin was found in a town east of Cologne, and two weeks ago an army truck drew up in Aachen and the GI driver called the AMG on the phone to say: "I've got the bones with me. Where'll I put them?"

A DISCIPLE FOR DR. HUTCHINS

Corpus Christi, Tex., May 29—I am 19 years old. Most older people would consider me a mere boy. However, I feel that we have weakened leadership in our country by fanciful methods of education; so that men today burden themselves with doctor's degrees who know not a thing about the history and culture of their own people, much less any other people.

True, they are familiar with the love life of the cothurnia or the weight of an atom or the layout of a molecular formula, but they cannot understand why their sons are dying in the mud of France in a war which started over the boundaries of Poland.

They cannot grasp the repetition of the forces of history or the fundamentals in the nature of man that drive him to resist economic coöperation with a people whose only sin is that they speak a different tongue or worship the same God by a different ritual. And, not understanding the nature of man and the forces of history, they flounder around over petty problems long solved by Aristotle, or play with truisms long since described by Machiavelli.

They seek truths that have long since been known. They are like a Marco Polo finding what has always existed and not knowing the eternal things which never change. I suggest that we conscript youth to study the humanities, to read history and philosophy, and to become familiar with the struggle of the human mind to discover a way to live in the glare of truth. That would be building citizens of outstanding merit and leadership. That would be laying the foundations for making this period in history one rich in culture and inspirational thought.

BELL YOUR CAT

Waukegan, Ill., June 1—I suggest that people with cats get a collar, attach a small bell to it, and put it on their cat. Birds will hear it before the cat can get near them.

I had a cat for a number of years and in early spring I put a bell on his collar, and kept it on until late fall. He never caught a bird. I took the bell off in the fall, so he could keep the house clear of mice. Cats do not know any better, the instinct is born in them, and some well fed cats kill for sport, others because of hunger. The lives of the birds as well as the cats could be spared if the owners would only take a little precaution.

VOLUNTEERS IN THE OCD

Chicago, May 31—Your recent editorial in which you term the OCD a "'silly organization'" is just more than I can stand. It would seem from your attitude that nothing attempted in the war is worth while unless it meets with your approval. Did you ever really try to find out what the communities in OCD have tried to accomplish, or have you been able to see no further than central headquarters at 33 N. Wacker dr.?

I have been commander of the Belmont-Cragin community, one of the largest in the metropolitan area, since 1941, and since then my staff and self have put in more than 10,000 hours each of voluntary service. All we have received for our efforts has been criticism. We can take criticism, because from it one learns and grows stronger; but when one of the largest dailies decides to belittle and deride our efforts when it should be molding public opinion along victorious lines, it isn't fair.

We are the victory volunteers you praised in a recent article, but I notice you very studiously avoided any mention of OCD. We, the volunteers of OCD, and all are volunteers except a few at 33 N. Wacker dr., have been responsible for the house to house canvass in war loan drives since the second. It is we who see that paper is put at the curb when there is a salvage drive. We are the ones who give up our Sundays to dedicate plaques to our departed boys. We also plead with the public to coöperate with the Red Cross on blood donations. We gave up our time earlier in the war to take first aid courses. Is it silly to be able to render first aid to a fellow man in an accident? We banded the blocks together in a cohesive unit to be better able to help the boys.

In the four years that I have headed this community, not once have I been approached by any political powers or asked to do any political favors. We have been organized for the sole purpose of aiding in every way possible on the home front and after all we have accomplished you make the effort more difficult by deriding us. "Silly organization?" I wish to God there were most organizations like ours.

TAG IN THE SUBWAY

Chicago, June 4—I walk down a flight of long steps and pay a cashier 10 cents. Then I walk down another flight of long stairs and come to a long platform. A train comes in and stops 200 feet ahead of me; but when I get there, the train pulls away. Another train comes in and stops 250 feet behind me; but when I get there, it pulls away. Another train comes in, and stops right by me; but it is not the branch train I want. I become disgusted; walk back up the two long flights of stairs, and take a street car home. WEARY

BILL IN SENATE ASKS DOUBLING OF $10,000 PAY

Cabinet Salaries Also Would Be Boosted

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 8—Senate proponents of more pay for members of congress lost no time today in acting on President Truman's suggestion that the people's representatives deserve more money. They introduced legislation doubling the present $10,000 yearly stipend of senators and representatives.

Sen. Bridges [top] and Sen. Overton

Today's pay proposal was offered by Senators Overton [D., La.] and Bridges [R., N. H.], leaders of an unsuccessful fight in the senate last month to give senators an extra $2,500 a year for expenses, which members of the house had voted themselves in the legislative appropriations bill.

Truman's Suggestion

The President told his press conference yesterday he believed members of congress were grossly underpaid and should receive $15,000 to $25,000 a year. Overton and Bridges split the difference by suggesting $20,000 a year, altho they proposed a boost from the present $15,000 to $25,000 for the Vice President, president pro tempore of the senate, and speaker of the house. Cabinet officers would be paid $20,000 instead of the present $15,000.

Mr. Truman's remarks came after house members had completed legislative action on their $2,500 a year expense allowance and sent the bill to the White House.

In a press conference today, Overton and Bridges said they were acting on the President's suggestion in proposing the pay increase.

Calls It "Long Overdue"

"During senate debate on the expense allowance," said Overton, many senators thought there ought to be a direct increase in pay. Yesterday the President came out in a strong statement for an increase from $15,000 to $25,000. Senator Bridges and I are acting on his suggestion."

Bridges said the $25,000 salary for the Vice President was long overdue. "I think it's a crime for the second highest officer in the government to get only $15,000—and without a mansion," Bridges said.

The pay proposal, in the form of an amendment to the legislative appropriation bill, was referred to the senate appropriations committee where, senators agreed, it faced an uncertain fate.

Sen. Morse [R., Ore.] branded the action of the house in voting its members the $2,500 a "serious blow to the economic stabilization program of the country." In a senate speech, he criticized President Truman for approving of the house action.

Herman's not so dumb. He had that extension built to save electricity.

CITIZENS SERIES ENDING SEASON ON W-G-N TODAY

Fifty-five students named to the Citizens of Tomorrow roll of honor will tell their ambitions in the final broadcast of this youth program over W-G-N at 10 a. m. today. The program was recorded Wednesday when the students from Chicago and five surrounding states were all day guests of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

With Philip Maxwell as master of ceremonies, each student appears before the microphone to tell of his or her hopes. An unusually high percentage of the group expressed their desires to become ministers, doctors, teachers, or otherwise to serve their fellow men. One student, Mary M. Karol of Parker High, said simply: "I want to be a useful citizen."

Listeners will hear a promising young student singer from Elgin, Joe Konitzki, singing "I've Got Plenty o' Nuthin'" from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." Henry Weber directs the W-G-N Concert orchestra in a group of familiar and beloved American songs. This is the 176th broadcast of Citizens of Tomorrow, the last one of the sixth series.

THEATER OF AIR TO OFFER GRIEG MUSIC TONIGHT

In memory of Edvard Grieg's birthday, which falls on June 15, the Chicago Theater of the Air will include a medley of the Norwegian composer's works in its broadcast over W-G-N, WGNB, and Mutual from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight. Marion Claire and the chorus will sing "Solveig's Song." The orchestra will present "Excerpt from String Quartet," and the entire ensemble will be represented in the final number, "Triumphal March from 'Sigurd Jorsalfar.'" Miss Claire also is to sing "Gypsy Song" from "Countess Maritza" and Reginald De Koven's "O Promise Me." Angelo Raffaelli, tenor soloist, will sing "Neapolitan Love Song" and "On Wings of Song." Robert Quick, violinist, will play Saint-Saens' "Prelude du Deluge." Henry Weber will conduct the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and chorus.

W-G-N WILL CARRY INTERVIEWS WITH 10 IN SERVICES TODAY

Seven army men from the Chicago area, now in the Philippines, and three members of the 9th air force in Europe will be heard by way of recorded interviews over W-G-N at 1 p. m. today. Lt. Theodore R. Herman, 2851 Linder av., Sgt. John L. Szajna, 816 N. Paulina st., and 2d Lt. Billie J. Irving, 928 S. 24th st., Bellwood, will be heard from Europe. The others are: Sgt. Carl W. Schragg, 8611 Elizabeth st.; Sgt. Frank Finch, 1537 E. 65th st.; Pvt. Merle Warren, 5642 N. Campbell av.; Sgt. Joseph F. O'Brien, 7822 S. Hermitage av.; Sgt. John G. Schafer, 4804 Lawn av., Western Springs; Pvt. William Graves, 1417 Lincoln st., Evanston, and Sgt. Lawrence Gurioli, 1712 Burton av., Highland Park.

Julane Pelletier, who provides the musical backdrop for Words and Rhythm, the radio game based on Tribune features, today will round out a year with the program. This musical quiz features Bill Anson and Dick [Two Ton] Baker as song experts; Holland Engle as M. C., and Tom Cafferty, announcer. Baker recently replaced Jess Kirkpatrick, who has moved to California. The show is broadcast at 3 p. m. Saturdays and at 3:15 p. m. on other week days.

Stage Door Canteen Gets Notice to Move by June 30

New York, June 8 [Special]—The famous Stage Door canteen, which has entertained nearly 3 million service men, may have to look for a new home. It received notice today that the New York Times company, owner of the 44th st. theater where the canteen occupies the basement, plans to tear down the building to make way for a new 11 story structure. The eviction date was set for June 30.

THIEF GETS SIX MONTHS

John Bacon, 42, of Crete, Will county, was sentenced yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes to six months in the county jail for stealing government property from the Pullman Standard Car company, where he was employed.

MEAT SUPPLY 'BOOST' MAY BE MOSTLY BOAST

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—The government's promised increase in meat supplies next fall may turn out to average only 36 ounces more per civilian for the entire October-December period.

This increase over summer supplies would include meats served in public eating places. Consequently the increase in supplies at butcher shops would be somewhat less.

Year's Production Down 9 Per Cent

Spread over a 90-day period, this 36-ounce boost would be scarcely noticeable, particularly if civilian demand continues at or near present levels.

This prospect is based upon latest government meat allocations and estimates of 1945 production.

The bureau of agricultural economics—the war food administration's statistical agency—said today meat production this year is expected to total 22,500,000,000 pounds, or 9 per cent less than last year.

It said noncivilian—military, lend-least, foreign relief, and other commercial exports—may amount to 6,500,000,000 pounds for the year. Other WFA officials said this figure may turn out finally to be nearer 7,000,000,000 pounds.

Plan to Resume Exports

The government has expressed the hope that it will be able to allot upwards of 700,000,000 pounds for lend-lease and foreign relief during the last quarter. Such shipments have been halted for the July-September period.

Of the total estimated 1945 supply, about 16,500,000,000 pounds already have been allocated for use up to Oct. 1. Thus the amount remaining for the last three months would be about 6,000,000,000 pounds.

Of this, nearly 2,000,000,000 will be required for noncivilian uses, leaving slightly more than 4,000,000,000 for civilians compared with 3,740,000,000 allotted civilians for the July-September quarter.

LAST 2 LIBERTY SHIPS FINISHED; 2,661 BUILT IN ALL

South Portland, Me., June 8 (AP)—The nation's Liberty ship building program came to an end in a shower of Champagne today as two of the 10,500 ton vessels which have carried supplies to distant battle fronts were christened at the New England Shipbuilding corporation plant.

The vessels were the S. S. Harold H. Brown and S. S. Stanley R. Fisher, honoring merchant seamen who were killed in action.

They brought to 2,661 the number of 441 foot Liberty ships built by the United States maritime commission. The first of the craft, the Patrick Henry, slid into the water at Baltimore, Sept. 27, 1941.

The New England yard was advised by Robert Horton, public relations director of the maritime commission, that the two vessels christened today were the last two EC-2s—liberty ships.

Gen. Mollison Becomes 15th Air Force's Head

ROME, Italy, June 8 (AP)—Brig. Gen. James A. Mollison has assumed command of the United States 15th air force, succeeding Maj. Gen. Nathan F. Twining.

STORES HERE DISPUTE OPA ON SHORTAGE OF SHOES FOR CHILDREN

Chicago merchants, big and small, yesterday disputed the contention of office of price administration officials in Washington, D. C., that shoe stocks including those for children, are down 40 per cent because of military demands.

The OPA's assertions came as a result of the disclosure Thursday that well upwards of 100,000 applications for extra shoes for children have swamped Chicago area ration boards since May 1.

"We have shoes; we believe we can supply any demand if the OPA will issue the stamps." This was the gist of statements by officials of the big State st. stores and of representatives of the smaller shoe merchants all over the city.

"Our merchants tell me there are shoes enough," Fred Goerlitz, managing director of the Chicago Retail Merchants association, said. "Sometimes the selection is not so large as it might be. But customers can be satisfied."

PLAN TO SEEK STATE HELP ON SUPERHIGHWAY

A resolution calling on the state to furnish at least half of the cost of the proposed Congress st. superhighway will be prepared by members of two council committees meeting in joint session Monday, it was learned yesterday.

The committees are those on traffic and public safety headed by Ald. Kells [28th] and on local transportation headed by Ald. Quinn [50th]. The resolution will be submitted to the council at a meeting Wednesday for adoption.

The cost of the west side route of the proposed highway system that will run along Congress st. has been estimated at $45,000,000. Council members contend that the state would furnish half of its cost if the city and county governments would finance the remainder.

CHARGES DRAFT IN PEACE MEANS WAR WITH REDS

Colonel Fears Arms Race Against Russia

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—A former lieutenant colonel who gave up his commission to fight compulsory military training told a congressional committee today that peace time conscription "can only mean preparation for war with Russia."

Norman Thomas, head of the Socialist party, another witness before the house committee on post-war military policy, asserted that "if military conscription is the secret of defense Russia will win."

Thomas testified ahead of Roscoe F. Conkling, the former army officer, who said he returned to inactive status last January after having served as national selective headquarters here. He formerly was deputy attorney general of New York.

The two testified on peace time draft proposals shortly after War Secretary Henry L. Stimson had told his news conference he could not quite "conceive that any officer of the United States army would be so deficient in judgment" as to say he wanted to fight Russia.

Answer to a Reporter

The secretary's comment was in answer to a news conference question about a remark which a reporter attributed to Rep. Coffee [D., Wash.]. The congressman was quoted as saying some unidentified military men want war with the soviet union.

Conkling asserted "agitation for peace time militarization of our youth is needlessly and recklessly sowing the seeds of war."

"Could it possibly be," he asked, "that America's army and navy inspired agitation for universal military service is the cause for Russia, altho not now at war, suddenly calling up last Friday all her 15 year olds for Red army training?"

"Just what do our highups of the armed forces want for defense of the United States in peace time except vast numbers of our youth constantly in uniform upon which to base and maintain permanently thousands of officers now temporarily holding towering rank, but who in all probability will fall from their lofty heights come peace and normal living, unless we introduce peace time compulsory military training?"

Thomas Urges Disarming

Thomas, speaking for the post-war world council, of which he is president, said Russia "will have the greater population, the strategic position in which mass armies are most useful, and the kind of totalitarian government to which peace time conscription is far more appropriate and effective than to our democracy."

Avoidance of a war with Russia, he added, "is a must for American statesmanship," and "the greatest single help to peace would be a movement toward the total abolition of military conscription and a policy of progressive disarmament following the disarmament of Germany and Japan."

"The best key to any sound policy of security and peace would be an agreement with the soviet union on disarmament," Thomas told the committee.

WALDA SEEKS AN ANNULMENT, WINCHELL SAYS

Beverly Hills, Cal., June 9 (AP)—As Walter Winchell put it, his daughter Walda and her bridegroom of three days have "Phfft!"

The columnist said his 18 year old daughter called him from New York and revealed that she and William Lawless, who were married in a surprise ceremony last Tuesday, had agreed to an annulment.

"She told me he was a very nice boy. I asked her why not give the marriage a little more chance, but she said no—they had talked it over and decided to call it off," Winchell said.

He said neither he nor Mrs. Winchell had met Lawless, 29, an art student and former army staff sergeant, whose home is in Cambridge, Mass.

In Cambridge Mrs. James Lawless, the bridegroom's mother, said, "I don't know what to think. They had planned to come to see me today. So far as I knew, I thought everything was okay. The news surprised me."

HOTEL'S GOUGE ON PHONE CALLS HELD ILLEGAL

Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday issued a permanent injunction restraining 18 hotel corporations and seven individuals operating 24 hotels in Chicago from collecting service charges in addition to the regular toll charge for telephone calls outside the state of Illinois.

Suit was filed more than a year ago charging violations of federal communications commission rules after numerous complaints were received by the agency. Harry Becker, regional attorney for the FCC, said suits filed in New York and Washington, D. C., also resulted in permanent restraint orders.

Judge Barnes' order enjoined the American Telephone and Telegraph company and the Illinois Bell Telephone company from furnishing service to any hotel operator who violates FCC tariff rules in the interstate service.

1,000,000TH GUEST OF WABASH USO IS A 'LUCKY GUY'

The only reason Sailor Lewis Gardner, 22, dropped in at the U. S. O. club at 131 S. Wabash av, last Saturday morning was to borrow some lefthanded golf clubs. He was given the clubs and then workers asked him what he'd like to have arranged for his special entertainment. He was a "lucky guy," they explained, because he was the 1,000,000th service man to walk into the place.

Gardner, who is stationed at the navay armory and has been in the navy six years, asked to share the fun with his wife, Grace, 20. The U. S. O. arranged that and Mrs. Gardner arrived here yesterday morning from Flint, Mich. They are staying at the Palmer House. They'll play golf at Ravisloe Country club, Homewood, today, and then attend the U. S. O. party tonight.

Gardner wears a Presidential unit citation and seven major battle stars. The U. S. O. will arrange for the couple to visit Great Lakes Naval trainig center, where Mrs. Gardner's brother is in boot camp.

PROBE MORE LEAKS OF U. S. INFORMATION

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—State department officials said today that a whole series of cases involving leakage of secret information thro unauthorized channels is under investigation.

Six persons, including two far eastern experts employed by the department and a naval intelligence officer, already are under arrest on charges of conspiracy to violate the espionage laws by improper use of restricted information.

Acting Secretary of State Grew, who said the six arrests were only one result of a comprehensive security program, told his news conference today, however, that top officials in the department would continue to be privileged to divulge confidential information to correspondents as background matter.

At the time of this week's arrests, Grew said state department and navy secrets were involved. Today, War Secretary Stimson said there had been no leaks from his department as far as he knew.

CLEAR 2 YOUNG GIRLS OF DEATH OF BABY IN LOT

Philadelphia, Pa., June 8 (AP)—Judge Charles L. Brown in Juvenile court today cleared Irene Jones, 15, and her sister, Janet, 11, of criminal intent in taking 3 month old Thomas V. Ripley Jr., from his carriage last Thursday, playing house with him, and leaving him in a vacant lot where he was found dead of a broken neck.

Judge Brown ordered the girls returned to the house of detention until a home could be found for them and directed that charges of abduction and theft of a carriage be held in abeyance.

Dr. Donald Davidson, a psychiatrist, said Irene was "essentially normal," but that Janet was "definitely retarded."

SEEK GI'S WIFE WHO LEFT BABY IN NEWS STAND

Chanute Field, Ill., June 8 (AP)—Chanute field army air force authorities said today they were joining in a search for the wife of an army private here who, they said, disappeared after leaving her 20 month old son in a news stand at Plainfield, Ill.

The woman was Mrs. Frances "Peggy" Blanton, 20, wife of Pvt. R. L. Blanton, who is in the Chanute field hospital with a throat infection. Maj. T. V. Watson, public relations officer, reported. He said Blanton had asked authorities to search for his wife, who had been living in Champaign. Both are natives of Lakeland, Fla.

Authorities at Plainfield found the baby wrapped in blankets, with two suitcases, the baby's ration book, and a note that said Mrs. Blanton could no longer adequately care for the baby. It requested that he be given to the John Schmidts, farmers, near Plainfield.

Mrs. Schmidt is caring for the baby.

WOLL PRAISES YOUTHS IN TALK TO FRATERNITY

United States Atty. Woll yesterday paid tribute to the patriotism of Chicago's youth in an address at an initiation dinner in the Stevens hotel of the Phi Alpha Delta law fraternity. Twelve new members were taken into the organization.

Of 6,000 technical selective service act delinquents in the city, Woll said, only 285 were convicted of being deliberate draft dodgers. The rest willingly entered the services when brought into court and informed of their delinquency.

His office, Woll said, scored convictions in 97 per cent of the criminal cases prosecuted during the last year. Of 325 enemy aliens arrested, 135 were interned, 145 paroled, and 45 released, he said. Woll also praised the federal bureau of investigation for its alertness in watching for and preventing acts of sabotage.

URGES CONGRESS BARE SECRETS IN TYLER KENT CASE

Hoffman Seeks Clew to World Peace Plans

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 8—A congressional investigation into the mysterious case of Tyler Kent, former code clerk in the American embassy in London who was imprisoned by British authorities, was demanded today by Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.].

Hoffman told the house the end of the war in Europe has removed all reason, if there ever was one, for cloaking the Kent case in secrecy. He suggested full disclosure to the public of the reason for Kent's arrest and imprisonment may reveal information pertinent to present discussions of world peace plans.

Arrested in 1940

Kent, an American citizen, was seized by Scotland Yard detectives in May, 1940, charged with having revealed to Capt. Archibald Ramsey, a member of parliament, the alleged contents of certain coded cable messages exchanged between President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, when Churchill was first lord of the admiralty.

Kent was imprisoned and is still in a British jail.

The congressman recalled that one of the messages from Churchill to Roosevelt allegedly stated: "Were I to become prime minister of Britain we could control the world."

"If such was the intent of Churchill at that time," Hoffman told the house, "and if he communicated that fact to the late President of the United States, the people of the United States should be made aware of it."

Duty to Bare Truth

"What Churchill and the late President then had in mind should be now fully revealed because in the light of what happened prior to America's entrance into the war, our representatives at San Francisco and the congress of the United States can more intelligently determine the course which we should follow."

"If the charges made by Tyler Kent are not true," he added, "they should without further delay be disproved."

The United States government, Hoffman said "failed to protect an American citizen" when it permitted British authorities to arrest Kent.

FEDERAL CHURCH COUNCIL TIE IS LUTHERANS' AIM

Moline, Ill., June 8 (AP)—The Augustana Lutheran Synod voted today to ask the National Lutheran council to seek to establish a consultative relationship with the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

The step was taken, the organization said, to give the group a voice in the general councils of Evangelical Christians in America. At present, the United Lutheran Church in America is the only Lutheran body affiliated with the federal council, altho both the United Lutheran Church and the Augustana synod are members of the world council of churches.

The delegates also voted to establish a theological seminary in Saskatoon, Sask., Canada, to train future pastors for the Canadian field. By another vote they gave the executive committee power to defray the expenses of 12 young men of the synod who are assigned to civilan public service as conscientious objectors.

By resolution, the finance committee voted to fix the salary of the synod president for the current fiscal year at $5,500.

ORDERS STRIKE AT DONNELLEY COMPANY ENDED

Striking employes of R. R. Donnelley & Sons company last night were ordered to return to work Monday morning in telegrams sent by the war labor board in Washington, D. C. Earlier in the day the national office of the WLB assumed jurisdiction in the dispute.

WLB Chairman George W. Taylor wired heads of the unions involved that, if the work stoppage is not ended by the deadline set, representatives of the organizations would be summoned to a board hearing in Washington Monday afternoon to show why they had not complied.

The telegrams were sent to officials of the Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' union; International Association of Machinists; International Photo-Engravers union; Amalgamated Lithographers union, and to the Donnelley company. The strike has been in progress since last week.

In New York a spokesman for the publishers of Life magazine said that approximately two-thirds of this week's edition was printed, which, he said, "almost eliminates national newsstand distribution." The Donnelley plant handles part of Life's printing.

TONS OF MILITARY FOOD DESTROYED IN FIRE AT CAMP

Oakland, Cal., June 8 (AP)—Tons of military food supplies for the Pacific war area were destroyed at Camp Knight today in a six alarm fire.

The rations were stored in the middle section of a five section warehouse, but the fire was kept from spreading. Soldiers aided firemen in combating the blaze.

Three or four men were injured slightly. Negro stevedores were credited with saving a great quantity of food by carrying boxes on motor lifts while the flames raged.

Mrs. Holinger Picked to Head Junior League

BY JUDITH CASS

MRS. PAUL H. HOLINGER, wife of a doctor, mother of two young sons, member of the woman's boards of St. Luke's hospital and of the Travelers Aid society, and graduate of Mount Holyoke college, is the new president of the Chicago Junior league. She was elected yesterday at the annual league meeting in the Saddle and Cycle club. League members feel they are fortunate in obtaining a seasoned board member as president, for it is likely that the league will be particularly active during Mrs. Holinger's tenure of office. It hopes to launch a new project this year, and also it may return to the benefit giving field.

Mrs. Paul Holinger

Miss Lee Cudahy heads a committee that is seeking a project in welfare fields which the league may launch and develop and then turn over to the community, according to league custom. Much of the ground work has been done under the guidance of the retiring president, Mrs. Richard M. Lamport, but various suggestions will have further study before a decision is reached.

Other officers elected yesterday were Mrs. Charles S. Connell, Mrs. Daniel Leonard, Mrs. Gilbert H. Scribner Jr., and Mrs. John Q. Adams Jr. Mrs. Chauncey K. Hutchins was appointed to take over the league's profitable book shop in Marshall Field's Lake Forest store; Miss Priscilla Blackett is the new radio chairman, and Mrs. Hugo C. Vogel heads the ways and means committee.

Before adjourning to a buffet luncheon of codfish cakes and spaghetti, the large turnout of league members heard a talk by Mrs. Lowell Pittman of the Red Cross speakers' bureau. She told of the critical needs for more nurses' aids and workers in the Red Cross home service department. Her figures on the ratio of day time and night time nurses' aids, 500 of the former to 1,500 of the latter, illustrated strikingly that the woman with a job is giving more time to this service than the housewife.

Here and There

Mrs. Charles Bromwell's arrival from the Plaza hotel in New York, her home during the war, for a stay of several weeks in the Drake hotel presages several interesting family reunions. Mrs. Bromwell and her son, Scott Bromwell of Lake Forest, and his family are looking forward to a visit soon from the senior Mrs. Bromwell's daughter, Mrs. Sidney Bailey [Lady Bailey], who hopes to bring her daughter, Patricia, from England as soon as they can obtain passage. The Baileys, who were bombed out of their London home, virtually have been homeless ever since. They will occupy the bungalow on the estate of the duke and duchess of Sutherland in Surrey from June 12 until Oct. 12. Miss Patricia Bailey until recently served with the WRENS, and her brother, David, is a naval cadet at Eton hall.

Mrs. Bromwell's cousins, the junior Carter Harrisons, also will have a family reunion soon. Their son-in-law, Lt. Col. Peter Rooney of the army air forces, now is in Washington, D. C., and his wife, the former Edith Harrison, hopes to join him in this country within a month. Mrs. Bailey, the former Mildred Bromwell, and her daughter were the only relatives present when the former Miss Harrison was married early this spring in England, where she served with the Red Cross.

Lt. and Mrs. Henry Atwater Preston [Eleanore Louise Tompkins] became the parents of their second son, James Marshall, June 1 in French hospital in New York. Lt. Preston, son of the Frederick A. Prestons, is with the navy in the Pacific.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Sunderland [Virginia Healy] of Winnetka are being congratulated on the birth of a second son, Philip Gaynor, June 1 in Evanston hospital. The baby and his 5 year old brother, Richard Jr., are grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Healy of Kenilworth and of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Sunderland of Winnetka.

On the Calendar

"Stay at home and listen to your radios," was the office of defense transportation's advice to Chicagoans who would like to be present at Churchill Downs in Louisville today for the 71st running of the Kentucky Derby. Assured of ringside radio seats for the event are the guests who will gather at 4 p. m. today in the Club International of the Drake hotel for its annual Derby party. A. Bradley Eben will preside over the gathering, at which Carl Brisson will be the special guest. Some of the Derby "regulars" present will be the Thomas Smyths, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Culbertson II., the George Brauns, the Bert L. Atwaters, and the John B. De Havens.

Other clubs, such as the Saddle and Cycle and the Tavern, are not planning special parties, but a number of their members will be gathered around the clubs' radios at post time.

Mrs. Gilbert E. Porter III. will open her home at 650 N. Lake rd., Lake Forest, from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. today for a display and sale of gifts from the Hull House shop. Among the wares offered for sale will be gifts for babies, luncheon sets, linens, glassware, and china.

Rain or shine, the Cliff Dwellers will hold their annual terrace opening and horticultural exhibit tonight. Cocktails will be served at 6:30, followed by dinner and dancing.

Cool Cottons Are Ready for Summer's Heat

BY REA SEEGER

If and when the heat is turned on, summer fashions will swing into the spotlight. They're here and ready for the first rush. Very cool and sleeveless dresses in almost priceless cottons, such as ginghams and smooth, silky chambray, emphasize the cool charm of spic and span stripes. Never before have there been so many and such assorted colors and combinations, tho blue and white and beige and white take first honors for snap and eye appeal.

Watch the ruffled models, prim little cotton dresses with a hem that is a ruffle and then a ruffled edge on that hem of narrow white embroidery. Ruffles outline the shoulder sleeves and some models even boast narrow ruffles around the low round neckline. All these indicate that femininity has returned to the ruch and ruffle route this summer.

Dresses of the same simplicity in solid background colors, such as palm green, gold, cinnamon brown, navy, and raspberry red, are made with the same artless simplicity of gathered skirt, equally simple bodice, and those flattering wide shoulders with mere cap or band sleeves. At the throat or deep vee line, is a soft bow of the same smooth cotton as the dress. Belts are narrow and buckled neatly in center front.

All-white cotton dresses have a promising future, come the sun and suitable weather. They're made of broadcloth, trick weave piques, and all-over eyelet embroidery. Cut with sleek streamline of a coat dress, many of them button down the front or side with glitter buttons or those of white plastic.

Thru the Looking Glass

Beauty spots:

Poets have waxed lyrical about the "perfume of a woman's hair," and it's perfectly true that there is a haunting charm about hair that smells delicious—but there's a trick to it. Stay the hand that applies the perfume unless that hair is freshly shampooed. Even 24 hours after a shampoo your hair and scalp will have gathered enough dust and perspiration unto themselves to destroy the beauty of the best of perfume.

Know those shoes with high heels and a band and a bow that comes smack across the ankle? Even the designer of one of these models, who dearly loves her brainchild, says that they are only for the woman with ultra-slim ankles. If your legs are a bit short from knee to foot—and even the legs of tall women are sometimes disproportionate in this respect—or if your legs and ankles are plump you'd best pass up such frou-frou and stick to shoes with an unbroken, slimming line. It's the same principle that applies to horizontal stripes or trimmings on a dress; they are not for the stout woman. For her, perpendicular or diagonal lines are best.

If you've a flowered hat, try dabbing just a smidge of perfume on the leaves. It can match, if you like—lily for lilies or a cool violet for the little purple blossoms—or it can be your own unidentifiable favorite. It's a nice trick.

Next time you're hot and dog tired pour some of your favorite cologne over a couple of pieces of ice in a bowl. Then give yourself a body rub with the chilled, fragrant stuff, using a roughish washcloth. It's the most refreshing, stimulating quick pickup in the world.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

A Pocketful of Ideas

You don't often see a natural honey-colored blonde—and one with a pocketful of ideas that would put money in any one's pocket!

Doris Limbach was a Chicago secretary until, six months ago, she decided to go into business for herself. As a secretary she frequently had run up against delays and difficulties when an out-of-the-city firm with which she wished to get in touch had no local representative. Mulling it over in her mind, she was convinced there must be many companies located elsewhere with important Chicago customers, yet not maintaining an office here to handle their interests.

It was, she reasoned, a situation similar to that confronting the private secretary whose boss has gone out of town. Why not be a representative of a number of permanently out-of-town bosses—answer mail and telephone calls, relay messages, and make appointments for them? Why not be Johnny-on-the-spot for them?

Doris-on-the-Spot

When the idea first occurred to her she sent out a test letter that drew several favorable replies. Promptly she rented an office, to provide a Chicago telephone listing, bought some stationery and supplies, and announced she was in business.

Of course, she admits, it's sometimes a case of "Doris-on-the-spot" when customers call and inquire whether steel is "pickled and oiled," but she must have learned the answers well, because the day I interviewed her she had closed a five figure deal. At present she keeps a listing of commodities that are scarce items so that, like any good secretary, she facilitates buyer and seller getting together.

Commercial Student

Business interrupted her schooling when she was taking a business administration course at Drake university and serving as secretary to the dean of the law school for her tuition. One of the large automobile dealers in Des Moines was so impressed with the way she went about the city selling tickets for a college benefit that he offered her a job to sell cars on the floor—the first woman to sell automobiles in a Des Moines showroom. This, naturally, was too good to turn down!

So she took the job, was exceedingly successful, and later went to Minneapolis to become vice president in charge of sales for a utility company. Then she wanted to see the world, so she conducted tourists thru Europe. And after that she wanted to see America, so she opened a curio shop in Glacier National park—and ended up in California.

But, California couldn't hold all that initiative; back she came to the middle west to do the secretarial work from which she launched her own business.

She gets a lot of fun out of the confusion over her letters, signed usually with her initial and last name. By now she has become accustomed to mail addressed to Mr. D. Limbach, but unless you could see her, the surprise of her clients on being greeted by a lovely blonde can only be imagined.

Noted Doll Collection Will Be Displayed to Aid Chinese Relief

The Aladdin room in the Orrington hotel at Evanston today will appear endowed with some of the magic supposedly possessed by the Aladdin lamp of legendary days. When doors open at 10 a. m., the fabulous dolls owned by Miss Katherine Waller, Evanston school librarian, will be displayed in their 10th exhibit for charity. In the last year, more than 100 figurines have been added to the librarian's collection, which is said to include dolls of every nation and which represent modern, historic, and even mythical eras. Because the exhibit, which will be open until 9 o'clock tonight and from 1 to 9 p. m. tomorrow, is for China relief, Chinese dolls will be featured.

See Vast Sales of Refrigerator and Gas Stove

BY THOMAS FURLONG

Extensive replacement of gas stoves and mechanical refrigerators now in use will be a big factor in the post-war demand for durable consumer goods.

This replacement demand, with initial purchases by others, promises an expenditure of nearly 100 million dollars for these two household articles in the year. This is a small part of the estimated 2¾ billion dollars that will be spent by urban families in the area for durable goods largely unobtainable in the war period.

The estimates were made by The Chicago Tribune business survey staff from a sample census of 10,029 families living in population centers of 2,500 or more in the Chicagoland area. For survey purposes 242 counties in Illinois and four near-by states were canvassed.

Expenditures planned for refrigerators aggregate $62,861,000, representing 343,784 units at an average price of $183. More than half of the refrigerators in use in the area, the survey disclosed, are more than six years old.

The extent of the new market for refrigerators is suggested by the percentage of prospective purchasers who are not owners now. Of those registering their intention to buy 50 per cent do not have refrigerators at present.

By contrast, nearly 87 per cent of the prospective buyers of gas stoves will replace present units, nearly 90 per cent of which are more than 6 years old.

The survey also covered the prospective demand for electric stoves. The first peace year's expenditures were projected at $14,724,600, or an average price of $194 for 75,900 units. More than three-quarters of the prospective buyers would be making initial purchases. About 80 per cent of the electric stoves now in use are less than 10 years old.

Other goods for which probable demand was estimated include home radios, radio-phonograph sets, stokers, and ironers. The intended purchases of radios and combination sets aggregate 70 million dollars, about evenly allocated between the two products.

The indicated average price for combination sets of $225 is double the average expenditure planned for radios. Altho more than 90 per cent of the prospective purchases of radios will be for replacement, less than 7 per cent of those planning to buy combination sets now have such units.

The preponderant demand for stokers and ironers will be from families without such articles at present, the study indicated. About 94 per cent of the stokers to be sold in the first year after the war will be purchased by families making initial installations. A similarly high proportion of those intending to purchase ironers are new users.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 8—Clifford Sanford tells me he's looking for an unknown girl to play the leading role in "Virgin of the Gods," taken from T. A. Willard's new novel, "Bride of the Rain God." . . . Frank Borzage, about to start "Concerto" for Republic, tells me he's going to try something new, too. He'll make a television trailer, so you can see it on your home set, if you've got one. It's an idea, but I wonder whether television has advanced far enough for that yet. . . . Twentieth Century is trying to buy the life of Joe Howard, who's now on the air with "The Gay Nineties," but there's plenty of trouble. Things holding up the deal are his four ex-wives, who are after more money.

A Voice from the Sidelines

Humphrey Bogart was doing a love scene with Barbara Stanwyck in "The Two Mrs. Carrolls," which was going badly, when a voice from the corner of the stage said, "Come on, darling, you can do better than that!" Sure, it was Baby Bacall. . . . I asked Mary Phillips, one of Bogey's ex-wives, what she thought of the marriage. "I think it's wonderful," she said. "O, then you think they deserve each other?" I asked. "I think she's wonderful," Mary replied. . . . Brynie Foy has been studying Spanish for three years and speaks it quite well. He may go down to South America to look over the picture making possibilities. When his wife learned he was studying Spanish she said, "O, you just want to be able to talk to these foreign girls!" He said to me, "Isn't it amazing what a wife's intuition will lead her to think? And nine times out of 10 she's right!" . . . Lana Turner has come of age. She refuses to do bathing suit pictures for magazines.

Live and Let Learn

I must say Vincent Price, who has the starring role in "Dragonwyck," is being very coöperative in a small part in "Leave Her to Heaven." . . . On the set of that picture I also saw Cornel Wilde and congratulated him on the good sense of his actress wife in not wanting a screen career. "O, but you're wrong, Hedda; she does. And I want her to have one. Why can't we work together on the screen as we did on the stage?" Then I pointed to the difference: "You don't know, unless you've been in both, just how different they are. On the stage, when rehearsals end and you've opened, you just repeat what you've learned three hours every night. Every day in the studio is an opening night. When you go home you'd like to pour out your woes to a sympathetic listener. But if your partner has had grievances and is tired and upset, too, she wants to pour out her troubles."

A Little of This and That

Dr. Malcolm Sargent, English conductor, stopped over for a few days and went thru the Disney studio. Joan Fontaine took him visiting other sets. He's en route to Australia, where he'll do a 26 week concert tour. . . . Ethel Barrymore, using the name E. M. Blythe, hopes to produce a musical fantasy titled "Lute Song." . . . Mary Pickford's niece, Gwenn, and new husband have found their own home and are out of Pickfair. . . . John Totten, Carnegie hall's manager, is about to arrive here with a couple of top writers and huddle with Boris Morros over the story of "Carnegie Hall." . . . Ray Bolger finally gets his wish. He takes over for Jimmy Durante and Garry Moore on the air. He doesn't have to dance—he'll m. c. His comedy with Bing Crosby July 16 should make tasty listening. . . . Jack Carson hopes to have a dramatic actress all set for his fall show before taking off for the South Pacific. . . . Tony Pastor, whose latest recording is "Five Salted Peanuts," is being deluged with offers from peanut companies for tie-ups. Tony wants it known he doesn't work for peanuts!

The hope that there'll be more meat by the first of next month gives homemakers courage to stick out a few more meatless weeks. The meat shortage probably has hit the business woman hardest. Her only time to shop is Saturday, perhaps as late as Saturday afternoon. By Saturday there's scarcely a scrap of meat to be had anywhere and if she does smell some out, it means wasting her precious free afternoon standing in line. Unwilling or unable to make the effort to find meat, many a business woman-housewife has been serving her family meals completely devoid of meat for weeks on end.

When more meat is available will we have red points for it? When necessary table fats and cooking oils require so many red points, there aren't too many left for meat.

A Racine, Wis., reader thinks more red points should be offered for waste fats. "Even two or three more points a pound for waste fats would stimulate salvage of fats to a considerable degree," she writes.

I don't know why this isn't a good idea. Personally, I've found it takes a long time to collect a can of waste fat these days when most left-over fat has some good cooking use. By the time a homemaker has filled a large can with the stuff she feels she's really making a contribution which deserves more of a reward than two red points a pound.

Two reasons why we can expect to have fewer eggs the rest of the year: Because of the meat shortage we've all been using eggs at an unheard-of rate—50 per capita more than last year. More eggs in the shell are going overseas. A special method for treating the shell to preserve freshness in the eggs has been developed, so service men will be able to eat real, sunnyside-up eggs now and then instead of so many dried ones.

Do you have an interesting way of serving beans—navy beans, kidney beans, lentils, split peas, or any of the other dried members of the legume family? The recipe contest editor would like more recipes of this kind to try out for prizes now that meat is so scarce. If you have a good beany recipe write it up legibly with all the directions and mail it to Recipe Contest, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. You may win one of the daily $5 prizes!

FLATTEN TIN CANS FOR SALVAGE!

Kitchen Pointers

By Mary Meade

"I have a can of blueberries which has bulged at both ends. Are they spoiled?"

Some fruits, including certain berries, react with the metals of the can, and hydrogen gas is liberated. In this case, the fruit is not affected. However, there are certain kinds of food spoilage which also produce gases which swell cans, so bulged ends usually are regarded as evidence of spoilage. It would be wise to check the blueberries carefully for any other signs of spoilage before using.

"Can mineral oil be substituted for salad oil in mayonnaise?"

Yes. Use mineral oil in the same proportions.

"Can light corn sirup be used in canning fruits?"

It can, but the result is not as satisfactory as using sugar. Sirup and honey may cause darkening of fruit and change the flavor somewhat.

"You gave a prize tc a recipe for brains which suggested soaking them in salt water and pre-cooking. I always cook brains without soaking or pre-cooking."

Brains needn't be soaked or pre-cooked, but this treatment helps to make them firm in texture. Since brains are very perishable pre-cooking often is used as a method of holding them between the time they are brought from the market and serving time.

[For answers to your cooking questions call or write Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune, Superior 0200. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with mail requests.]

2,800 Will Be Graduated by 4 Universities

Approximately 2,800 degrees, diplomas and certificates will be conferred by universities of the Chicago area next week.

Northwestern will hold its 87th annual commencement in Deering meadow on the Evanston campus at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday. The 1,450 degrees and diplomas to be awarded will include 137 in medicine, 39 in dentistry, and four in law. Thirteen persons will be made doctors of philosophy. Some members of the navy V-12 program and the reserve officers training corps at Northwestern will receive university degrees. Others will be conferred in absentia on students in military service.

The address will be given by Bishop Edwin F. Lee, head of the Methodist area of Malaysia and the Philippines and director of the general commission on army and navy chaplains.

De Paul university will hold its commencement the same day at 2:30 p. m. in the De Paul auditorium, 2231 Sheffield av. There are to be 449 graduates, including 250 nurses who have completed training courses in 10 hospitals affiliated with De Paul.

The speaker is to be Dr. Oscar Halecki, director of the Polish Institute of Arts and Sciences in America.

Loyola university is also holding its commencement Wednesday. Three hundred fifty students will be graduated at ceremonies in the gymnasium on the north side campus scheduled to start at 6:45 p. m. The principal speaker is to be the Rev. Wilfred M. Mallon, S. J., of St. Louis university, St. Louis, Mo.

Degrees in dentistry will total 36 and those in nursing and nursing education 42. Nursing certificates will be awarded to 219 young women. A law degree is to be conferred on Master Sgt. John P. Keane of 524 S. Harvey av., Oak Park, who has been able to complete, while stationed in Chicago, the course he started as a civilian.

The University of Chicago will graduate 549 persons in two ceremonies in Rockefeller Memorial chapel Friday. Higher degrees will be conferred at 11 a. m., others at 3 p. m. President Robert M. Hutchins will speak at both exercises.

Some colleges of this area already have held their commencements. Rosary graduated 96 on May 31, St. Xavier 70 on June 6, and Central Y. M. C. A. college 53 last night.

Women Win 3 of 4 Art Institute School Travel Fellowships

BY ELEANOR JEWETT

The 65th commencement of the School of the Chicago Art Institute was held yesterday in the Goodman Memorial theater. The most eagerly anticipated event was the announcement by Chauncey McCormick, president of the Art Institute, of the winners of the 1945 foreign traveling fellowship awards.

The Edward L. Ryerson foreign traveling fellowship award of $2,000 was given to Miss Dote Schulze, 6253 Sheridan rd.; the Bryan Lathrop foreign traveling fellowship award of $2,000 went to Miss Bernice Wilderson, 1711 Irving Park blvd.; the James Nelson Raymond foreign traveling fellowship award of $2,000 was won by Miss Nancy Borregaard, 315 Essex rd., Kenilworth, and the Anna Louise Raymond foreign traveling fellowship award of $1,500 went to Byron Goto, Hilo, Hawaii, who lives here at 1529 Haddon av.

It is interesting to note that this year three young women have won these important prizes. The war, one naturally supposes, is at the bottom of it. As a rule the awards have gone to three men and one woman; infrequently they have been divided evenly between the sexes. The winners plan to use their fellowships in South America, Central America, or Mexico.

Russel Wright, noted New York designer, spoke at the commencement, stressing the opportunities in the field of industrial design, with special emphasis on openings for young students.

Hubert Ropp, dean of the school, presented the degrees and diplomas to the various candidates. The Art institute glee club sang. Mr. McCormick presided.

Dance-Timid Boys Baffle Girl Friends

BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

Q. "Maybe this isn't an unusual problem but it's quite a headache to us. At mixed parties which our group gives, the boys never seem to want to dance. They sometimes say later, by way of excuse, that the girls didn't want to dance, either. Often the fellows break down and are going strong by the end of the evening, but then it's too late to make up for the lost fun. The girls have tried to solve the problem by dancing with each other as a small hint but it doesn't seem to work. . . ."

A. Why not try playing a few "mixers" to get things under way? Match the fellows and gals by cutting in two pieces the cards from an old deck, distributing one end to a fellow and one to a girl. Let them search till they find their better half as a dance partner. Or have the boys follow tangled strings, the ends of which are held by each gal. You might even have the girls take off one shoe, mix them in a pile, have each fellow pick a shoe, and then, Prince Charming fashion, find the foot that fits it. Once you have the guys and gals paired off, start the music, and your problem is solved. These mixers may sound a bit old-fashioned but you'd be surprised the fun you can have by turning back your technique a few years.

Q. "There's a fellow in our neighborhood who happens to be very handsome. All the girls at school think he's strictly wonderful, and he knows it. He doesn't go out with girls, plays hard to get, but that just adds to his attraction. Perhaps we should turn our dating interests elsewhere, for how long can a girl [or to be more accurate, 17 girls!] go on dreaming? . . ."

A. Let the boy be number one on your hit parade as long as this admiration doesn't interfere with your active date life. A gal can't waste time date-dreaming about a fellow who doesn't even want to notice the stars in her eyes. Maybe that's Van Johnson's technique, but how many girls can you name who ever had a date with Van Johnson?

War Creates New Need for Foster Homes

Chicago and Cook county today face one of the most serious problems in the wake of war, the care of abandoned, neglected, and dependent children, Miss Joanna C. Menge, head of the temporary care and child placement department of the Cook County Juvenile court, warned yesterday.

One hundred foster homes are needed immediately to care for the increasing number of children being thrust upon the community by circumstances of war, she said. Seventeen dependent children, for which no foster homes were available, were brought to the court in one single day this week.

Since the war, foster home offerings have decreased 80 per cent, while the numbers of dependent children have increased due to the employment of mothers in industry, the drafting of fathers, and the war time increase of unwed mothers, Miss Menge explained. In 1944, there were 715 children cared for in temporary foster homes, pending the investigation of their cases and court action. So far this year, in less than half the time, approximately 500 children have needed care.

The dependent child does not present an adoption problem. He or she is a child having one or both parents with domestic, financial, or sociological problems who need care for an indeterminate period and who may eventually be returned to his home.

The foster homes provide security and family life for only a short period, usually three to four months, while the child's case is investigated and a plan made for his future welfare. After study of his case by the temporary care service of the court in coöperation with foster parents, the child is placed permanently thru an agency caring for children of his own religion or race, is sent to an institution, or is returned to his own family. Miss Menge explained.

A foster home may be any average American home in Chicago or vicinity where its charges may be visited by staff members of the temporary care service. The family must have sufficient income to defray its own budgetary needs and must consist of a complete family unit, both mother and father.

In the present fiscal budget an appropriation of $30,000 was made for the temporary care service by the board of Cook county commissioners of which Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey is chairman of the Juvenile court and detention home committee. From this fund, the service pays for the board, clothing, and medical and dental care of the child in the foster home.

Whereas there is no expense in providing a foster home for a dependent child, there is no profit either, except the satisfaction of aiding others, Miss Menge declared. The satisfaction, however, can be very great when the cases are considered, she said.

Stage Notes

Emil Jannings and Franz Lehar were interviewed at their Salzburg homes recently by Klaus Mann, son of Thomas Mann and a correspondent of Stars and Stripes, and some of the results are relayed by the Associated Press. Mr. Jannings, living on the Lake of St. Wolfgang, said open resistance to the Nazi regime would have meant a concentration camp, but insisted he appeared in just one propaganda picture, "Ohm Krueger," and that on specific orders from Goebbels. The composer of "The Merry Widow," found at Bad Ischl, declined to talk politics, saying, "I hate to discuss ugly things." He has written a Hungarian opera, "Carabonicias," and says his ambition is to visit America and have one of his works produced on Broadway "under my own supervision—exactly the way I want it."

Vivian Vance joins the Selwyn cast of "The Voice of the Turtle" Monday night, July 2, replacing Betty Lawford as Olive Lashbrooke. Miss Lawford's final performance will be Saturday night, June 30.

"United Nations on the March," a tribute to the late President Roosevelt, is announced for performance at Du Sable High school Sunday, June 17, starting at 3 p. m., under the sponsorship of Du Sable lodge, International Workers Order. Participating will be Paul Robeson, the Chicago Allied Opera guild in a presentation of the Lincoln work, "Lonesome Train"; Berenice Holmes, ballet dancer, and others. Tickets are available at lodge headquarters, 67 E. 35th st.

'Midsummer Nightmare'

INSTALMENT XLII.

DISMISSED

Sybrand shook his head all thru North's words. "No, not now. I can't take the responsibility of some one else's money."

North almost gasped. He said:

"I'm afraid it's a little too late to change your mind, Jennesma. Riley wants to invest in your business."

It was quite true that Riley, impetuous and reckless at times, had been insisting on taking a flyer in the thing, against North's advice.

Sybrand said, curtly, "Too bad. But I'm not going on with it now. Sorry to waste his time and yours."

"I'm sorry, too," said North.

Sybrand got it. "What? You don't mean you'd force me to . . . to . . . that you'd make trouble about it?"

North knew this was the only way he could remain on the place for a few days longer.

"You made Riley a definite offer in writing, Jennesma," he was saying. "He's had it investigated, at considerable trouble and expense. He wants to invest. I don't know if I can get him to give it up."

"Do what you want. I've had all I can take. I don't care what any one does. I'm thru."

At the last words he looked straight into North's face. In spite of his fears and anxieties, North

"I see. Then there's no more use my staying here."

"Guess not. Sorry."

"It'll take me a few hours to make plans, Jennesma. I'll get out by 6 this evening."

Sybrand nodded. North felt again that stab of premonition about the man and almost mentioned it. But what was the use!

He closed the door on a few mumbled words of thanks for Jennesma's hospitality.

Half an hour later, he glanced out of the window toward the ravine and saw Miss Warburton coming thru the rain.

He liked the dainty way she picked her steps, the easy graceful way she walked.

He started downstairs to meet her, but she was too quick for him. He heard her at Sybrand's door and went back upstairs. He decided to see French and have a talk with him. He could waylay Olivia on her way out and break the news to her that he was leaving. Then he would drive out and call French from some telephone he felt was more private than these intertwined house lines.

Miss Warburton entered the gloomy office and paused to get accustomed to the gloom.

But she could see the familiar curve of Sybrand's big shoulders behind the desk. He looked old.

"Come in, Miss Warburton." Even his voice was tired.

She shut the door and took the chair he indicated with one of his still heavily-bandaged hands.

"Isn't there anything I can do to help you?"

He sighed. "Thank you. You've always been kind to me. I'll never forget it."

Never forget it? What did that mean?

"You know me better than almost any one. You know what I've been thru. And when I tell you I've taken all I can, just now, you will understand, won't you."

"Of course! I don't wonder you feel that way. If I can only help!"

"I'm glad you said that. Because you can. You may have forgotten that threatening letter you received . . ."

"O no I haven't."

"I'm glad. I feel that way, too. Miss Warburton, I'm asking you to leave. Now wait, please. Don't interrupt. I can't get it out of my head for a minute that some one else will be next and that letter suggests that it might be you."

Miss Warburton felt these words strike home. There was a horrible sensation as if her body contracted and hardened itself.

"If anything happened—I'd feel partly responsible, because I had let you stay here, in spite of that threat. And, as I say, I just cannot take any more."

"But—but——" she couldn't go on. He was right and her whole body was violently agreeing with him. But it seemed despicable to give in to that anonymous bully. In spite of all reason, her pride rebelled.

And there was Lt. French, his request to consider. He had asked her not to resign. He had not mentioned what to do if she were fired. She started to speak, but Sybrand made a gesture.

"Please, Miss Warburton. I hate to lose you, badly enough after all these years."

"But at least give me time to train some one to take my place and get everything in order."

"But you don't understand. No one will take your place here. There won't be any place. I'm not going on with the engine—not for a long time—if ever."

"O, don't say that. It's such a wonderful success! Why—the reports of the last tests——"

Sybrand removed his glasses and held his bandaged right hand over his eyes.

He said: "Please believe me when I say I have thought of everything. And I do appreciate your helpfulness. But I can only have peace of mind if you leave."

"Well—all right. Just one thing, Mr. Jennesma. I'll go if you insist. But Lt. French says he is sure it won't do any good. He thinks—I am in danger—wherever I am from now on."

Sybrand raised his bent head. Raw terror flamed in his eyes for a few seconds. "Wh-at? Who is it?"

Miss Warburton suddenly perceived that all his apparent poise and effort to speak calmly were only a veneer over a fear so great that it was shocking. And the fear was not for her as he pretended. It was for his own self, as she should have expected. Sybrand had always been soft at the core, she knew. And here was pitiful proof.

"I don't know," she answered his question. He hardly heard her, he was so agitated.

She stood up. "All right, Mr. Jennesma. Whatever you say. How soon do you want me to go?"

He spoke in nervous haste. "As soon as you can. Tonight. Or tomorrow morning, at the latest. Every minute counts. You . . . you understand, it's for your sake, don't you. Here's a check. O, dear, where did I put it . . . it was right here . . ." he began to fret and rummage thru his papers with his almost useless hands.

Miss Warburton spied it and pulled it out. Helpful to the last, she told herself sardonically. It was for three months salary. Mrs. Jennesma had signed it. Miss Warburton thanked him. But he hardly seemed to hear her.

Yet . . . it seemed a cruel trick to leave him at such a moment, even if he asked her to go. On whom could he depend now?

Children Have a Vital Place in Real Home

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Come in, I'm so very glad to see you," said a friend of mine the other afternoon.

The house was warm and comfortable, and the most delicious smells greeted my nostrils.

"Betty is baking a cake for the school bazar tomorrow," explained my hostess. "They are trying to raise money for more gymnasium equipment.

"And the noise you hear in the basement is Jane and her small friends roller skating. The weather is so bad outside and they have to get rid of energy somehow," she went on with a laugh.

"O, and Jack has six or eight boys upstairs in his room roasting popcorn in an electric popper. The only time I drew the line was when he wanted butter to add to the taste. That's a bit too much these days.

"Many of the mothers in this neighborhood pack their children off to the movies, especially when the weather is bad, but I like to have mine around where I can see or hear them. They more or less wreck the looks of the house, but they have good times, their friends enjoy it, and it keeps them amused and out of mischief."

We had tea and cake and a nice visit together, and the noise and the busyness of the young people, on all levels in the house, didn't interfere in the least.

"This is, indeed, a home." I thought. "Not a house. But a cheerful, busy, thoroly enjoyable home, not only for the family occupying it but for the neighborhood children as well."

Yet there are many occupied houses which are just that and nothing more: Where the mother scolds when anything is out of place; when the slightest bit of dirt is tracked in by eager, hurrying feet, or a cap, sweater, scarf, or coat is carelessly thrown on a chair or couch. Perfect tidiness is the order of every day living.

Life is just as full as you make it. And it can be full and thoroly enjoyable if you love young persons and prefer to have them about, engrossed in various activities, rather than have a perfect home with a place for everything and everything in its place.

CHURCHILL GETS OPPOSITION FOR JULY ELECTION

Son of Earl Seeks His Seat in Commons

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 8—Three polling days will be held in Britain next month to elect 640 members of the new house of commons.

Most of the country will vote on July 5, but in 23 constituencies the polling day will be postponed to July 12, and one will not vote until July 19.

The innovation, which has to be approved by parliament, is due to the fact that many workers take their annual vacations at the time originally fixed for polling day throughout the country.

Prime Minister Churchill, who until today was unopposed in his district, Woodford, Essex, will be challenged by an Independent, William Douglas-Home, third son of a Scottish earl. Home was released from jail Tuesday after serving a sentence of one year for refusing to fight in the battle of Le Havre.

Communists Make Demands

Home said that he aimed to drive Churchill from control of the Conservative party "into his proper sphere of statesmanship in the house of lords."

The Communist party tonight issude a statement calling for the prosecution of the war in the Pacific until the Japs are defeated, and nationalization of land, coal, power, steel, and transport services. It also asked that millions of homes be provided and rents controled and urged increased wages, pensions, equal pay for men and women doing the same jobs, a 40 hour week, and two weeks' vacations. For agriculture the Communists proposed guaranteed prices and controled imports.

The Communists also want controls on business retained and those on workers lifted.

The Communists, running only 22 candidates, propose to support Laborites in all other constituencies.

Urges War Time Controls

The battle of war time controls continues to feature election speeches. Tom Johnston, a Laborite, and former secretary for Scotland in the coalition cabinet, warned in a broadcast that the lifting of the controls would result in inflation.

Oliver Lyttelton, Conservative, president of the board of trade and minister of production, said that if controls were retained the country would be infested by an army of government investigators probing every detail of traders' and farmers' businesses.

Clement Attlee, Labor party leader, indirectly attacked Churchill when he said that the suggestion that the Labor government policy would endanger small savings was "a mean and disgraceful form of propaganda."

Herbert Morrison, a Laborite and former minister of home security, praised the war time achievements of communism in Russia but, while approving its system of state organization, said that the British Labor party did not want to import the Russian system of political organization.

MRS. ROOSEVELT AT WHITE HOUSE FOR WATSON RITE

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt returned to the White House today to help pay honor to the memory of a close friend of her late husband.

The late President's widow gathered with others in the rose garden of the executive mansion, where President Truman presented posthumously a distinguished service medal for Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson.

The medal was presented to Gen. Watson's widow at a ceremony attended by White House employes. Watson was military aide to Mr. Roosevelt during most of his 12 years in office. He died at sea en route home from the Yalta conference.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Anna Boettiger, was invited to remain at the White House for lunch.

MAY APPOINT McKIBBIN TO TRANSIT BOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Ill., June 8—Gov. Green may appoint George B. McKibbin, state finance director, to the seven-man board which is scheduled to buy and operate the Chicago local transportation lines, statehouse sources said today.

McKibbin, who was the G. O. P. candidate in the Chicago mayoralty race in 1943, is said to be eager to play a role in the experiment of public ownership of transit lines. He is one of Green's most influential advisers. The governor believes the appointment would be to the public interest.

However, the appointment might be held up for two reasons. [1] McKibbin's father-in-law, the late B. E. Sunny, had a substantial interest in the surface lines. [2] McKibbin, like most white property owners in his south side community, had a restrictive covenant prohibiting sale to Negroes. On the other hand he has served as Protestant co-chairman of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews.

FLOOD SWEEPS THRU MISSOURI TOWN; 4 DROWN

Newburg, Mo., June 8 (AP)—At least four persons were drowned and several others are missing in a flash flood which roared along Little Piney river thru Newburg today, destroying the town's business district.

Among the known dead were the wife and daughter of Mayor S. L. Baker.

A heavy rain hit the Little Piney and Beaver creek basins at mid-afternoon, sending flood waters down upon Newburg. About 30 houses along the river front were swept away. Railroad tracks were washed out.

Victims whose bodies were recovered were Mrs. Baker, 50; her daughter, Miss Bernadine Baker, 24; Mrs. Floyd Courson, 40, and her daughter, Darline, 6.

Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court yesterday sentenced Tom Glover, 34, Negro, to life imprisonment at hard labor for the knife decapitation of Evelyn Wren, 35, last May 6 in their quarters at 1929 Ferdinand st. DAY by DAY on the FARM of BEN MARKLAND

June 8, 1945

THE entire crop of 480 acres of corn has been planted on the Fox River farm and in the first 200 acres planted sprouts have come thru the ground. The light frosts Monday and Tuesday morning damaged some of the seedlings, but not to the extent that any fields will require replanting.

All but 45 of the 480 acres were cross-checked in planting. The remaining 45 acres were drilled and corn from these fields will be used for making ensilage. The rainy May weather, which delayed all the planting, caused the men to switch to early maturing hybrid seed. They planted 11 hybrid types, some of which will mature in 90 days with ideal weather. The average maturity period for the varieties planted is 100 days.

Reserve of Moisture

The men would have preferred getting their corn planted a week to 10 days earlier as insurance against early fall frosts, but they remarked this week that the spring weather conditions have been favorable in two respects. The heavy May rains have given the ground a heavy reserve of moisture which the corn will need in case of summer drouths. Secondly, the extra ground fitting work done by the farmers after the rains has almost eliminated the early crop of weeds. The ground was plowed and dragged in preparation for early May planting; then the ensuing rains packed the ground and forced the men to disc and harrow a second time before planting. This second fitting of the soil eliminated most of the weeds, with the result that the new corn is coming up in ground almost weed free.

First Blossoms Showing

During the next 10 days the men will make their first rounds of the corn fields with cultivators and after that job is done it is probable that the alfalfa will be ready to cut.

The first blossoms are showing now and the manager plans to make the cutting when the alfalfa is in the half bloom stage.

The Fox River men are ahead of most middle western farmers in field work, mainly because they worked long hours when the ground was ready for planting. Several days they had four tractors in the fields from 5:30 a. m. until 8:30 p. m. The weather bureau reports that only 65 per cent of the Illinois corn crop was planted prior to June 5.

★The GARDEN★

PAPER wrappings on the stems of tomato, pepper, cabbage, and other transplants, as described in this space May 18 and 19, provide the most certain protection against cutworms. In plots where these susceptible plants have been put in the ground without paper protection, gardeners should be prepared to make poison baits for the insects in case of cutworm attacks.

A mixture containing ⅛ of a pound of bran and one teaspoonful of Paris green can be combined with a solution containing one teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of molasses in ½ pint of water. Small quantities of this mixture should be placed on pieces of shingle in several places around the garden. Cutworms feed only at night and therefore the bait should be put out in the evening and picked up the following morning to prevent poisoning of dogs and other pets.

Cutworms seem to avoid garden areas containing ashes. Many gardeners place coal ashes on the surface of cucumber and other vine hills to repel these insects during the early part of the season.

N. Y. MAYOR RACE A FREE FOR ALL; TWO DEMOCRATS

Tammany Man Made G.O.P. Choice

New York, June 8 (AP)—The naming of a Democrat, Judge Jonah J. Goldstein, as the Republicans' candidate for mayor of New York City today produced a political uproar that gave promise of resulting in a three way free for all fight.

These were the principal developments a few hours after the city's five Republican leaders indorsed Goldstein to head their city ticket:

1. Newbold Morris, named by the Republicans for renomination as city council president, turned it down and said he was willing to make a primary fight against Goldstein on a "good government" ticket.

2. Samuel Seabury, leader of three successful fusion campaigns for Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, said neither Goldstein nor Brooklyn District Attorney William C'Dwyer, the Democratic leaders choice for mayor, was "worthy of support." Seabury declared.

"I think there is a sufficient regenerative force in the community to form some party which will nominate worthy candidates upon which it can make a successful appeal to the people of the city of New York."

Morris Backed by Fusion

Morris had fusion support when he was elected four years ago and almost certainly would get the party's backing for the higher office unless La Guardia, now completing his third term, changed his mind and sought reelection.

Referring to his indorsement by the Republican leaders, Morris said: "I made no effort to obtain any nomination. Every one knew my first choice was La Guardia. I never gave up hoping he would run and I haven't yet given up that hope." Morris said the Goldstein slate would become known as the "yellow dog ticket." Seabury said it meant that "we now have two Tammany hall tickets in the field." Informed of Morris' withdrawal, Goldstein said: "It will mean the selection of a far superior candidate."

Bar Radical Support

In naming Goldstein and Morris, as well as indorsing Controler Joseph D. McGoldrick for reelection, the Republican chairmen specified they must "not accept the nomination or support of the communist controled American labor party."

The state chairman of the ALP is Sidney Hillman, who also heads the CIO political action committee.

Brooklyn Republican Leader John R. Crews said Gov. Dewey, whose term expires next year, was "highly pleased" with the selection of Goldstein.

Goldstein will be indorsed formally tomorrow by the Liberal party, formed a year ago as a right wing offshoot of the Labor party. He also is expected to have the support of the City Fusion party, which gave La Guardia 63,367 votes in 1941.

BY EDWARD BURNS

Paul Derringer and hard-hitting Cub associates cooled off the rampant Reds yesterday in a 7 to 3 defeat of the Cincies, who came to town boasting 11 victories in their last dozen starts. It was Large Paul's seventh victory, tying his total for all last season, and gave him a lifetime National league total of 214 successes.

Bill Nicholson

The triumph, second over the Reds in two games played this season, lifted the Cubs from sixth to fifth and plunked the Reds from fourth to sixth.

Nicholson Passes Test

Bill Nicholson, Cub strong man, passed his pre-induction physical exam yesterday morning. Bill didn't holler it, but the doc knows he is more than 30. First baseman Heinz Becker yesterday received a notice from his draft board in Dallas, Tex., inviting him to appear for examination on June 18. Heinz will ask transfer of his papers to Chicago, it was indicated. Lefty Bob Chipman missed yesterday's game while taking his examination.

Derringer, staked to a 1 to 0 lead in the first inning on singles by Don Johnson and Phil Cavarretta, protected that skimpy advantage thru the first five innings and in the sixth the Cubs fattened their edge to 3 to 0 on a single by Cavarretta, a whizzing double by Andy Pafko, the first of three intentional passes given Nicholson, a fly by Mickey Livingston and the second of Lennie Merullo's three singles.

Reds Finally Score

The 3 to 0 lead disappeared in the seventh, in which the Reds scored on the Cubs the first time this season. Dick Sipek opened with a triple to left center and scored on Eddie Miller's grounder to Merullo, Miller reaching second, when Len threw wide of first base.

Derringer became temperamental for the nonce and Al Unser snapped him out of his mild tantrum by busting one into the left field bleachers, scoring behind Miller to tie the score.

The tie didn't last long, the Cubs routed 44 year old Hod Lisenbee in the seventh to win the game. With one down, Cavarretta delivered his third hit, a double to right center, and scored on Pafko's second hit, a single to left. Nicholson was again given an intentional pass, then Livingston popped to Miller. Merullo singled to left, scoring Pafko, and Derringer singled to left, scoring Nicholson and Merullo.

Old Ghosts Arise

They're tearing down one of the town's oldest homes
To make way for a building boom,
As the walls come down a glimpse may be had
Of each old and lovely room.

Older folks pause as they wander by
And speak in a saddened tone,
Of the vanished delights of that mansion bright
And the life it had one time known.

How some of the furniture came from France
In the century's early teens,
Thence up the river by steamboat
"All the way from New Or-leens."

Of the guests of state who had dined there,
Then they tell with eyes alight
Of how even a President one time
Abided there overnight.

The young folks pass by with hardly a glance,
Their thoughts on a bright tomorrow,
Youth hasn't yet time for its yesterdays
With their sad little tug of sorrow.

But as the dust arises from crumbling bricks
While the wreckers' busy hands fly
Ghosts of old memories rise in the hearts
Of the older folks passing by!

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Detroit, Mich., June 8—By the courtesy of the White Sox who are pretty nice about such things, the Detroit Tigers ascended into first place in the American league race at about a quarter to 8 o'clock eastern time this evening. The Tigers made the move as the result of a 2 to 1 success over the fifth place Chicagoans in a twilight game, the alteration removing the Yankees from the lead role which they took over from the Sox on May 25.

Thornton Lee picked up his third defeat altho he worked only six innings, his downfall being the outcome of a blast manipulated by Roger Cramer, Jim Outlaw, and Bob Swift in the fourth. But the real surprise for 14,385 cash customers was the way in which the Sox, altho the producers of only four hits in the entire argument, banished Forrest Orrell from the scene in the ninth and brought on the illustrious Dizzy Trout who was supposed to be ailing. Against Diz they didn't even slap a ball beyond the infield.

Looks Easy At Start

At the start the Sox had no reason to know they were up against something tough. Two of them—Orls Hockett and John Dickshot—walked with two out in the first and there even was an error by Eddie Mayo, who dropped a throw after getting the decision on Hockett's attempt to steal second. This pair died on the bases when Tony Cuccinello, the very best of the Sox hitters, fouled to York. Thereafter, however, Sox base runners were as scarce as white broadcloth shirts.

Rudy York, who isn't hitting as yet, popped out before the Tigers launched their two run expedition in the fourth. Cramer paced the incident with his double, which careened down the left field line. Cass Michaels knocked down Outlaw's single, thus causing Cramer to tarry at third base, whence he scored the first run on Maier's lengthy fly to Hockett. Then Swift's double skimmed across the grass in left center, and Outlaw counted. The inning ended with Swift being nipped trying to steal third.

Trout to the Rescue

The Sox thought they had something cooking in the seventh but it was merely a window display known as three men on bases. Dickshot led with a single, the second hit for the Dykes tourists. After Cuccinello had filed out Le Roy Schalk singled and Dickshot galloped to third. Michaels was handed a pass, filling the bases, but all that happened immediately thereafter was two fly balls, one by Mike Tresh and the other by Guy Curtright, who batted for Lee.

Wally Moses walked to open the eighth and from this gift the lone Sox run blossomed on the second single by Dickshot. The biggest disturbance for the Tigers was when Trout had to dash in as a helper in the ninth. The inning opened with Orrell walking Schalk and there were two on when York threw late to second on Michaels' bunt. This is where Trout appeared. Tresh fanned attempting to bunt, Bill Nagel batted for Earl Caldwell, who had relieved Lee and Trout threw him out. After Moses had been purposely passed, Kerby Farrell tapped to Maier to end the show.

225 ENTERED IN TODAY'S N. C. A. A. TRACK CARNIVAL

BY WILFRID SMITH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 8—More than 225 athletes from 31 colleges and universities, including the United States Naval academy, assembled today preparatory to the 24th annual National Collegiate track meet tomorrow night in Marquette university stadium. Qualifying trials in 10 events are scheduled tomorrow afternoon with 14 champions on the evening program.

Opening ceremonies will be held at 8 p. m. and Bill Bangert of Missouri, defending N. C. A. A. discus throw champion, will sing the "Star-Spangled Banner." Bangert, a voice student at Columbia, Mo., previously appeared at the Drake relays. The mile championship, in which Ross and Bob Hume of Michigan will defend their 1944 honors, will be decided at 8:15 and the games will end at 9:50 o'clock despite the addition of three high school events.

Several Stars Back

Other defending champions in action tomorrow are Francis Martin of New York university who won the two mile title competing for Notre Dame; John Schmidt, Ohio State, and Bob Phelps, Illinois, who shared the 1944 pole vault title, and Kenneth Wiesner of Marquette, who took the high jump at 6 feet 7¾ inches.

Navy is the favorite to win the team title because of its large number of entries and because six places count in the scoring. The midshipmen, winner of the I. C. 4-A title, will not be quite as strong, however, as they were in the games at West Point, N. Y.

Illini to Defend Title

Illinois won last year, ending Southern California's domination of national collegiate track. Since the Trojans won in 1943 at Lincoln, Neb.,—their ninth consecutive victory—they have not competed because of travel restriction.

Neither Illinois nor Michigan will have complete squads but the Illini will present George Walker, Big Ten winner in the 100 yard dash and both hurdles; Henry Aihara and Marce Gonzalez, who won the conference broad jump and 220 yard sprint, respectively. The Humes lead Michigan's entry which also includes Dick Forrestel, quarter miler, and Charles Birdsall, Big Ten two mile champion.

C. C. C. Champions Entered

Fred Feiler, Central Collegiate two mile title holder, and Lee Hofacre, who took the low hurdles and 440 yard dash in the same meet, are included in Drake's entry. Harold [Whitey] Fisher of Miami university, Oxford, O., again will face Walker in the high hurdles. Walker was beaten by Fisher at the Drake relays. Both also are entered in the low hurdles.

If Bangert retains his discus championship—he may be hard pressed by Jack Dugger of Ohio State; Bob Seligman of Georgia Tech, or Joe Kelly of Notre Dame—he should be a double winner as he has been the best of the shot putters.

The first choice in the betting is Hoop Jr., owned by F. W. Hooper. Eddie Arcaro, winner of two Derbies, will ride the star from the east. Upper right is Misweet, only filly among the entries.

Willie Joyce Wins Verdict Over Williams

New York, June 8 (AP) — Altho knocked down for a count of two in the last round, Willie Joyce, a 13 to 5 underdog, staggered to his feet and floored Ike Williams in turn to win a 10 round split decision over the N. B. A. lightweight champion in a nontitle bout in Madison Square Garden tonight.

A crowd of 12,491 that paid $53,106 screamed itself hoarse in the last round as Joyce, apparently out, got to his feet and outslugged Ike the rest of the round.

A right to the chin put Williams down for one. Seconds later Joyce knocked Williams half way thru the ropes, altho Ike stayed on his feet and came back trying desperately.

Williams Takes Early Rounds

It was the third victory for Joyce in four meetings with Williams who was making his first start since winning the N. B. A. title from Juan Zurita in Mexico City last April 18.

At the end Judge Marty Monroe and the Associated Press each gave Joyce six rounds and Williams four. Referee Johnny Burns gave Joyce five, Williams three and called two even. Judge Harold Barnes voted for Williams, six to four.

Williams, relying mostly on jabs, won the first three rounds, hurting Joyce with an uppercut in the second. Joyce shifted to a body attack, starting in the fourth, and swept the next four with sharper, cleaner blows as Williams visibly slowed up.

Ike Tries Hard in Tenth

Joyce stung Ike in the fifth and sixth with blows to the midsection, but lost the eighth when Williams landed several uppercuts that made Joyce cover up. Joyce won the ninth handily, however, to set the stage for the furious 10th.

Williams cut loose from the 10th round bell, knowing he needed a knockout to win. He drove Joyce across the ring and rapped home a short right to the chin. Joyce went down with eyes glazed, but was up at two. Williams moved in, but Joyce fought back furiously. A right sent Williams down for one. He swayed half way thru the ropes as Joyce landed another right, but worked loose and the two swung toe to toe the rest of the way.

ICANGETIT AND QUIZZLE MEET IN STEGER TODAY

Leon Tikulski's Icangetit, which originally was scheduled to be going postward in the Kentucky Derby this afternoon will match strides with a dozen rivals in the $5,000 Steger handicap, a six and one-half furlong affair which headlines the Lincoln Fields program at Hawthorne.

Coupled in the wagering with Holdall, Icangetit was a nominal overnight favorite at 5 to 2 with indications that A. S. Higgins' Quizzle would open on the odds board at 3 to 1.

Glidewell Rides Double

Paul Glidewell rode the daily double at Hawthorne yesterday. He scored by a nose aboard Miss Tullahoma in the first and repeated on Alvan in the second. Miss Tullahoma paid $34.40 in the straight wagering and Alvan was $12.80. The combination pay-off was $202.40.

Yesterday's featured sixth race, a mile and 70 yards event went to the lightly weighted Latent, racing for J. Sands and ridden by Apprentice Jack Fliter. Taken to the front immediately, the 6 year old lengthened her margin gradually and had three lengths to spare at the finish. J. H. Miles' Rush Act was second and Bolo's Choice, third.

The day's total wagering was $775,908.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Louisville, Ky., June 8—As the band swings into the nostalgic strains of "My Old Kentucky Home" tomorrow at historic Churchill Downs, a little filly will have her nose in front as 16 thorobreds parade onto the track for the 71st running of the tradition-steeped Kentucky Derby, one of the turf world's richest races.

Misweet, the pride of Mount Clements, Mich., which will carry Jockey Arthur Craig and the colors of Arthur Rose, drew post position No. 1 as 16 trainers slipped the names of their charges into the entry box for the $75,000 added event. To the owner of the winner will go the largest prize in the long history of the Blue Grass fixture, $64,850, if all start.

Altho the bay daughter of Bel Aethel-Lillias will be the first upon the track, the backing of an anticipated crowd of 80,000 will be on one of the three speedsters shipped in from the east, F. W. Hooper's Hoop Jr., winner of one division of the Wood Memorial and rated the classiest of a sparkling field.

Arcaro's After No. 3

Hoop Jr., which will have hard-riding Eddie Arcaro in the saddle in quest of his third Derby triumph, drew the outside slot in the 13 horse main starting gates, a choice position for the son of Sir Gallahad III, should the track remain as as muddy as it was today after an all night drizzle and an early morning downpour.

However, reports from near-by Bowman army air field promise only scattered showers tonight and a full day of sunshine tomorrow. In that case, according to Tom Young, track superintendent, the sandy track could be very fast by the time the big seventh race is run [about 5:05 p. m. Chicago time].

TRIBUNE PICKS

Following are the Kentucky Derby choices of Tribune staff writers:
Maurice Shevlin—Hoop Jr., Alexis, Pot O' Luck, Jeep.
Handicapper—Jeep, Hoop Jr., Pot O' Luck, Alexis.

First name in the entry box was Darby Dieppe, surprise victor in the recent Blue Grass stakes, principal preparatory test for Derby nominees. The fleet son of Foray II. is owned by Mrs. W. G. Lewis of Evarts, Ky., and is trained by Charley Gentry who just beat Ivan Parke, trainer of Hoop Jr., into Racing Secretary Larry Bogenschutz's office.

Darby Likes the Mud

Darby Dieppe's chances for becoming the first gray horse ever to win the Derby are considered better if a muddy track prevails, but then the 5 to 2 favorite Hoop Jr. also moves up in heavy going as does J. H. Brink's Foreign Agent, Henry Lunger's Alexis, Lt. Comdr. T. D. Buhl's Air Sailor, James Brent's Tiger Rebel, J. K. Houssels' Bymesbond, and Misweet. The filly will be the 27th of her sex to enter the big race, only one of which hit the wire in front—Regret in 1915.

While Hoop Jr. with the cagy Arcaro guiding his destinies for the day, has established himself as the horse to beat, the turf experts aren't counting out the Calumet farm's Pot o' Luck by any means. They know that anything Missouri Ben Jones sharpens up for Derby day will be in the running and Pot o' Luck's record includes victories in the Pimlico Futurity and

RECONVERSION TASKS SIMPLER IN MIDDLE WEST

Its Industries Less Dislocated by War

Industry in the middle west is in a position to reconvert more easily to peace time operations than in other parts of the country where war production has been out of proportion to normal activity, the Chicago regional office of the department of commerce said yesterday. The end of the European war, permitting a gradual reconversion during production for the Japanese war, will help ease the situation.

The department's conclusions were based on a survey made by Robert H. Perry, regional business consultant in Chicago.

No Kinks for Food Processors

Perry said many companies such as food processors will have no reconversion problem. Others to a greater or lesser degree will have to dismantle war facilities to make way for peace time assembly lines. The automobile industry, however, faces a more acute problem. About 5,000 new machine tools must be acquired and plants must be cleared of government equipment—a task which will be made more difficult because of lack of storage space.

The machine tool situation was reported to be less a bottleneck than originally expected as a result of war production board steps to expedite deliveries.

Perry said disposition of government owned materials was proving especially difficult for some companies. One Milwaukee company, for example, has current inventories 3½ times pre-war levels and none can be adapted to peace production.

Tells Order of Availability

Companies having such surpluses of government owned materials cannot undertake reconversion until a large part of the materials is taken off their hands.

Perry said reports indicated that washing machines, sewing machines, stoves, and radios will be among the first civilian goods produced, with refrigerators and automobiles last.

Little transitional unemployment is expected if war contracts are cut back or cancelled gradually. With increasing civilian production made possible, plus the elimination or reduction of over time work and retirement of older men and women, it was believed that reëmployment may keep pace with job layoffs. Food companies, candy makers, and steel companies reported man power shortages.

Costs Are Serious Problem

"A serious problem in reconverting to civilian goods production is the matter of costs," said Perry. "Manufacturers' prices have been frozen at pre-war levels in conformity with a price structure which no longer exists. With increased raw materials and labor costs before them manufacturers face a period in which profits may be squeezed to a point where production is impaired."

Perry learned that production of entirely new products was included in plans of many manufacturers in the region.

One Rockford tool manufacturer expressed his belief that the technological improvements made during the war made most of the so-called standard machine tools out of date. He said sweeping changes would be necessary and new standards must be established to provide industry with the tools needed for tomorrow's requirements.

FIRST POST-WAR IRONERS GO OUT AS BOND PRIZES

Fifty home electric ironers produced by the Hurley Machine company, the first made since WPB lifted restrictions on their output, were placed on cargo planes yesterday for shipment to various parts of the country.

Distributors will turn the ironers over to officials of the 7th war loan drive in their localities. They will be used in most instances as prizes for women selling war bonds.

WHITING CORPORATION

Please give me information regarding Whiting corporation's products and earnings?—R. P.

Whiting, a long established manufacturer of a wide variety of heavy industrial equipment at Harvey, Ill., has diversified its business by adding spray dryers used in processing such foods as eggs and milk in powdered form. Rights to manufacture and sell this equipment were purchased in 1943 from Douthitt, Gray-Jensen company. Whiting does not at present make the components for the dryers.

Its older products include coal pulverizing and combustion equipment, cranes, foundry, chemical process, and aircraft maintenance equipment, railroad shop specialties, and metal working machinery. Whiting's sales rose from $2,688,000 in the fiscal year ended April 30, 1939, to $15,321,000 in the 1944 fiscal year and $16,266,000 in the nine months ended Jan. 31, 1945.

Last November the company repurchased 37,740 shares of its common stock, the only issue outstanding, at $20 a share, its par value and the approximate market price at the time. Recently the stock has sold over the counter at about $45. To finance the purchase the company negotiated a $600,000 serial 3½ per cent bank loan.

On the 54,731 shares remaining outstanding, the net income of $580,998, before renegotiation of war contracts, in the nine months ended last January was equal to $10.61 a share. In the fiscal year ended April 30, 1944, the profit was $402,477; in 1943, $387,133. Dividends so far in 1945 totaled $1.10 a share and in the calendar year 1944 $1 was paid.

Stockholders will vote June 26 on a proposal to split the stock, four shares for one.

Retain Some of Synthetic Plants: Davis

The United States must continue the operation of at least a part of the synthetic rubber plants after the war so that it may never again be caught with an inadequate supply, Francis B. Davis Jr., chairman of United States Rubber company, said yesterday.

Francis B. Davis Jr.

He told the Executives' Club of Chicago at a luncheon meeting in the Hotel Sherman that the attack on Pearl Harbor, with the resulting abrupt halt in the supply of natural rubber, could have lost the war for the allies.

Margin of Safety Narrow

"Fortunately our industry and government had the foresight to accumulate the largest stockpile of rubber in our history, amounting to a year's supply," Davis said. "Even so, our margin of safety was so narrow that this country is firmly resolved never to be caught in this position again.

"The American public knows that this cannot be accomplished merely by having standby plants which do not operate. Such plants have a way of being neglected and forgotten and finally disposed of. The average citizen is going to demand the continued operation of at least a portion of the synthetic rubber plants."

Davis said of the estimated 1⅛ million tons a year rubber consumption after the war, 100,000 tons of synthetic would be needed for special purposes, 200,000 tons of GR-S synthetic for "insurance," and 400,000 tons of natural where it is decidedly superior, which would leave 800,000 tons to be determined as to type.

View on Price Structure

"We hope that each type of rubber will be allowed to seek its own price level in a free, unmanipulated market so that the best rubber at the lowest cost, be that natural or synthetic, will be available to the industry," he asserted. "This is the only way by which we can continue to serve the public as we have in the past."

Davis said as long as the war continues improvement in the civilian tire situation will be slow and it will be late 1945 or possibly 1946 before the A card holder can get a new tire. Illustrating the public's current interest in rubber, Davis said:

"Recently we received a letter from a woman asking if we could spare few synthetic rubber plants—she said she wanted them for her victory garden."

LARGE NATIONAL INCOME RELATED TO GOOD SELLING

Creative and effective selling methods will be necessary after the war to dispose of the goods which must be produced if a national income of 140 billion dollars a year is to be achieved, John C. Harkness, sales manager of the Crane company, told the Chicago Sales Executive club at a luncheon in the University club yesterday.

He said the present "sellers' market" with its many scarce articles would give way to a "buyers'" market with plenty of goods, requiring efficient salesmen.

A survey of representative companies in Chicago showed that sales positions were stable, well paid, and led to important promotions. The survey was undertaken as a part of the club's program to promote selling as a career to returning veterans and high school and college students.

Belden Manufacturing Stock Offer Is Approved

Directors of Belden Manufacturing company have authorized an offering of 24,154 shares of $10 par value in the ratio of one share for each 10 shares held by stockholders of record June 19, Whipple Jacobs, president, announced. Proceeds of the offering that will be made by July 2, amounting to $241,540 if all rights are exercised, will be added to the company's working capital.

WFA Lifts Cheese Output Limitations Until July 15

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—The war food administration today suspended until July 15 war food order 92, established early in the war, which limited cheese production to 1942 levels, to assure a maximum supply of cheddar cheese for military, lend-lease, and civilian purposes.

PLAN TO SLASH TARIFFS MORE GETS SETBACK

Committee Strikes Trade Act Power

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 8—Administration plans to cut already reduced tariff rates by as much as 50 per cent more received a setback today when the senate finance committee struck out a provision for the additional slashes by a 10 to 9 vote before reporting the trade agreements extension bill to the senate.

Three Democrats—Senators Walsh [Mass.], Johnson [Colo.], and Gerry [R. I.]—joined the Republicans on the committee to reverse the action of the house to grant the administration power to cut by as much as half any import duties in effect Jan. 1, 1945. The amendment was proposed by Sen. Taft [R., O.].

Halve Rate on 42 Pct. of Goods

Under the 1934 trade agreements act, the administration has negotiated reciprocal treaties with foreign nations cutting rates on 42 per cent of dutiable goods to half of the rates provided for in the Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930. President Truman had joined administration spokesman in terming power to make the added slashes "essential" to promote post-war foreign trade.

The committee defeated a Taft proposal to limit the extension of the act to two years instead of the three years provided in the bill. It also turned down a proposal by Sen. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], offered in committee by Johnson, for congressional review of all trade agreements.

Other amendments defeated included a ban on making trade pacts affecting strategic materials, proposed by Sen. Bailey [D., N. C.]; a freeze of duties on wool, asked by Johnson, and a freeze of duties on cordage, proposed by Sen. Brewster [D., Me.].

Close Vote Is Expected

The present trade act expires June 12—the day Sen. George [D., Ga.], finance committee chairman, plans to bring the extension bill up for action in the senate.

Committee members predicted a close fight on the question of granting the administration the right to make further tariff cuts when the question is brought to a vote again in senate debate.

O'Mahoney, it was learned, also will introduce his amendment providing for congressional review when the bill reaches the floor. He told the committee last week congress must take back its constitutional duty to fix tariffs.

PARLEY CALLED IN FIGHT ON ICC RAIL RATE ORDER

Columbus, O., June 8 (AP)—Plans to seek modification of the recent interstate commerce commission interim order increasing freight rates in northern and eastern states while lowering them in the south and west will be made at a conference in Columbus June 27, Atty. Gen. Hugh S. Jenkins announced today.

Jenkins said he had called a meeting of all counsel of record representing the north and east in the cases from which the commission's order arose. It will seek "to decide on a unified course of action and the procedure" to be followed in contesting the ICC action.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche said the order would place Ohio industry at a competitive disadvantage and requested Jenkins to do everything he could to bring about its annulment.

Lighter Newsprint Report to U. S. Unit Due Monday

MONTREAL, Que., June 8 (AP)—United States delegates to a two day closed meeting of paper manufacturers and newspaper publishers today said they would report to the full committee of the WPB publishing and printing division in Washington Monday. The main topic was understood to be the technical problem involved in production of 30 pound newsprint instead of the present standard 32 pound paper.

Open Pullman Drive for Car Shop Workers

Hundreds of new workers are needed at once to repair and refurbish Pullman cars for transporting the 2,500,000 troops to be redeployed from the European to the Pacific war theaters, and thousands of other troops moving from one part of the country to another, army and Pullman company officers said yesterday. Col. I. Sewell Morris, chairman of the railroad urgency committee, said the army is aiding the drive for workers.

The Pullman company's Calumet shops at 701 E. 114th st. need 54 skilled workers and 100 helpers and laborers at once and will require 468 more within a few weeks. Included are 402 mechanics, 166 helpers, 50 laborers, and 4 miscellaneous.

Car Builder Needs 1,000

The Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company's car works at 111th st. and Cottage Grove av. needs 425 new men within 30 days and will require more than 1,000 in the next 60 days. The skills are painters, joiners, assemblers, trimmers, upholsterers, and seamstresses.

A part of the program to carry the expected heavy traffic load includes the reconversion of 600 old tourist sleepers. About three such cars are being made available daily and if additional help were available five cars could be turned out daily. About 69 cars from the company's fleet are used daily for hospital service and on many occasions this number is much higher. The daily average is expected to increase as the army speeds the return of wounded men from Europe and the Pacific.

Make Only Needed Repairs

The Pullman-Standard shops are repairing an average of four cars a day and the number will be increased as men and materials become available. Because of the speed needed only repairs which guarantee the safety or utility of cars are being made.

Maj. Gen. Charles P. Gross, chief of transportation, said the only way the nation can meet its promise to soldiers to clear them in less than 48 hours from the staging areas and again in less than 48 hours from reception centers is to have available a stream of special trains and space on regular trains.

"This means the public must be denied the rail service recently available," he said.

MATCHES LIGHT AFTER 10 HOURS UNDER WATER

Production of water resistant matches which will light after more than 10 hours of unprotected submersion in water was announced yesterday by the Universal Match company, St. Louis.

The company undertook development of such a match at the request of the army and navy after the ordinary type was found useless in the steaming jungles of the South Pacific. It has manufactured "several billion" of the matches, all for use by military personnel.

Praised by the WPB as a "substantial contribution to the war, the match is much like the common kitchen variety except that the head and more than half of the stick are coated with a green, luminescent solution developed by Universal.

Transport Big Problem That Holland Faces

BY JAMES SLOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, June 8—Comparable to and directly linked with Holland's severe coal shortage is its large need of transport. Because of war ravages and German thefts the country is seriously short of ships, railway rolling stock, canal boats, trucks, and bridges.

At the start of the war the Dutch had 3 million gross tons of shipping, of which 1,627,000 tons have been lost. An additional 35,000 tons of the 170,000 tons of replacements from the united nations shipping pool also have been sunk. Thus the Dutch are unable to play a sizable part in providing bottoms in which to carry needed food, raw materials, and machinery.

Harbor Damage Heavy

Damage to major Dutch harbors has been severe. At Amsterdam, where more than 40 million dollars worth of work is needed, 156 big cranes have been destroyed, as well as miles of quays and warehouses and more than 20 oil storage tanks. However, it is expected that Rotterdam and Ijmuiden will be back to normal shipping soon, as will some smaller ports.

Railways suffered heavier losses. The Germans stole 13,000 freight cars. Only 13 usable locomotives have been recovered in the southern part of the country. Eighty-five per cent of the country's coal cars have been seized by the Germans or destroyed in air raids. The value of railway material stolen has been set at more than 40 millions. What few Dutch railway cars have been recovered have been put into the general allied pool for all liberated countries. Fifty locomotives have been ordered from Sweden and the Dutch say they also will probably buy rail equipment from the United States.

Order U. S. Buses, Trucks

Most of Holland's 175,000 motor trucks suffered the same fate as did her rail cars. A few private cars were successfully hidden from the Germans. Four hundred buses are on order, some from the United States. Orders also have been placed for 25,000 trucks, 6,000 of which have been delivered.

The destruction of bridges, coupled with the devastation of the railways, has cut Holland into three zones: Northwest, south, and east. Long detours are necessary for food supply trains to find rail hubs and bridges still in operation, causing an even larger drain on skimpy coal supplies. Arnhem, famous as the scene of the abortive British airborne landing, is one of the key funnels thru which rail traffic moves since at least one of its bridges still is operating.

MONTH'S PRODUCTION OF WAR PLANES RUNS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Washington, D. C., June 8 (AP)—War plane production in May topped the declining schedule of manufacture for the third successive month with 6,354 planes delivered, the war production board announced today. The total was nine planes ahead of schedule, but a decline from the April production of 6,412.

Chairman Krug of WPB and the aircraft production board said 2,168 bombers were delivered, 15 above schedule. He said the month showed a reduction of 3 per cent from April in airframe weight—the weight minus engines and armament. The output was 71,600,000 pounds. Average daily output was 235 planes, against 256 in April.

"Even with recently announced cutbacks, the combined aircraft program of the army air forces and navy calls for a rate of production in the last quarter of the year only 29 per cent lower than that in the first quarter," Krug said.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

The Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company yesterday announced the election of William L. Sims II. as vice president in charge of the foreign department. He has been with the company for more than 20 years, most of which were spent in Italy and France. STOCK MARKET ENDS UNEVEN IN HEAVIER TRADE

Alleghany Decision Helps Carriers

New York, June 8 (AP)—Assorted rails and specialties exhibited renewed strength in today's stock market, but many other leaders were stalled by cautious selling.

Main bullish factors again were: Idle money seeking profitable investment, optimism over peace time transport and business prospects, lessening of transition worries as the government's war spending in May achieved a record, and a mild revival of inflation psychology. Among handicaps was the fact that the market was in the fourth year of its advance to highest levels since 1937 and further talk of anti-speculation moves.

Carriers were helped by the interstate commerce commission legalization of Alleghany corporation control of the Chesapeake and Ohio system and stocks in this group were among the strongest issues.

Turnover Is Increased

Low quoted issues accounted for most of the volume from the start. Gains running to 2 or more points were reduced or converted into losses in a number of cases. Transfers of 1,710,000 shares compared with 1,300,000 Thursday and were the largest since May 7.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite was unchanged at 66. The trading was broad, 950 issues registering.

Among top gainers, some at 8 year peaks, were Nickel Plate common and preferred, up 2¾ and 5¾, respectively; Alleghany common and preferred, Douglas Aircraft, American Woolen common and preferred, United States Lines, Martin Parry, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred, and Dow Chemical.

RAIL BONDS ARE FIRM

New York, June 8 (AP)—The bond market was dominated by rail liens which were generally steady to higher today, with some issues recording gains of a point or more. Philadelphia Reading Coal and Iron 6s advanced 3, and Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana 4½s rose 2½. Others with gains of 1 to 2½ included Cuba railway 7s of '46, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western income of '93, and Rock Island 4s of '88.

CHICAGO STOCKS UNEVEN

Prices closed uneven yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange in turnover of 36,000 shares. Among the leaders were Electric Household Utilities, up ¾; Cities Service, up ⅝; Chicago corporation and St. Louis National Stockyards, unchanged; and Admiral corporation, down ¼.

SUPPLY OF HOGS SHRINKS AFTER GAINS IN WEEK

The pork and hog supply situation tightened at the Chicago stock yards yesterday when receipts fell below the average of the last six Fridays. Arrivals of 9,000 head were 4 per cent less than a week earlier and 2 per cent less than the six week Friday average.

Despite the supply dip, the five day hog run at the yards was the largest since the week ended March 3 and 24 per cent above the average of the last six weeks. However, the total was 51 per cent smaller than a year ago.

It was a buyers' market in cattle, farmers having sold liberally this week, but prices were about steady.

The scant supply of sheep and lambs sold steady.

BRITISH RELIEVE SOME GOODS OF EXPORT CONTROL

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—The board of trade today freed of war time export licensing regulations certain British products, including asbestos goods, abrasives, metal items, and various classes of machinery.

"Overriding claims of the war against Japan and the need to send essential supplies to the empire and other countries [including liberated territories] will mean that many of the goods now removed from export licensing control will not be freely available for export for some time," the board said.

Court Orders Surface Lines Interest Paid

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK

Overdue interest on the first mortgage bonds of the Chicago Surface Lines, amounting to more than $3,600,000, yesterday was ordered paid by Federal District Judge Igoe. Trustees of the lines reported ample cash on hand to make the payment.

At the same time, Judge Igoe announced that the so-called trustees' plan for the unification and operation of the surface and elevated lines under private ownership had been killed by an unfavorable report on its feasibility by the Illinois commerce commission. The only plan for reorganization of the properties, both in bankruptcy, now before the court is the Chicago Metropolitan Transit authority scheme that was approved in a referendum Monday.

Delay in Payment Ended

The interest, half of which was due Aug. 1, 1944, and half on Feb. 1 of this year, was withheld while the trustees' plan was being pushed as an alternative to the public ownership authority. With the rejection of the former plan, the court held there was no further reason for delay in paying.

It became apparent at the hearing that the city's offer of 75 millions for the surface lines and 12 millions plus for the "L" would not be submitted to the present owners for some time.

The court has asked the securities and exchange commission to report on the fairness and public interest of the plan by Aug. 13. Atty. William H. Sexton, representing the city, asked if the report could be made earlier and was told by the SEC attorney, G. Gayle Roberson, that it could not.

Court Demands Fair Price

Judge Igoe has said he must have evidence to show that the price to be paid is a fair one, either thru SEC or thru testimony of witnesses, before the submission is made to the present owners.

At the request of Atty. Joseph F. Elward, representing elevated bondholders, and with the consent of the city, Judge Igoe signed an order stating that all earnings of the "L" over operating expenses, from last April 30 to the date of the city purchase should be held for the bondholders. This might mean hundreds of thousands of dollars if a 12 cent fare were put into effect and even a substantial sum if earnings continue at the present rate. The state Supreme court has held the company is entitled to 12 cents if its receipts at 10 cents fail to pay operating costs.

Seven to Be Appointed

Early draft of the Illinois commerce commission's report said that the surface lines might be reorganized separately and finance improvements sufficient to give adequate service. This was eliminated from the final draft of the commission opinion.

The next action toward setting up the metropolitan authority, it is expected, will be the appointment of a seven man governing board, four by Mayor Kelly and three by Gov. Green.

GRAIN FUTURES MARKETS CLOSE MOSTLY HIGHER

Grain prices were unchanged to higher on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Wheat rose ⅞ to 1¼ cents a bushel, corn was unchanged to ⅜ up, oats were ⅜ to ⅝ higher, rye up ⅛ to 1¼, and barley ⅛ to ¼ higher.

Most buying of wheat futures was concentrated in the near-by July delivery. Chicago traders continued to take July wheat apparently on reports of an impending shortage of freight cars. Buying by mills provided good support after midsession and was centered on the September contract.

There was extremely little trading in corn. The July contract was bid at the $1.18½ ceiling and no sales of the September delivery were made until the final hour.

Reports of the sale of 25,000 bushels of rye from local stocks caused short covering. Profit cashing appeared when the July delivery reached $1.43, but the offerings were taken quickly and some of the final quotations were new highs for the day.

URGES LIFTING OF CEILINGS ON BEEF, POULTRY

Moore Adds to Hot Price Act Debate

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., June 8—Removal of price ceilings on beef, veal, and poultry for 90 days to encourage heavier marketing was proposed today by Sen. Moore [R., Okla.] as the senate debated for the third day the bill to extend the life of the office of price administration.

Moore's suggestion for easing the meat shortage was made in an amendment which would direct OPA to lift ceilings on cattle, calves, and poultry for three months, altho rationing would be retained to assure equitable distribution. He said his measure would end the black market and that larger supply would press prices back to "a reasonable level."

New Attack Irks Senators

Administrator Bowles in a public statement made another attack on amendments offered by Senators Taft [R., O.] and Thomas [D., Okla.] which would direct OPA to fix prices allowing for reasonable margins above production and processing costs. He said the amendments were unworkable and would result in inflation.

Only yesterday Bowles had contended before the senate banking committee that the price control and stabilization acts should not be changed, so his resort to government mimeographing machines to plead his case aroused senatorial ire.

Thomas was particularly irked by Bowles' new assertion that OPA would "gear its price policies to the needs of the reconversion period."

"There is no law permitting OPA to make plans for reconversion," he said. "OPA is a war agency."

Charges Bowles Backs Down

Sen. Morse [R., Ore.], terming the statement "an OPA propaganda sheet," charged Bowles with backing down on his promise of yesterday to put the meat industry on a special price control basis.

Taft said his and Thomas' amendments would only carry out basic provisions of the stabilization law and should be written into the law "to tie it down."

Sen. Hickenlooper [R., Ia.] agreed specific price protections should be written in "so you can get the book down and read it. Otherwise you depend on the whims of the administrators."

Sen. Ellender [D., La.], pleading the OPA case, said the Thomas amendment would mean either 5 or 6 different prices for the same product in the same community or allowing the low cost producer more profit.

"I'm for that," said Taft. "That's the basis of our economy, let the efficient producer make the most profit."

Reads Tribune News Story

Hickenlooper, listing a series of cases in which OPA was charged with petty enforcement of its rules, read a news story from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE about OPA agents in De Kalb county, Ill., trying to prevent disposal of cattle injured by a train because the owner did not have a slaughtering permit.

"Does the senator think it is really fair," asked Sen. Lucas [D., Ill.], "to present this newspaper item until he has checked the facts with OPA to ascertain definitely whether the story is true? Does the senator think it is fair to bring an article in here as an argument against continuation of the OPA, especially coming as it does from THE TRIBUNE?"

"The senator from Illinois," replied Hickenlooper, "may not agree that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is a proper source of information. I presume THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S philosophy differs somewhat from that of the senior senator from Illinois . . . but I believe the journalistic ethics of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE measure up to the average journalistic ethics of the newspaper profession thruout the United States."
